

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AFTER

Record of the Class of '86

Princeton University

1886-1911

Class L.D. 006

Book 1880 9

PRESENTED BY

NASSAU HALL TOWER

Ge.
AFTER TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

CLASS RECORD OF 1886

1 8 8 6 - 1 9 1 1

Compiled by the Class Secretary

Frederick Evans

SI 404
1886

1886

TO THE BOYS.

This is the fifth Record of the Class prepared by the Class Secretary, who has endeavored to keep track of the members of the Class, to trace their achievements in their various lines of work, to find out something about their families, their public and home life, and to keep the Class posted on the achievements of "the Boys". It has been, on the whole, a work of pleasure. In any event, it is a work that must be done so that the college may have a record of what each class is doing, and the class itself be informed.

On the whole, the record of the Class is a fine and honorable one, creditable alike to the University and to '86. A few have strayed from the straight path and fallen by the wayside; that, perhaps, was inevitable in a large class—for those days—which contained 163 men, but the average is high, worthy, honorable and commendable.

Many of the sons of members are now in college, and many more are coming—which is fine, proper and fitting.

Best of all, from the class point of view, is the fact that the class is more firmly knit together and united to-day than ever before. Eighty-Six never fought in college; it will never fight now, and as the members slowly, let us hope, and inevitably, of course, pass away from the Old Cannon, the ties of '86 will bind us still together, until the last bond is severed.

There are many—alas! too many—faces that we miss. They have gone away from us forever, but the memory of them is sweet and gracious, perpetual and abiding—fragrant especially at this time when we gather for Old Home Week, to celebrate the glorious, golden days of youth, to commune once more in the Old Home, and to look forward with hope and faith and courage to long and honorable lives.

To the members of the Class and their families—God bless them all!—this book is dedicated. In some cases, the task has been "Love's Labor Lost", but in the main it has been "a thing of beauty, and a joy forever", to

FREDERICK EVANS,

Class Secretary of '86.

"JIM" ADAMS

CLASS OF 1886

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY

JAMES COLLINS ADAMS

"Jim" Adams died in San Francisco, Cal. on September 9, 1908. He had been failing for over a year, but in spite of a strong constitution he was unable to rally.

His death caused general bereavement in Oakland, his old home, and throughout California, where he was a conspicuous and well known figure. The news of it was received with genuine regret by his classmates who will always hold him in affectionate remembrance.

"Jim" was born in San Francisco, February 18, 1861, a son of the late James Adams and Sarah Elizabeth Adams. His parents were pioneers and his father was well known among the business men and citizens of the Pacific Slope. At one time the elder Adams was Sheriff of San Francisco, and for several terms he served in the State Legislature. "Jim" was educated in the public schools of Oakland, and took a course at the University of California, coming to Princeton in September 1882. His career in College was conspicuous, not only for the friendships he made, but also because of his athletic prowess. We all recall the old cry: "A man to match Adams!" When '86 produced him as its candidate for the heavy-weight cane spree, (his opponent on that occasion being "Pheetus" Woodend '85.) "Jumbo", as he was affectionately called, got the cane without a struggle.

"Jim" was never a great student, but he was a faithful one, and his standing was good. As an athlete, he will be best remembered as center rush on the glorious "Tilly" Lamar team which defeated Yale at New Haven in the fall of 1885.

After graduation, "Jim" entered the Columbia Law School, and in due time received the degree of LL.B. He returned to the Slope and practiced law with the firm of Scrivner & Schell, San Francisco. He was interested in politics as a Republican and was frequently a delegate to County and State Conventions. The Oakland Tribune said of him: "He was well known among the practitioners and jurists of San Francisco, and indeed, throughout the State, and was admired for his honorable and able manner of conducting his case before the bench and with opposing counsel."

In later years "Jim" withdrew largely from practice at the bar, and devoted himself to the management of the estate of his family. His later years were spent at his beautiful country place at Mountain View in Santa Clara County, where he lived a quiet and ideal life.

He is survived by three brothers and two sisters: John E., San Francisco; Walter H., Oakland; Mrs. John P. Jackson, Burlingame; Selby, San Francisco; Mrs. Frank Godfrey, Riverside, and Fred S., Mountain View.

CLARENCE J. ALLEN.

Allen was born on June 7, 1865 in Titusville, Pa., a son of Francis Olcott Allen and Isabelle Cynthia Jones. He was prepared at Rugby Academy, Philadelphia, and entered college in September '81 with the class of '85. He then went into '86 but was only with us during Freshman year until April 1883.

After leaving Princeton, from June '83 to February '87 he became special apprentice in the Pennsylvania Railroad shops at Altoona, Pa., and then in February '87 went to Milwaukee as assistant engineer of tests on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, leaving that position in February 1889, to engage in the real estate and lumber business. In 1902, with B. L. Worden, of Milwaukee, he formed the Worden-Allen Company, structural engineers and contractors, and was secretary until 1909. He then became manager of the Milwaukee office of Tracy & Co., of Wall Street, New York, and is now dealing in real estate.

Allen was married in Milwaukee, December 18, 1888, to Miss Elizabeth Seymour Steele, and has one son, Francis Olcott Allen III, born in Milwaukee, September 19, 1889. His son went to Groton School, class of 1907, and was in Yale 1911 Freshman year. He is now in the Buffalo office of the Lackawanna Bridge Co.

Allen is a member of the Milwaukee Club.

WILLIAM ARROTT.

"Billy" Arrott came to Princeton in September '82 and left in Dec. '83. He was born in Allegheny, Pa., February 21, 1864, a son of James West Arrott and Isabella Lee Waddell. On leaving college he went into the insurance business in Pittsburg. He was married January 1, 1891 at Sewickley, Pa., to Miss Elizabeth Severance Ramsay. He died a few years ago, leaving two sons and two daughters: Elizabeth Ramsay Arrott, born May 3, 1892; Isabella Arrott, born September 4, 1893; Charles Ramsay Arrott, born March 4, 1896, and William Arrott, Jr., born September 8, 1897. The two daughters are attending school at Dobb's Ferry, New York. Charles is at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and William is at the Sewickley Preparatory School.

PEARCE BAILEY.

"Buck" was born in New York, July 12, 1865, a son of William E. and Harriet B. Bailey. He prepared for Princeton at Trinity Military Institute, Tivoli, N. Y., entered Princeton Sept. '82, and was graduated in '86 with the degree of A.B.

From '86 to '89 he was a student at P. and S., receiving the degree of M.D. From '89 to '90 he was interne at St. Luke's Hospital, New York, and was attending physician at the Almshouse, Workhouse and Incurable Hospital at Blackwell's Island. From 1890-'92, he was student in Paris, Zurich, Heidelberg and Vienna. From '92 up to the present time he has practised medicine with special reference to mental diseases. In this field "Buck" stands in the very forefront of his profession and is recognized as one of the leading alienists of the country. He has contributed largely to scientific and medical publications

ALLEN

BANKS

BACUS

BLAIR

and is the author of a standard work, "Bailey on Injury", which has received high praise. He is a member of the New York Academy of Medicine, Neurological Society, Pathological Society, County Medical Society, University, Princeton, Ardsley and Century Clubs and of the Huguenot Society. He is also a trustee of the Craig Colony for Epileptics, and is connected with the faculty of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and is a member of the Medical Board of the Neurological Institute in New York.

"Buck" was married on Nov. 11, 1899, to Miss Edith L. Black (a sister of Charles Black '88) at Jobstown, N. J., and has four children, two boys and two girls: Edith Newbold, born Feb. 27, 1901; Pearce, Jr., and James Lawrence, TWINS, born July, 1902, and Geraldine, born Sept. 1907.

"Buck" spends a great deal of his time, when not engaged in consultation in New York, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, at his country place, "Four Winds", Katonah, N. Y.

Under the head of "Remarks", "Buck" contributes the following philosophical disquisition:

The Aesculapian temple has proved for me a pleasant habitation, although it is not the lofty building crammed with accurate information that many people take it to be. Like many another edifice, impressions of it vary as they are derived from the inside or from without. The ideal and the practical are strangely mixed together. Actuated by the one, the medical man contemplates the stream of life and death, a point of view which carries a Nirvanalike calm with it, but is not commercially attractive. Constrained by nature or necessity to be practical, he busies himself to stem or divert the tide, a highly speculative business, for patients still go about, and perhaps always will, with their lives in their hands and, when curable, tingling with the faith which cures them. I have tried to be wise—not too wise, of course, but have never succeeded in finding out what wisdom is. To see disaster brought about by license makes you wish to go out and spread reform; but the very next day perhaps, you run across a soul so shrivelled up from repressing impulse, that you end by thinking that anything is better than restraint of action. There's idle philosophy for you; and a ticket for any train you like—return trip not guaranteed. I studied medicine much against my will, as I thought I saw myself at forty the editor of some great daily. I founded one journal which wrecked itself and me, and after that I could induce no newspaper to have me on its staff. So I opened the materia medica and began to read—the human body, or began to discern the unity in everything. This gets a mention simply to show that a man can do something he doesn't care for at first, and follow it for twenty-five years, without serious menace to his health and, in my case at least (I am not a surgeon) without serious injury to others. The moral may be useful to those fathers in '86 who have balky sons they don't know what to do with. When I was twenty-five it was discovered that I had a malady which would prove fatal in two years. My time is almost up, but I am trying by every means known to faith and science to prolong the term over the Great Reunion.

WILLIAM BALLANTYNE.

"Bally" is in the book business with the firm of William Ballantyne & Sons, Washington. He was married in 1893 to Miss Alice L. Jeffras, of Cincinnati, Ohio. The Secretary regrets that he has no word from "Bally."

DANIEL BOWER BANKS.

Daniel was born in Baltimore, Md., son of Andrew Banks and Elizabeth Godwin. He went to St. James School, Washington County, Md., and St. Paul's School at Concord, entered Princeton in 1882 as a "Scientif" and left in the Spring of 1885.

He took up civil and electrical engineering and has achieved a big reputation. At one time he was chief engineer of the United Railways of Baltimore, and he has been engineer of the United States Electric Light Co., the Brush Electric Light Co., resident engineer of the Baltimore & Drum Point Railway, and consulting engineer for the Baltimore City Passenger Railway Company, Central Railway Company, Falls Road Electric Railway Company, president of Elizabeth City Water & Power Company and of Elizabeth City Sewerage Company, Commodore of the Baltimore Yacht Club, etc., etc. He is associated in business with Blackwell and Alex. Moffat, both of '84, as consulting engineer.

"Dan'l" has twice been married; first, to Miss Jean Warner Matthews on September 5, 1888, by whom he had three children—Jean Matthews, born September 17, 1889; Nellie, who died at the age of two years; and Daniel Bower Banks, Jr., born January 10, 1895. The first Mrs. Banks died February 12, 1904. He married Miss Garey Tiernan Walton on June 7, 1905, and has one child by this marriage—Walton Godwin Banks, born October 2, 1907. His daughter, Jean, was married to John S. Barnes, of Philadelphia, on October 2, 1909. "Dan'l", Jr., is preparing for Princeton at St. James School, Washington County.

"Dan'l" was consulting engineer in 1909 to the Board of Fire Commissioners of Baltimore in connection with the high pressure fire service.

He is a member of the firm of Banks & Keyser, a well-known engineering firm of Baltimore, which has been employed in many important enterprises.

"Dan'l" is a member of the Princeton Club of New York.

In October 1909 he was appointed by Governor Crothers, of Maryland, a delegate to the third annual convention of the Atlantic Inland Deeper Waterways Association which met in Norfolk, Va., on November 17.

In January 1909 "Dan'l" was prominently mentioned for the position of Water Engineer of Baltimore, but he declined to have his name considered in connection with that place.

JOSEPH DEYOE BAUCUS.

The "Senator" was born on September 23, 1864, at Northumberland, Saratoga County, N. Y., son of Alexander Bryan Baucus and Esther Deyoe. His father was a prominent Democratic politician and served the county as Sheriff and later as Senator, hence the "Senator's" nickname. The "Senator" prepared at Schuylerville High School and entered Princeton in September 1882, with the proud record—never equalled or surpassed—of thirteen conditions! He made good, however, and was graduated an A.B. in the first honor group. Later he got the degree of A.M.

He studied law at Columbia Law School, graduating in 1888. From June 1888 to July 1892 he was a member of the law firm of Brackett, Butler & Baucus, of Saratoga Springs, of which Senator Brackett was the head. From July 1892 to January 1897 he was a member of the law firm of Gayley ('84) Baucus & Fleming ('86), at No. 52 Wall Street, New York. From 1895 to 1905 he spent the bulk of his time in London, as a member of the firm of Maguire & Baucus, general importers and traders, representing especially Thomas A. Edison. He returned to this country in 1905, and resumed the practise of law. In 1908 he was appointed by Mayor McClellan a Commission of Appraisal of the Board of Water Supply.

HOLDER HALL.
GIFT OF MRS. RUSSELL SAGE. BUILT ALONG NASSAU STREET, NEAR THE SITE OF PROF. GYVOT'S HOUSE.

The "Senator" was married February 28, 1890, to Miss Emma Olney, of Rome, N. Y., who died on March 7, of the same year, as a result of a railroad accident while they were on their honeymoon. The "Senator" was also severely injured and went abroad for his health.

He is a Tammany man, but not of the ordinarily accepted type. He belongs to the Princeton and Manhattan Clubs, and is the reddest, hottest, tobascoest Princeton man "as is". He has written a couple of bully Princeton songs, and no doubt he will be glad to send them to any classmate who wants them.

The "Senator" writes as follows:

Have always been a Democrat except when Bryan or Hearst or Murphy controlled the party, which was most of the time. Am a Cleveland Democrat for revenue tariff, honest money and believe that public office is a public trust, not a private snap.

Ran for Congress in my old home District, Saratoga, in a hopelessly Republican district, two years ago. Got a flattering vote but not enough to make it possible for me to go to Washington and tell the people the real facts about "Brother" Gaines. However, his own constituents gave their opinion of him as a "stand-patter" so I am content. Did I say content? Well, that is not entirely true. Another reason why I wanted to go to Washington was to test the far-famed mint bed of "Monty" Blair and his skill as a mixer of mint juleps. However, I may perhaps be able to do that and still maintain my high standard of political ethics.

Have lived at the Princeton Club of New York for several years and the latch-string is always out to any '86 man who happens around my way.

Next to the mother who bore me and the sister who loves me my heart is and always will be with dear old Princeton and the Class of '86. God bless them everyone!

On September 8, 1908, the "Senator" was nominated for representative in Congress by the Democrats of the Twenty-fifth District of New York, comprising the counties of Hamilton, Saratoga, Montgomery, Fulton, and Warren. Although he is a practising lawyer in New York City, the "Senator" has always maintained his legal residence at his old home in Bacon Hill, Saratoga County. He conducted an exceedingly lively campaign in a district which is overwhelmingly Republican, as may be inferred from the accompanying letter which appeared in The New York Tribune of September 11, 1908:

THE VOICE RAUCOUS OF J. D. BAUCUS

Tells of the 25th District Caucus

To the Editor of The Tribune:

Sir: This is to inform you of the fact that on Tuesday, September 8, I was nominated by the Democratic convention of the 25th Congress District of New York for member of Congress. Evidently this has escaped your attention, in spite of the fact that it was duly announced in The New York Sun of September 9. I would advise you to read The Sun, if you want to find out what is going on.

Incidentally, I may state that I am running for Congress on the Democratic ticket in the rottenest "pocket" borough in the State of New York—and I trust in the United States—and against a man whose qualifications are second only to those of Senator Ankeny, of Washington, as the most useless member in Congress—to wit, Cyrus Durey. If you want Mr. Durey's record, you can easily obtain it.

There is a nominal Republican majority in my district of between 6,000 and 7,000. Fortunately, the average American is honest and has a brain, and uses it. It is for this reason that I am taking up this fight, and mean to win. You can use all or none of my speech, and are welcome to make any comment upon it you please.

Before Election Day comes around your readers, and even you, may discover the fact that there is a fight on in the 25th Congressional District, and that a man by the name of Baucus is in it.

(Signed) JOSEPH D. BAUCUS.
New York, Sept. 10, 1908.

We regret to state, however, that "the voice raucous of J. D. Baucus" was the voice of "one crying in the wilderness". The voters very foolishly and perversely preferred the most useless member in Congress—to wit, Cyrus Durey—and elected Durey by 27,152 votes to 19,927 votes for Baucus, a showing, however, which indicated a change of thousands of votes in favor of the "Senator". It is too bad the "Senator" didn't run in the fall of 1910, when Mr. Durey was swamped, along with "Brer" Gaines and the rest of them.

GRANT R. BENNETT.

"Bennett" is in poor health and is living in Los Angeles. He is practising law. He began the practice of law in St. Joe, Mo., and Galveston, Tex., then came to New York until his health failed. He was married in Chicago, June 9, 1892, to Miss Nina Frances Morgan.

SAMUEL MILLS BEVIN.

Mills Bevin died on March 6, 1900. He was stricken with pneumonia on March 1, while on a business trip to Philadelphia for the firm of Bevin Bros. Manufacturing Company of East Hampton, Conn., of which he was a member. He was removed to the Pennsylvania Hospital but failed to rally, and died at midnight on March 6, to the sorrow and regret of his family, his friends and his class. His funeral was held at his old home in East Hampton, and Tracy Harris represented the class.

Mills's career was crowned with success and honor. He died in the prime of his life, beloved and respected by all who knew him. He held many positions of trust and honor. He was President of the Board of Directors of Chatham Public Library, a member of the School Board, treasurer of Chatham Hall, secretary and treasurer of the Pacotopang Water Power Company, director in the Portland Savings Bank, and the Brainard, Shailor & Hall Quarry Company, and clerk and treasurer of the Congregational Church of East Hampton.

Mills was married in Brooklyn, November 14, 1889 to Miss Juliet H. Williams, who survives him with three children: Allen W., born September 28, 1893; Newton P., born October 4, 1895, and Harriet Morgan, born March 11, 1898. Mrs. Bevin subsequently married Newton P. Bevin, a brother of Mills, and is now living with her family in Jamaica, L. I.

The two boys are now in 'prep' school on the way to Princeton, the elder, Allen W., entering in 1911, and the other, Newton P. a year later.

DANIEL DENISON BICKHAM.

"Bick" was born in Dayton, O., Oct. 31, 1864, a son of Major William D. Bickham and Mary Stickle. He prepared for college at Deaves Collegiate Institute at Dayton, entered college in '82, and was graduated in '86, with the degree of A.B. His brother, "Abe" was in '82, and "Charlie" in '90—both of them now in the United States Army.

"Bick's" career in college was bright and shining. In the pitching line he was "all the goods", as everyone will remember. The only trouble was that they didn't have anyone to handle his cannon ball delivery and this is no disparagement to John Harlan, "Jim" Shaw or "Bum" Brownlee. "Bick's" athletic record will be found elsewhere. As a simon-pure, double-riveted, copper-bottomed, orange-and-blacker, "Bick" is the "real thing". He's more enthusiastic now than he ever was, and that's "going some". He thinks nothing of coming on for a baseball or football game with Yale, but what he thought after the Yale game last November isn't fit matter to be incorporated in this chaste history of honest men.

After graduation "Bick" still stuck to baseball and in the summer of '86 pitched, just for fun, for the Cincinnati Association nine and won the game. He still pitches now and then. He entered the business office of his father's paper, The Dayton Journal, in September '86, and remained with it until April 1, 1910 in various capacities—cashier, business manager, and in 1898 he took entire charge of the paper when his two brothers enlisted for the Spanish War. His father died in 1904, and "Bick" continued to run the paper in the interest of his mother who owned it until October 1904, when she sold it. "Bick" remained with the paper in the business department until April 1, 1910, when he entered the accounting department of Herring, Hall, Marvin Safe Co., of Hamilton, O. He says he expects to be assigned to the Fireproof Furniture and Construction Co., of Hamilton, of which C. U. Carpenter '93 is president.

"Bick" was married at Easton, Pa. to Miss Anna Raub Stout and has had three children: Emily Marie, born December 19, 1889; William Denison, born October 31, 1891, and Ann Elizabeth, born July 29, 1894. Emily Marie died December 26, 1890. William D. is now (1911) at Princeton in the Sophomore class. Ann Elizabeth is a student at the Dayton High School.

"Bick" writes:

May I be permitted to transgress a more modest reticence and reassure my old '86 friends, who respected me for what I refused to yield to when in college, that I still have a right to that respect, and want it? For it has been that more than any other influence which has anchored me in my days of fierce tribulation.

Next to my children and my mother, I esteem the respect and good-will of the boys I knew so well at old Princeton. Here has been a rock for me to stay my feet when I felt—"What's the use?" This may sound weak or even maudlin to some, but I never was afraid of the truth. Take it for what each thinks it worth. I think the proudest day I ever knew was when my boy joined his classmates at old Princeton in Sept. 1909, and his year at Princeton has been the happiest I have known since I left the old place with "the best on earth" in June '86. He has not made good at baseball or football, but he has made good as a student. He is a member of the Instrumental Club, and I hope he hits the trail hard for football this year. In my daughter I find the solace that comes from the sweetest ever. Let me say here, that whatever may come, neither of my children has ever caused me one hour's pain, and God can't give a man better. This is no dirge. It is but the song of what has passed. What is ahead of me looks all good and bright, and I am happy in my memories of '86, looking forward to much that will be profitable and cheerful from further Princeton meetings and reunions, for here I find confidence and friendships not to be interfered with by politics, business or society. I write thus believing everyone of us wants the truth from the heart of each other at this time, and I know no other place I would go with it expecting the glad hand and a square deal. My kiddos, my personal integrity, and my Princeton memories and affiliations I hold as my three best assets in life. With Princeton men I turn back the hands of the clock to when we all knew and loved each other for Princeton's sake, with no outside affairs to jangle out of tune. So are we boys again whenever we will.

MONTGOMERY BLAIR.

"Monty" writes as follows:

My permanent address is Silver Spring, Maryland, and my office Room 701 Hibbs Building, Washington, D. C. My father's name was Montgomery Blair (Postmaster General in President Lincoln's Cabinet) and my mother's, Mary Elizabeth Woodbury. I was born March 14, 1865, which doubtless accounts for my fleetness of foot and other qualities that I have in common with the rabbit.

I entered Princeton, with a few conditions, at the beginning of our Freshman year and managed, in spite of "Cam's" bi-annual and other severe trials, to stay the course and get my "Dip," much to the surprise of myself, my family and my many friends.

I spent the summer of 1886 resting from the arduous labors of Senior year and recovering from the excesses of graduation week. In the fall of that year I began the study of law at an "after dark" near university in this neck of the woods, then known as the Columbian, now yclept the George Washington. In the due course of time I received my degree and was admitted to the bar. Since which time I have been constant to that "cruel Mistress," except for an occasional liaison or so, when fascinated by the manuscripts of Madison and Jackson, the delights of agricultural life, the money in real estate or other business, I have strayed for a time in other pastures.

I have found my Mistress nothing like as bad as those heartless jades, who keep their devotees at work all and every night, at astronomy or a night watchman's job, for instance, and She has Charity "left at the post" when it comes to covering sins, for She is a veritable two-edged sword cutting brush both ways with every stroke to cover the shortcomings of both attorney and client.

I was married February 26, 1895, having been successful in persuading a Massachusetts girl, Edith Draper, to leave the Ancestral Cod Fish and Baked Beans for the Hog and Hominy of our Sunny South. After nearly sixteen years of married life she has not once kicked on the diet, all of which goes to show that a Yankee with a Southern disposition is a blend that has Duffy's Pure Malt, Old Crow and all the rest of them licked before they get into the ring.

I find myself drifting down life's stream, with a keen look out for the quiet water. I have six children: Edith, born Sept. 6, 1896; Minna, born Nov. 9, 1897; Montgomery, Jr., born Nov. 9, 1898; Virginia, born Dec. 21, 1899; William, born Dec. 13, 1902; and Ellen, born May 25, 1905, all the way from fourteen to six years of age, and I am trying to teach them to tell the truth and take the licking, which is not easy work. However, if they one and all do not hate Yale, despise Harvard and love Princeton, my few remaining hairs will rise in just wrath.

I cannot close without telling you that I have been honored by the unanimous election as President for life of the Free & Easy Club with the additional titles of F. C. C. and G. P. M. M. J. M., which means, Finest Cocktail Compounder and Grand Past Master Mint Julep Maker.

"Monty" is a real, sure-enough farmer. He grows mint at his country

BICKHAM

W. D. BICKHAM
Class of '13

BEVIN

CALHOUN

CAMERON

place as one would grow orchids or raise a crop of radium. The Secretary knows because he has been asleep in the old mint patch once or twice, or mayhap, several times.

"Monty" has devoted considerable time to editing the papers of his grandfather, Francis P. Blair, who was an intimate friend of President Andrew Jackson, which were presented to the Library of Congress by the members of the Blair family. He is the author of an interesting article on President Martin Van Buren, which appeared in Harper's Magazine for September 1909. He belongs to the Columbia Historical Society, the Sons of the Revolution, the Southern Relief Society, the Metropolitan, Alibi, Chevy Chase, Patuxent and Hog & Highball Clubs.

WILLIAM R. BLAKEMORE.

"Blake" was born in "Old Kentucky" January 15, 1864, son of M. H. Blakemore and Catherine B. Blakemore. He went to the University School at Louisville, Ky., entered Princeton "Scientif" in September '82 and left in June '85. While in college "Blake" was prominent in athletics, especially football and lacrosse. He was also chairman of the "Soph" Reception Committee.

The first year and a half after leaving college "Blake" was with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad at Montgomery, Ala. Then he went to Chicago and was with the firm of Francis Cropper Co., a wholesale furnishing goods house, for which he traveled in the West. Since 1896 he has been in the furnishing goods business for himself at Chicago, and a year and a half ago (Feb. 1909) went back to "Old Kentuck", and established the firm of Mitchell & Blakemore (same business) at Paris, Ky.

"Blake" hasn't been back to Princeton since he left, but he will be on hand for "Old Home Week".

"Blake" was married at Paris, Ky., on January 3, 1899 to Miss Mary Ellen Neely. They had one child, Katherine Taylor, who was born January 21, 1903 and who died July 4, 1905.

WILLIAM HUTTON BLAUVELT.

Blauvelt was born March 20, 1863, at Elizabeth, N. J., son of George M. S. Blauvelt and Sarah Holmes. He entered Princeton in September '82 and left in December '82, going to Lafayette to take a course in metallurgical engineering. There he received the degrees of E.M. and M.S. For a time he was blast furnace chemist and superintendent of the Durham Iron Works at Riegelsville, Pa.; from '88 to '95 he was gas and fuel engineer, and was in Montana for three years smelting copper. From 1895 to date he has been connected with Semet Solvay Co., of Syracuse, N. Y. of which he is consulting engineer, and his business is essentially the development of the by-product coke oven for the coking of coal and saving of its by-products, ammonia, tar and gas, together with the development of the application of these products to the arts.

He was married October 22, 1891 to Adèle Picot Wilson of Philadelphia, and has two daughters: Adèle, born August 3, 1893 at Anaconda, Mont., and Katherine, born June 10, 1900 at Syracuse. Adèle attends school at Cambridge, Mass., and Katherine is in a private school in Syracuse.

ROBERT BRUCE BOWIE.

"Old Bob" Bowie was born July 19, 1865, at Upper Marlborough, Prince George's County, Maryland, son of Thomas Fielder Bowie and Mary Virginia Griffith Bowie. He prepared for college at St. James College Grammar School, Washington County, Maryland, entered Princeton in September '82 and was graduated in '86 with the degree of A.B. "Bob" also took the special course so ably served by James Odoriferous.

After graduation "Bob" took a three year's course at the Universities of Maryland and Virginia and was admitted to the bar in 1890, but he soon abandoned the law for civil engineering, and from September 1890 to March 1893 he was on the engineering corps of the B. & O. R. R.; from March '93 to March '96 he was assistant engineer on the topographical survey of Baltimore; from March '96 to January 1900 he served in the same capacity with the North Carolina Power Company and the Baltimore Street Railway Co.; from January 1900 to September 1903 he was in the commission business in the exporting of fruits, bark, tallow, and feed stuff with the firm of Lloyd, Bowie & Co. From September 1903 to February 1905 he was assistant engineer of the Consolidated Gas Co., of Baltimore, and from February 1905 up to the present time (January 1911) he has been an assistant engineer for the City of Baltimore with offices at the City Hall, in the Department of Repairs and Maintenance.

"Bob" was married September 5, 1904 to Miss Mary Clare O'Connor, of Baltimore. He has no children.

"Bob" is, or was, a "sojer" and a veteran of the Spanish War. He was a member, and finally became a Captain of Co. A, Fifth Regiment, the crack military organization of Baltimore, serving with that body from November '86 to March 1904. "Bob" says: "The government gave us no chance to fight anything but typhoid fever and embalmed beef".

JAMES HARRINGTON BOYD.

The following sketch of "Boydie" is taken from the "Memoirs of Lucas County, Ohio":

James Harrington Boyd, attorney, counselor-at-law, and mathematician, of Toledo, Ohio, was born at Keene, Ohio, Dec. 7, 1862, the son of James and Mary Ross. Mr. Boyd is descended, on his father's side from the numerous family of Boyds, of Scotch and Scotch-Irish descent. On the mother's side he is descended from Elize Ross, née Boone. Elize Boone was a direct descendant from Thomas Boone, brother of Squire Boone. Squire Boone was the father of Daniel Boone, the great Kentucky pioneer. George Boone, the father of Squire and Thomas, with his family of eleven children, landed in Philadelphia, 1717, coming direct from Exeter, England. He at once took his family to Bucks County, Pennsylvania, where he became a Quaker, and he assisted in the organization of Exeter township.

James H. Boyd was graduated at Princeton University, with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, in the year 1886. He won the Mathematical Fellowship in 1886-7 and received his Master's degree in June 1888. Later, he became professor of mathematics at Macalester College, at St. Paul, Minn., and he was a student at the University of Gottingen, Germany, during the years 1890-1 and 1892-3. He received the degree of Doctor of Science at Princeton in 1892. From 1893 to 1895, he was a tutor in mathematics at the University of Chicago, and he was an instructor there from 1895 to 1902. While there he was president of Lincoln House for three years and the treasurer of the famous Quadrangle Club during the years 1900 and 1901. Mr. Boyd was a student at the Harvard Law School in 1902 and 1903, and in 1904 he removed to Toledo, where he is now successfully engaged in the practice of his profession.

In 1908, he was the Democratic candidate for Circuit Judge in the Sixth Judicial Circuit of Ohio. He is a member of the Ohio Bar Association, which organization he represented at the annual convention of the American Bar Association, and also at the meeting of the International Bar Association, which convened at Portland, Me., in August 1907. He was elected a member of the Committee on Judicial Administration and Legal Reform of the Ohio Bar Association, 1909.

Mr. Boyd is a frequent contributor to legal journals and to the daily press, and he has also written extensively on mathematical subjects, being the author of "Boyd's College Algebra," translations of "Briot and Bouquet's Geometria Analytique," and many mathematical papers for scientific journals. He is affiliated with the Beta Theta Pi college fraternity, and, in his political views, is a Cleveland Democrat.

In 1910, he was elected President of the Princeton University Alumni Association of Northwestern Ohio. Mr. Boyd has traveled extensively throughout Germany, Switzerland, Holland, Belgium, France, England, and the United States and Canada. His favorite recreations are traveling, hunting in the mountains, and golf playing, though he never permits pleasure to interfere with his close attention to professional duties.

On March 25, 1896, Mr. Boyd was married at Portland, Me., to Miss Susan Adams, and three children have resulted from this happy marriage: Helen, born Jan. 3, 1897; Mary, born July 15, 1899; and James Harrington, Jr., born Nov. 22, 1902.

Helen is in the Toledo High School, and the two other children are in the ward schools.

Boyd came on to New York in December 1910 to address the National Civic Federation on the question of employers' liability. On November 10th, 11th, and 12th he took part in a conference of all the Commissions in the United States to the number of eleven, which were investigating State industrial insurance with a view to formulating a uniform act to be adopted by the various States. As a member of the Legal Committee of the conference, he was instrumental in draughting such a law.

The following letter to Boyd from Mr. F. C. Schwedtman, who is chairman of the Commission of the National Association of Manufacturing and the best informed man in the United States on this subject, will give some idea of the important and valuable work Boyd is doing as chairman of the Employers' Liability Commission of Ohio:

I had no idea of the wonderful basis for your special ability for the difficult task for which you have been appointed by Governor Harmon. I know of no state official connected with a commission who has your training. It is, therefore, no wonder that you have accomplished so much. I am delighted to hear that you propose a bill that will be in lines with mine and Mr. Emery's recommendations, and I sincerely hope that before it is reported, it will contain a provision recognizing the principle of workers' contribution, even if only in a small degree. I note that you say there are some corporations' attorneys who claim that the employees' contribution would mean too liberal awards for injured workers. I am in favor of the most liberal awards possible without injuring the competition of the manufacturers with those of another state. I think it is far better to have even to per cent. contribution by the workingmen and give him 66 per cent. of his wages during disability than to give him 50 per cent. without contribution on his part. It is the principle and not the amount that I am trying to defend.

However, you have evidently gone a long ways toward embodying the principles which we both know are correct into the Ohio law, and I am exceedingly anxious to see your draft.

I shall consider it a special privilege to work towards the proper recognition of your most excellent services as the chairman of the committee.

Your worthy Governor, as well as the business men of Ohio, surely should know better than to let such a valuable man as you are slip out of their fingers. You have all the qualifications to make future state work, insurance or otherwise, efficient and correct, and I shall see to it that your efforts are placed before the business men of Ohio. If you want me to look over your drafts, I will be glad to do this in strict confidence, or I would be glad to serve you in any other way in which this great cause can be advanced in Ohio or elsewhere.

You will be interested to learn that after thorough discussions in Connecticut we have not only convinced the business men, but also a great many legislators who came to hear us during our lectures in Hartford. The chairman of the judiciary committee of the House as well as the Senate are anxious to have our aid in draughting bills providing for our principles.

Boyd wrote later that the bill which his commission prepared for the Legislature of Ohio to compensate workmen injured in industrial accidents passed on April 27, 1911.

In August 1908, Boyd wrote to the Secretary as follows:

"Allow me to apologize humbly for informing you that the Democrats of the 6th Judicial Circuit of Ohio nominated me as their candidate for Circuit Judge ($6,000 per annum, if elected?)."

"Boydie", however, still continued to practise law, in compliance with the expressed preference of his constituents who evidently didn't know a good thing when they saw it and had it.

JOSEPH GERALD BRANCH.

Branch was born in Columbia, Tenn., November 21, 1864, a son of Joseph Branch and Mary Jones Polk. His father and uncle, General Lawrence O'Brian Branch, were graduates of Princeton in 1837 and 1838. He was a student at the University of Tennessee before he entered Princeton in the fall of '85. He was graduated with the degree of B.S. in '86. After leaving college he became a student in Berlin University, remaining there a year. On his return he went into the law office of Governor Marks of Tennessee and was appointed a State Attorney, July 1, 1888. In the same year he was beaten for the Legislature by a few votes. He removed from Nashville to St. Louis and was admitted to practise there in October '99. He was Chairman of the Committee of Legal Education and Admission to the bar in Tennessee for four years, and was Chairman of the Committee on Platform and Resolution at the Democratic State Convention of 1898. He was also revenue attorney for State and County in Tennessee for '88-'91.

In St. Louis, Branch became inspector of Boilers and Engineers, and Chief Engineer of the City. He moved to Chicago and is now president of the Branch Publishing Company, and is editor of "Practical Electricity and Engineering".

He says he is a bachelor—"too busy to get married".

CASHMAN

CLARK

CONGAR

Branch, besides being an engineer, is an author, and among the books he has written are the following: Stationary Engineering (complete in three volumes) Third Edition; Vol. I. Steam Boilers and Attachments; Vol. II. Steam Engines, Heating and Electricity; Vol. III. Elevators, Mechanical Refrigeration and Steam Turbines; Conversations on Electricity, Gespraech Ueber Elektrizitaet; Electric Wiring; Heat and Light from Municipal and other Waste; Engineers' Descriptive Charts, (in Colors) showing: The Development of the Steam Boiler, The Development of the Steam Engine, The Development of the Electric Generator; The Steam Engine—Its Growth and Construction Simply Explained; The Steam Boiler—Its Growth and Construction Simply Explained; The Dynamo—Its Growth and Construction Simply Explained.

HERBERT L. BRICE.

The class has already heard, through the medium of the last Class Record, of the sad death of Herbert Brice, which occurred at a sanitarium in Flint, Mich., on May 29, 1902, where he had been for about nine months. Several years before he had suffered from an attack of typhoid fever, and his health was never good after that.

Brice's career had been one of promise and success. After graduation he studied law at Columbia University and in Lima, O., his home. He was admitted to the bar in June 1888, and entered into partnership with S. S. Wheeler, solicitor of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. He was president of the Northern Ohio Railroad Company, vice-president of one of the local banks and director of the Lima Locomotive & Machine Co., and after the death of his brother, U. S. Senator Calvin S. Brice, a great deal of his time was occupied in looking after the affairs of that estate.

Herbert was a loyal Princetonian, and a loyal '86 man. He will always be remembered for his many sterling qualities of heart and soul and for his genial and warm personality.

He was born in Lima, O., April 9, 1865.

JOHN CALHOUN.

"Jack" was born in Alleghany Co., Pa., Sept. 22, 1863, son of James Calhoun and Sarah Elizabeth Calhoun. He prepared for college at Jefferson Academy, Canonsburg, Pa., entered Princeton in the fall of '82 and was graduated with the degree of A.B. While in college he was leader of the Glee Club in his senior year.

After graduation "Jack" returned to Princeton in the fall and entered the Seminary. He stayed there only a few weeks as he had to go West with his brother, Will, who was ill. He died in Sept. '87. "Jack" remained in the West until '89 principally in California, ranching and travelling. From '89 to '92 he was assistant pastor to the Rev. Dr. Charles Wood, of the First Presbyterian Church of Germantown, Pa., and on Nov. 15, 1896, he accepted a call to the church at Mt. Airy, Philadelphia, where he is still happily and successfully located.

"Jack" usually spends his summers in the Adirondacks, but has made several trips to Europe and California. He has been Moderator of the Presbytery of Philadelphia North and has the distinction of being a trustee of three colleges: Wilson College for Women at Chambersburg, Pa., Ursinus College, and Lincoln University. In June 1909 he received the degree of D.D. from Ursinus. He has been for eight years a member of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church and a director of the Ministerial Sustentation Fund.

"Jack" says he has been blessed with good health, and weighs 175 pounds, which is going some. He still keeps up his music and has a fine glee club of twenty-five young men. He belongs to the Mt. Airy Country Club and the Automobile Club of Germantown.

On July 31, 1900 "Jack" was married to Miss Louise B. Johnstone at Conellsville, Pa. Waddell assisted the officiating clergyman, and Wills and Clark were ushers. He has two children: Sarah Elizabeth, born May 1, 1901 and John Adley, born March 5, 1905. Sarah attends Miss Mills's private school in Philadelphia, and John is too young to go to school.

WILLIAM A. CALHOUN.

William A. Calhoun, a brother of "Jack," died on September 3, 1887. He entered Princeton in '82, but had to leave on account of illness in November '83. He returned later to enter the Class of '88, but was again taken ill, and obliged to leave. He sought relief in the milder climate of the West, where he died in September '87. He was an earnest, zealous student, of quiet, manly ways, and attracted many friends to him by his loyal, simple character.

ARNOLD GUYOT CAMERON.

Guyot sends the following report:

Born March 4, 1864, at Princeton, son of Henry Clay Cameron '47, and Mina (Chollet) Cameron, niece and Godchild of Arnold Guyot, of whom I was Godchild. My preparation was entirely by my father. Entered Princeton in the fall of 1882, with the Class of '86, and was graduated in June, with the Class of '86, with the degree of B.A.

In 1888, after two years of requirements in one, by studies pursued 1886-1887, I received the degree of M.A. And in 1891, I received the degree of Ph.D., upon examination. This last degree was given for work in Greek, in Philosophy, and in Pedagogics. It was just my luck to be the first man to come up for examination under the new rules then applied, and not applied since. For Committees now examine. But with pomp of circumstance, in the Faculty Room, before the assembled Faculty, I was put through two public examinations, after a two hours' attempt at writing one had been interrupted by the constant coming in and going out of members of the Faculty, a fine accompaniment to consecutive thought. This was the first degree given for examination in Greek, after the discredited honoris causa Ph.D. went out. The audience, for many reasons, did not assist my pleasure and mental power during my examination. But out of nervousness came enough nerve to pass the examinations and the examiners. I was not turned down. And Princeton is unable to remove these three degrees which it granted me.

Present occupation? My present occupation is solving the equation between a large family and the cost of living. As the Class know, I have been for six years "out of a job". I shall not discuss this, nor its patent results, nor the causes of these results. Into that tissue of falsehoods, hypocrisies, hereditary enmities, and personal ones, due to entirely honorable reasons, I shall not go. For seventeen years, in three institutions,—and the records of various kinds are there to prove it, I was able to do the business committed unto me: to stimulate and to reach young men. What happened to break this and moral contracts, as well? But here I stop. Documentary evidence as to much of truth and falsehood fortunately exists. It can not interest at this moment. Only don't let '86 think that I have been idle these years, after the many years of teaching and editing and public speaking. Much of strain has been in life. Much of business after the deaths of my father, of my mother, and of my cousin, in California, whither I went in 1908 for a hasty trip. I have been more than busy these same years. All of which finally helped to land me this winter in the University Hospital, Philadelphia, for a long-deferred and most painful operation, which has until now, since return, rather broken me, added to previous strains, especially for ten years past.

GUYOT HALL

BIOLOGICAL AND GEOLOGICAL MUSEUM, SITUATED ON THE SOUTH CAMPU.S., OVERLOOKING CARNEGIE LAKE AND THE CANAL.

Previous occupation? You see it is decidedly "previous". But after leaving college, I did these:

The one year of post-graduate study in Princeton until 1887. Then, I went to Europe for supposably three years, but when Miami University called me in 1888, I returned to be "Professor of the French and German Languages and their Literatures" there. Miami, known as the Mother of Fraternities, is also, according to a public utterance of President Patton, the institution that has turned out in proportion to its graduates, a larger number of distinguished men than any other. Take President Benjamin Harrison, a lot of Governors, and Ambassador Whitelaw Reid as examples. The three years in Miami were fruitful in every way. An institution was to be reorganized. The reorganization was perhaps a little rich at the time, but the influence of it was the foundation of the present vigorous growth of Miami's new youth. Largely, it was Princeton influence: President Warfield '82, who rounds out this June his twenty years as President of Lafayette, where he has done wonders; R. B. C. Johnson '87, now of the Princeton Faculty, I am glad to say; Parrott '88, also of the Princeton Faculty, where equally he belongs: these men and others, Yale, Amherst, Syracuse, and others yet, did a good work. We passed happy years in that little Oxford, aided also by its two colleges for women. We learned our educational trade in a remarkable school of experience. And our reward of promotion to larger fields came quickly.

In June, 1891, I was called to Yale University, as Assistant Professor of French, in charge of the work in the Yale Sheffield Scientific School. Long live the Yale Student! And great is Yale! My relations with my large classes were extraordinarily happy. To that garden spot in life, I look back with unalloyed joy. Not that the Princeton brand was unobjectionable to some minds, nor that the aforesaid relations caused similar joy in all other human hearts,—not studental. They didn't. Nor must it ever be forgotten that what is or seems "French", ergo, its literature as well, are to many minds still in the category of the old definition given in the philosophies taught students for many years, as proofs of French spirit: "the French are fond of dancing and light wines." That is the usual estimate even unto this day. General Horace Porter put it with his usual brilliancy of statement, while he was Ambassador at Paris, when he said that the Englishman (soldier) wore blue trousers and a red coat, but the Frenchman wore red trousers and a blue coat, and so, the Frenchman was the Englishman turned upside down. After a life of much pioneering in French education, and spent in opening the glories of French thought and of French history and of French personality to thousands of our youths, most of whom I have evidence, remain converted, I have mixed charity and contempt for ignorance or prejudice in those who administrate our institutions, or who hate the graces of French life and thinking and expression. These last will outlive their narrow-minded and boor critics. And French things will pass par, when these same critics have passed out.

Well, results do not always condition the success they deserve. I resigned from Yale, and accepted a little later the chair of French in the John C. Green School of Science of Princeton University. Note that for many years after my departure, no one was made full professor of French in Sheffield, and then, a Yale man became incumbent (and there had never been a full professor of French in Sheffield before that).

That is, I left Yale in June 1897 and came to Princeton then. Princeton had peculiar complications for me. Nothing has better proved my perspicacity than that I then defined these and was assured that a new spirit prevailed and the "old things had passed away". I lean back unctiously with the superior knowledge made good by events, and say: Who was the fool? Not I. And yet I was: to have faith, and to waive a judgment born of experience and of insight. At the end of three years, I was transferred to the Academic Department from the School of Science, and my courses being thrown open to the University, the first time academic courses were thus made university ones, in French, things seemed very propitious. They grew more so, pedagogically speaking. They grew too much so. Again, as at Yale, the Princeton Student was fine. And now, I close this subject. In 1905, thrown out of Princeton, I was out. And these six years have been another story, in which many vicissitudes and adversities have been mine, but in which I would not change—I respect myself too much, which is no fatuous remark—with the men who have done wrong, and have then lied to cover it.

My wife was Miss Anne Wood Finley, of London, Ohio. Some day, the Class will saunter into the old museum, now the Faculty room in Nassau Hall. They will see the worst of the presidential paintings, that of the fifth President of Princeton, President Finley, 1761-1765. And if they note, in spite of poor paint and art, the eyes, the hair, the contour, and the complexion of President Finley, they will find striking reproductions of these in Mrs. Cameron. The atavism is not only physical, but moral as well. And by her Presbyterian and preaching ancestry and my own, I can quote Scripture. In this case and her case, I quote as my own: Proverbs XXXI, 10-31.

We were married on June 21, 1899, in the First Presbyterian Church of Oakland, Maryland. And, by-the-way, there were no cards, which explains why '86 did not get any. I was married the way I always wished to be, quietly. And, also, there were no presents, another pet theory of mine. To give them, yes; to receive them, no. This gave every blooming idiot, male and female, including those who, at heart, were glad of the theory, a chance to deblaterate upon the various kinds of crank I was. Some people who "got back" their presents, especially sent against injunctions not to send, felt—Well, I forgive them.

Children. Sweetest and best ever, nine. I wish that I had forty-four. These particular ones have brains and breeding. I hope character will continue to appear as well. Up to date (all of them born in Princeton): Constance Guyot Cameron, born October 20, 1900; Arnold Guyot Cameron, II, born June 3, 1902; David-Pierre Guyot Cameron, born April 1st, 1904 (so were Bismarck and James McCosh, on April 1st); Nicholas Guyot Cameron, born November 6th, 1905; Stéphanie Guyot Cameron, born February 3rd, 1908, died February 6th, 1908; Gerard Guyot Cameron, born February 26th, 1909. And, before this is printed, I hope to send in the new name. The names are family ones: Constance, after her great-great-grandmother, her great-grandmother, my sister, etc.; Guyot, after Arnold Guyot; Pierre, after his great-great-grandfather, Dr. Guyot's father (the David is thus not for David Milton); and so on.

As to schools for these children, that is not yet decided. As to College: "Votes for Women?" Yes (again, cf. Prov. xxxi.). The education, yes. But some features might be improved and will be. As to the boys, they will go to Yale.

Anything more about myself? Surely, I've said enough and apologize thereat. As to '86, it speaks for itself. The Class has done well these fast-going years. I'm sorry to spoil the record. As to Princeton (save my native town which still with many kindly people of all types, holds out to me a pleasant face and cordial clasp), as to Princeton institutional, my interest is merely academic. But as to '86, my interest is personal and, therefore, powerful. I have felt for many years that '86 did not have proper representation in proportion to its merits, in the the affairs of Princeton institutional. Recent years have changed that much. And the almost certainty of '86 men being added to the powers that be, in various phases of Princeton life, gives

J CARTER

S. T. CARTER

CHARLTON

CARY

promise of a larger per cent of influence for the brains and the reputation of the Class. In addition to this (Erdman, Evans, Farrand, Harris, T., Harris, W., Howe, McClellan, MacLaren, Paton,—all prominent in actual Princeton affairs), I have felt that one man, and when I say, one, I mean no invidious distinctions,—should have a place of honor in Princeton. I mean Rodman Wanamaker. His executive ability, his mastery of many affairs, his liberality, his public spirit, his character, mark him in America as in Europe, as a power. Princeton, always slow to recognize its sons outside a small favored circle, should recognize this particular instance. He would undoubtedly bring into Princeton affairs breadth of view, the crying need of Princeton educationally and personally. There are other men who should find place in other phases of Princeton work. But, recalling that I have no vote, I need not suggest other phases in re '86 and Princeton. And now let '86 line up and let me see them: Men, Women, Children, Dolls, Teddies, and the Whole.

JAMES COCHRAN CARTER.

"Jim" was born on June 4, 1864, in the classy village of Pluckemin, N. J., a son of Thomas Carter and Mary Cochran. He prepared for college at Everson's Collegiate School, New York, and entered Princeton in '82. "Jim" was quite some baseball catcher in his day, and he was one of the few men who could hold down the redoubtable and catapultistic "Bick".

After graduation "Jim" was with the Greenwich Bank, New York, for five or six years, and later with the Monroe Bank for a couple of years. Previous to this he was in the real estate and iron business. About five years ago he returned to his first love, and he is now receiving teller of the Greenwich Bank, 102 Hudson St., New York.

"Jim" was married to Miss Carrie W. Crane at Boonton, N. J., his home, on Oct. 8, 1889. He has two children, a girl and a boy: Miriam Cochran Carter, born Jan. 16, 1891 and Thomas Donald Carter, born Jan. 23, 1893. Miss Carter is now a junior in Mt. Holyoke College, and "Jim" says his boy will "go to Princeton, of course, if anywhere".

"Jim" writes:

During all these years I have moved along the even tenor of my way, so even, in fact, that there is not much in it of special interest. I do not have much time for anything outside of my bank work. In fact, I would give a good deal to be able to meet with the fellows once in a while, or to get to a Yale game now and then. I have not seen a football game since Poe kicked his goal.

I have been a member of the Board of Directors of the Boonton National Bank, and of the Boonton Building Association. In politics, I served for two terms on the County Board of Chosen Freeholders. I have been a member of the Board of Education for nearly eight years, serving as president for one year. And let me say in passing that our school has sent a number of good boys to Princeton, several of whom are there now.

SAMUEL THOMAS CARTER, JR.

"Sam" was born Aug. 28, 1866, a son of the Rev. Dr. Samuel T. Carter and Alama Pratt Carter. He was educated at the High School of Huntington, L. I., where his father was pastor of a Presbyterian Church, entered Princeton in '82 and was graduated in '86, with the degree of A.B.

He studied law at Columbia University and received the degree of LL.B.; also that of A.M. at Princeton. He was connected with the well known law firm of Lord, Day & Lord from '88 to '92. He then started in for himself until 1894, when he went into partnership with Edward H. Fallows, Amherst '86, under the firm name of Carter & Fallows. He is now in partnership with William S. Haskell, Yale '92. "Sam" has written a book on "The Inheritance Tax Laws of the State of New York". He has had two tramping trips in Switzerland and has been counsel or associate counsel for one or two legislative committees. He is a member of the Bar Association, Princeton Club, Richmond Hill Golf Club, Underwriters' Club and Morristown Field Club.

He was married Oct. 21, 1897 at Morristown, N. J., to Miss Anna Washburn Burnham and has three children: Gladys B. Carter, born Oct. 6, 1898; Burnham Carter, born March 21, 1901 and Samuel T. Carter, 3rd, born Oct. 6, 1904. Gladys goes to the Veltin School, Burnham to the Collegiate School, and Samuel to the Barnard School of Fine Arts.

"Sam" writes:

My chief interest in recent years, outside of home and office, has been in the work of the Berkshire Industrial Farm, an institution for the reclaiming of delinquent boys. As vice-president of its Board of Directors and chairman of its committee on the admission of boys I have given considerable time to the work of the institution, and in speaking for it, and the boy problem has become a very real as well as a very interesting one. My other outside interests are as Vice-President of the American Christian Hospital at Cesarea, President of the Stuyvesant Mortgage Company, Secretary of the Underwriters Club, one of the directors of Union Settlement, and President of the Musurgia Society.

I have tried to keep up a little with music, and, during the last few winters, every Tuesday night, some thirty or thirty-five men have met at our house in the city to sing together, and it has been a most enjoyable experience. I am a strong believer in "out of doors," and each Fall spend some time in the Maine woods with two or three other Princeton men.

JOHN WATSON CARY.

Cary was born on Nov. 11, 1862, in Milwaukee, Wis., son of John Watson Cary and Isabella Brinkerhoff. A brother, Melbert B. Cary, is in the Class of '72. He went to Markham's Academy, Milwaukee, and to the University of Wisconsin at Madison, Wis., entering Princeton as a junior in '84, and graduating with the degree of A.B.

From '86 to '87 he traveled in Europe and from 1888 to 1898, he was secretary of A. H. Andrews & Co., New York, dealers in bank and office furniture. From 1899 to 1903, he ran the Andrews School Furnishing Co., dealers in school supplies. From 1904 to 1908, he was an agent of the Equitable Life Assurance Society and from 1909 to date he has been a copy writer for J. Walter Thompson Co., general advertising agents for newspapers and magazines—laying out advertising campaigns, and writing and designing advertisements.

Cary was married at Chicago, Oct. 2, 1889, to Miss Mae Alice Stone and has one daughter, Margaret Stone, born Jan. 5, 1894, who will finish her course at the Brearley School this year and then go to Smith College.

Cary has been an active member of the Seventh Regiment since 1887.

JOSEPH H. CASHMAN.

"Cash" was born in Watertown, Mass., March 31, 1863, son of Daniel Cashman and Hannah Barrett. He was prepared for Princeton at Philips Andover and was graduated in '86 with the degree of B.S.

79 HALL.

GIFT OF THE CLASS OF '79. LOCATED AT THE HEAD OF PROSPECT STREET, WHERE THE VARIOUS CLUBS ARE SITUATED.

From '86 to '92 he was in the business department of The Boston Globe; from '92 to 1903 he was with The Chicago Tribune, part of this time representing the same paper in New York in its advertising department; from 1903 to 1905, he was advertising manager of The Philadelphia Record, and in 1905 he became connected with The Wall Street Journal, of which he is now business manager. This is the recognized financial daily paper of the country. "Cash" is secretary and director of Dow, Jones & Co., publishers of The Journal, and is vice-president of Doremus & Co., advertising agents.

"Joe" was married on June 17, 1903 to Miss Katherine Blatter, daughter of the late Charles Blatter, a well-known Philadelphia manufacturer, and has one daughter, Elizabeth, born March 1, 1910.

JOHN REIFF CASSEL.

"Pop" was born at Cedars, Montgomery County, Pa., on Nov. 24, 1856, a son of Daniel Cassel & Mary Reiff. He went to North Wales Academy, Franklin & Marshall Preparatory School, and Franklin & Marshall College, entering Princeton in Sept. '84, graduating in '86 with the degree of A.B., receiving that of A.M. subsequently.

On leaving college, "Pop" entered the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania and was graduated in June '88 with the degree of LL.B. Since then he has been practicing law and lecturing on Commercial Law at the Peirce School of Business in Philadelphia, June 1889 to 1905. He is a member of the American Academy of Political Social Science, Young Republicans of Philadelphia, Law Academy and Law Association. He says he is unmarried; ergo, no children.

J. H. CASTERLINE.

Casterline entered Princeton in Sept. '82 and left in January '83. Since that time the Secretary has had no information concerning him, although it was stated that he was principal of a public school at Irvington, N. J.

JOHN TYLER CHARLTON.

Charlton was born at Louisville, Ky., on Nov. 29, 1860, son of Mathew Charlton and Grace Malcolmson. He was prepared for college at Louisville High School, entered Princeton in Sept. '85 and was graduated with the degree of A.B. in '86.

He studied for the ministry and was graduated from the McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, in 1889, and has had pastorates at Ida Grove, Iowa, Omro, Wis., Seymour and Noblesville, Ind., and he is now pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Sidney, O.

He was married on June 18, 1902 to Miss Bertha Brown, of Madison, Wis., and has two children: Malcolm Charlton, born June 8, 1905 and Louise Charlton, born June 11, 1910. The boy, of course, is bound for Princeton.

CHARLES HOWARD CHETWOOD.

Chetwood was born in Elizabeth, N. J., Oct. 1866, son of Bradbury Chandler Chetwood and Eleanor Keyes Chetwood. He prepared for Princeton in private schools in New York, entered Princeton in Sept. '82 and left at the end of '83, for the purpose of studying medicine.

Chetwood has the distinction of being the first M.D. in the class. He was graduated in 1887, fourth in a class of 125, from Bellevue Medical School, New York. He served eighteen months on the surgical staff of Bellevue Hospital and remained there until '89. He was appointed a clinical assistant in the department of surgery of the New York Polyclinic College and Hospital in 1893, and instructor in surgery in 1895, lecturer in surgery in '96, adjunct professor in '97, and full professor in '98.

Chetwood began practice as the assistant of Dr. Edward L. Keyes, of New York, and has been his associate and partner. He is a special visiting surgeon to Bellevue Hospital, special consulting surgeon to St. John's Hospital since 1903, and from 1903 to 1909 he has been secretary of the faculty of Polyclinic Medical Society. In Jan. 1911 he was appointed special consulting surgeon of J. Hood Wright Hospital.

Chetwood stands very high in his profession, and as a specialist in genito-urinary surgery is regarded as one of the leaders in New York. "Chet" is the author of several text books, and many articles pertaining to the special branch of surgery in which he is an expert.

He was married in New York in June 1892 to Miss Jeanette Campbell Mecke, and has no children. He belongs to the Princeton and Century Clubs of New York, the Rockaway Hunt Club and is vice-president of the Metropolitan Opera Club.

LOWRIE CHILDS.

"Kid" was born in Omaha, Neb., May 10, 1865, son of Charles Childs and Catherine J. McCaslin. He was prepared for college at Greylock Institute, South Williamstown, Mass., entered Princeton in Sept. '82, and much to our regret, left college in January '84 to go into cattle raising out West. The lure of Princeton was still upon him, however, and he returned to the old burg later, and was graduated an A.B. with the Class of '91. He has the distinction of being the father of the CLASS BOY of '91.

From Dec. '91 to Sept. '94 "Kid" was in the real estate business in Pittsburgh. Since then he has been a live stock commission agent and real estate man in South Omaha.

He was married June 6, 1892 to Miss Hortense E. Ferguson, of Hudson, N. Y., and has one child: Charles Everard Childs, born June 6, 1892, the CLASS BOY of '91. Charles will probably go to Cornell next year. As "Kid" says: "I don't care much for Cornell, but the engineering course is good".

JAMES WOODWARD CLARK.

"Wood" was born Jan. 7, 1866, at Indiana, Pa., son of Silas M. Clark (who was a judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania) and Clara E. Clark. He prepared at the State Normal School at Indiana, entered Princeton in Sept. '83, and was graduated A.B. in '86, receiving the degree of A. M. later. While in college he sang on the Glee Club. His brother, Steele Clark, was in '85.

CAMPBELL HALL
NEAR THE SITE OF THE OLD GYMNASIUM
GIFT OF THE CLASS OF 1877

From '86 to '88 he was professor of Latin at the Indiana Normal School. Then he took up the study of law, was admitted to the bar and ever since has practiced his profession. He has been a member of the local board of school trustees, twice chairman of the Democratic County Committee, a dozen times a delegate to the Democratic State Convention, twice a Democratic candidate for District Attorney, and a candidate for State Senator in '96. "Wood's" great difficulty, like that of Francis Fisher Kane, is that he is one of the few living Democrats in Pennsylvania, or that he is picked to run at the wrong time. For years, like F. F., he has stood high in the councils of his party. On Aug. 5, 1909, he was nominated for Auditor General by the State Convention at Harrisburg, but later when the horrible details were disclosed at the polls there was "nothing doing."

"Wood" writes: "I have been employed by several corporations of my native county, and have figured, more or less, in politics, but being a Democrat in Pennsylvania resembles too much a Republican in Texas. However, as a candidate, I have carried districts never before included in the minority column".

"Wood" comes back for all reunions, accompanied by his voice, which always gives us so much pleasure and enjoyment. He belongs to the University Club and the Alumni Association of Pittsburg, and has been president of the Cosmopolitan Club of Indiana.

HERBERT HUGH CLAXTON.

Claxton was born in Cambridge, England, on Sept. 9, 1858, and entered college in 1882, graduating with the degree of C.E. He has followed that profession ever since. From '86 to '88 he was rodman and instrument man with the Pennsylvania Railroad; in '88-'89 engaged in dock building for the Manhattan Elevated Railway; '89-'90, construction work for the New York Central and the Jamaica (West Indies) Railway; from '90 to '92, with the Phoenix & Pottsville Bridge Co., and the Johnson Street Railway Company; from '92 to '98, with New York City as computer and draughtsman; from 1898 up to the present time he has been in the employ of the City of New York, as assistant engineer in the Department of Public Works, Borough of the Bronx.

Herbert belongs to the Princeton Club and the Oratorio Society of New York and is still a bachelor. He turns up for all reunions of '86.

HORACE NEWTON CONGAR, JR.

No one has been more sincerely missed from recent reunions and no one will be more generally missed from our Twenty-fifth Anniversary than "Shag". The place he left is empty; it can never be filled, but a great deal of the joy and the life of '86 has departed with the untimely death of one who had so thoroughly enmeshed himself in the hearts of every '86 man.

"Shag" entered Princeton from Columbia, and at once became a factor, and a prominent one, in the life and activities of '86. His unflinching humor and geniality endeared him to every one, and where "Shag" was, there, indeed, was "The head of the table". No '86 man will ever forget his "gambols on the green", his joyous presence and his positive genius for fun and enjoyment.

After graduation he became connected with The Newark Sunday Call, where his ready wit and clever skill with the pen found abundant outlet and employment. He also contributed characteristic articles to The New York Sun, and there are few men in '86 whose lives were not made brighter and sunnier by some unexpected and radiantly brilliant communication from the "Shagbird" apropos of something or of nothing. Later he went to Washington as the Secretary of Congressman Lehibach, of Newark, and on the expiration of Lehibach's term, he became Secretary to the Mayor of Newark.

At all reunions of '86, and indeed at all gatherings of Princeton men, "Shag" was the bright and shining star. After our Decennial, however, his health began to fail and from that time until his death, he steadily declined in health and vigor, never losing, however, any traces of the buoyant and enthusiastic temperament so characteristic of him. He was obliged to give up active work, and was confined to his home. In the Spring of 1898 it was found that he was suffering from Bright's disease, and on April 21, 1898, he died at his home, surrounded by his family. The funeral was held on April 23, with services at his house, and interment at Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, Newark.

"Shag" was a son of the late Horace N. Congar, at one time U. S. Consul at Hong Kong, China, where Horace was born Oct. 8, 1864.

DAVID EDGAR CROZIER.

Crozier was born January 20, 1863, at Olney, Ill., son of John Crozier and Harriet N. Williamson Crozier. He attended Evanston High School and Lake Forest Academy, entering Princeton in Sept. '84 and graduating in '86 with the degree of A.B. While in college he was the accompanist of the Glee Club.

After graduation, from Sept. '86 to June '89, Crozier taught in York Collegiate Institute, York, Pa., and helped to send several boys to Princeton; from Sept. '89 to Nov. '98, he was organist of Market Square Presbyterian Church, Harrisburg, Pa., and teacher of piano and organ. From Nov. 1898 to Sept. 1901, he was organist of Holland Memorial Church, Philadelphia, and from Sept. 1, 1901 to Jan. 1, 1902, he was organist of "Cully" Erdman's Church in Germantown, Pa.; from Jan. 1, 1902, to Nov. 25, 1907, he served in the same capacity at Pine Street Presbyterian Church, Harrisburg, and since then at Calvary Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia.

Crozier belongs to the Musical Club, the Manuscript Society, of which he is a director, and the Melody Club of Philadelphia, and in addition to his duties as church organist teaches the piano and organ, and is conductor of the Germantown Choral Society. He is also a member of the American Organ Players' Club.

In 1895, after touring England, France, Holland and Belgium, he studied the organ and musical theory under Guilmant, the distinguished French musician and organist.

He was married on December 17, 1907, at Germantown to Miss Margaret Hall Garret, but he has, as he writes, "with regret", no children.

GEORGE HENRY DAVIS.

The "Judge" was born in Peoria, Ill., on Nov. 10, 1864, son of William H.

CLEVELAND MEMORIAL TOWER

Davis and Elizabeth J. Gosling. He prepared at the High School there, entered Princeton in '82 and to the regret of everyone in the class, left in November '83.

He took up architectural draughting as his profession, but in '89 he was in poor health and went to Arizona and then to Pasadena, Cal., with his mother and brother. He has traveled a great deal in California, Mexico, Florida and Europe for his pleasure and health, and in recent years he has not been practicing his profession.

The "Judge" has never lost his interest in and devotion for '86, and gets to reunions whenever he can.

He was married on February 4, 1903, at Berkeley, Cal., to Miss Julia Cullom, a niece of U. S. Senator Cullom, of Illinois, and has two little "Judges": George Cullom Davis, born Jan. 13, 1905, and Shelby Cullom Davis, born April 1, 1909.

The "Judge" says that Mrs. "Judge" and he are coming on for "Old Home Week" and will stay all the way through as they did at our twenty year reunion, while the little "Judges" will receive reports by wireless.

CHARLES M. DE CAMP.

"Reddy" DeCamp came to Princeton from Emporia, Kansas. Entering the Class of '83 and dropping into '86 he was graduated with '86. While in college he played on the 'Varsity football team for two years, and was captain of the team that beat Yale in '85.

He studied law in Kansas City, but the Secretary has no means of knowing whether he was admitted to the bar. He has been East several times, engaged in mining and other enterprises. He has not communicated with the Secretary for twenty years, although he has been "in touch" with him and several other classmates. Woodrow writes that "Reddy" lives in Denver, but there is no definite information as to whom or what he is doing.

JOHN H. DENNY.

"Jack" Denny came to Princeton from Baltimore in September '82 and left the class in October '83, graduating with the Class of '87. He was for some time in business in New York and Baltimore, and when the war with Spain broke out, he enlisted as a private with the 43rd U. S. Infantry and went to the Philippines. On January 11, 1900, while he was going to Dao as guard for a lot of ammunition he was shot from ambush by the insurgents. Of his death, a companion wrote as follows to his father, Col. Denny:

Denny showed great nerve and courage, and tried to keep on shooting after he had been struck with a bullet, which had passed through his spine, paralyzing him from the hip down. He never uttered a groan, or showed any sign of pain. He lived an hour after he was hit. He knew, however, that he was past human aid, and he passed off as quietly as though he was going to sleep. We buried him with military honors in the cemetery at Dao, his Captain officiating, with the entire company as escort.

WILLIAM SILLIMAN DODD.

Dodd was born in Bloomfield, N. J., Feb. 27, 1865, son of Amzi Dodd and Jane Frame. His father is a graduate of the Class of '41, which he led. He was at one time a Vice Chancellor of New Jersey, and president of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co. of Newark, N. J. His mother died in Feb. 1911. Dodd prepared for college at the Newark Academy. He entered the Class of '86 at Williams College, left there at the end of freshman year, entered Princeton in the fall of '83 and remained with '86 for two years, when he dropped into '87, with which class he was graduated.

He taught from 1887 to 1889, studied law at Columbia from '89 to '91, was a general practitioner from '91 to '95, and from 1895 to 1907 he was attorney and associate counsel of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co. From 1907 to date he has been connected with the Hampton Institute at Hampton, Va., of which his brother-in-law is president. Of this work he says:

My present work, undertaken at the request of the Board of Trustees of the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute, Hampton, Va., is wide in extent, important in its bearing, and absorbing in its interest. I am investigating and advising colored business concerns throughout the entire Southland, and particularly insurance organizations of which there are 200 duly incorporated and reporting to the various Insurance Departments. I meet many graduates of colleges both of this and other countries, though I have not recently had the good fortune to meet any of the members of '86. My affection of my Alma Mater and my interest in the members of the best class she ever sent forth increases as time goes on.

Dodd's connection with Princeton is a very close and interesting one, as the following account from him will show:

I have never felt justified in claiming full membership in any particular class, though my affection and interest are entirely centered in '86. The connection of my family with Princeton extends over a period of a hundred years. My grandfather, Dr. Joseph S. Dodd, and his brother, Amzi, graduated together in the class of 1813; my father led the class of 1841 and my uncle, Stephen G. Dodd, that of 1846. I entered the class of '86 at Williams and left there at the end of Freshman year. I became a member of '86 at Princeton in its sophomore year and continued with it for two years. I then was absent for a year, finally graduating with '87. In two particulars, my case, I think, is most exceptional. First, because of the long connection of my family with my Alma Mater, and secondly, because of my varied collegiate career. I am, as you see, a sort of collegiate hybrid, and as such I am not strictly entitled to the privilege of being regarded as a member of the class of 1886 as much as I would like to be.

The class is only too glad to have Dodd on its membership roll. Once an Eighty-six man, always an Eighty-six man.

Dodd was married on July 19, 1893 to Miss Mary Johnson of Oswego, New York. He has no children.

THOMAS J. DOLAN.

"Tommy" is a son of Thomas Dolan, one of the leading citizens of Philadelphia. He was born in 1865, went to school at St. Paul's, entered Princeton in September '82 and left September '83. "Tommy" has sent no report for the Record. The secretary sees him occasionally, however. He is not in business, and hasn't been since he left Princeton. He is deeply interested in the National Guard. He is married to Miss Isabel W. Hoffman, and has one son, Thomas Dolan 3d.

GYMNASIUM
ERECTED ON THE SOUTH CAMPUS, TO THE EAST OF THE RAILROAD STATION.

ANTHONY WOODWARD DURELL.

Durell was born at Crosswicks, N. J., March 8, 1865, son of Edward Hicks Durell and Hannah A. Woodward. He had two brothers who went to Princeton, Fletcher '79, and the late William (or "Flip") '89 who will be remembered as a remarkably fine baseball player. Durell went to Pennington Seminary, entered Princeton in '82, and was graduated A.B. in '86.

Since leaving college Durell has been employed in the United States Customs service and he is now Deputy Collector of Customs, at Philadelphia. He writes:

My years in Governmental service have been pleasantly spent, but with no great remunerative return. In addition to my regular official duties, I have been a member and secretary of our Board of Civil Service Examiners, appointed on departmental commission for special work, and have assisted in compiling work on the various tariff acts as enacted. My athletic diversion is golf, but I am and ever shall be, I am convinced, a "dub." I happen to be at the present time President of the Woodbury (N. J.) Country Club.

Durell was married on March 12, 1892 to Miss Alfaretta Kemper French, who died in February 1896. On April 22, 1900, he was married to Miss Olga Francis Burchard at Philadelphia and has had three children: Anthony W. jr., born Nov. 28, 1895; Dudley Burchard, born April 30, 1901 and Lilian, born Oct. 1, 1908. Dudley died in 1901. Anthony is now at Penn Charter School in Philadelphia, and will enter Princeton in 1913.

GEORGE TRYON EDDY.

Eddy was born in Belvidere, Ill., Nov. 22, 1863, son of David Rowe Eddy and Sarah Tryon Eddy. He prepared for college at the New York State Normal School at Brockport, N. Y., entered Princeton in '82, was graduated an A. B., and subsequently received the degree of A.M.

He taught in Sedgwick Institute, Great Barrington, Mass., from Sept. '86 to June '87, studied at the Seminary from Sept. '87 to March '91, where he held the Greek fellowship. He won the New Testament fellowship there and remained at Princeton an extra year. In March '91 he accepted a call to the Presbyterian Church at Beverly, N. J., and subsequently filled pastorates as follows: March '95 to March '97 at the Washington and Compton Avenue Church, St. Louis, Mo.; March '97 to Jan. '02 at Boonville, Mo.; Jan. '02 to April '10 at Huntingdon, L. I., where "Sam" Carter's father was at one time pastor.

Later he became associated with the New York Public Library (central branch, Astor Library) as reviser of cataloguing. After May 1911 he will be located in the beautiful new Library at 42d St. & Fifth Avenue. He still, however, does considerable preaching.

Eddy was married June 4, 1890 to Miss Rose Gabriel of Cleveland, O., and has had three children: Alfred Gabriel, born June 10, 1891; Priscilla Alden and Eunice Catharine, TWINS, born Dec. 29, 1895. Eunice died on March 14, 1897. Alfred is in business, having finished his preparatory course. He hopes to enter some technical school. The daughter is still in the High School.

BERTRIC EGBERT.

"Eggy" was born in Mercer County, Pennsylvania, Jan. 5, 1865, son of Dr. Albert G. Egbert and Eliza Phipps Egbert. Dr. Egbert was a well known oil operator, and at one time represented the Franklin, Pa., district in Congress. His brothers all attended Princeton: Seneca '84, Albert ex-'93, Richard '95; also a cousin, Victor '95. He attended Andover and was in the same class as Tracy Harris, "Joe" Cashman and "Vic" Gause. He entered Princeton in '82 and was graduated in '86 with the degree of B.S. While he was in college he played on the championship lacrosse team.

After graduation he took a position in the Columbia Gas Co., at Franklin, Pa., and from '88 to '92 he was with the Eclipse Oil Works, of the same place, one of the largest branches of the Standard Oil Co. On Jan. 1, 1892, he became Superintendent of the works, an important and responsible position. Later he became connected with the Pure Oil Co., but he is now a constructing engineer in oil refinery work, locating, planning, erecting and operating oil properties. He has done some pioneer's work in refining low grade and waste animal oils.

"Eggy" has attended all stated reunions of '86.

He was married to Clara May Irwin, of Jacksonville, Fla., on April 10, 1895, and has one daughter, Helen, born Nov. 10, 1899.

WILLIAM SIMPSON ELDER.

"Billy" was born in Warsaw, O., Oct. 15, 1858, a son of John G. Elder and Jane Moffitt. He was educated at Jefferson Academy, Cannonsburg, Pa., entered Princeton in '82 and was graduated an A.B. in '86.

After graduation "Billy" became a reporter on The New York Star, of which "Brer" Gaines was in charge. He later went on The Commercial Advertiser, and stayed there till April '87 when he went to Deadwood, Dakota Territory, and became editor of The Pioneer, meanwhile studying law in the office of ex-Senator Moody. He was admitted to the Bar in Sept. '89, and has since then been practicing law, and has been engaged in mining and other enterprises. He organized and became president of the Imperial Gold Mining & Milling Co. in 1899 and organized also the Black Hills Trust & Savings Bank of Deadwood, & S. L. Dunham & Co., a real estate and bond organization of which he is president and counsel.

He has been active in politics and was a member of the City Council of Deadwood in 1901. He was the citizens' candidate for Mayor on April 17, 1906, and was defeated by 16 votes, after the most stubborn fight ever witnessed in an election in that city. "Billy" ran on a "reform and anti-gambling" platform and was urged to contest the election, but declined to do so.

He was married on Sept. 25, 1893 at Chicago, to Miss Maud Eccles, and has one son, Duncan Eccles, born Sept. 6, 1898.

"Billy" shows the proper '86 spirit by coming on from time to time from way out in South Dakota to Princeton.

Three years ago he established The Deadwood Telegram, an evening paper, which is now recognized as the leading "progressive" Republican newspaper of western South Dakota.

DAVIS

ELDER

ELSING

HENRY CHARLES ELSING.

"Buck" was born in Holland, Jan. 11, 1863, son of Thaddeus Elsing and Anne Elsing. He was prepared for college at Lake Forest Academy, entering Princeton in September '82, and graduating with the degree of A.B. in '86, followed in course by that of A.M. A brother, the Rev. William T. Elsing, of New York, is in the Class of '79.

After graduation, "Buck" became a teacher and private tutor, teaching at the Princeton Preparatory School and a female seminary at Lakewood, N. J., Miss Farrington's School for Girls. In June '87, he went West to Deadwood to join "Billy" Elder in newspaper work, but the scheme fell through, and "Buck" trekked it, amid considerable difficulty, to Montana, the Yellowstone, Seattle, Tacoma, British Columbia, Portland, Ore., and Vancouver Barracks, Wash., where he finally got a place as teacher for officers' children. He remained there until the end of June '88 when he came back east and studied medicine at New York University, graduating in 1890 as first honor man. Since then he has been a physician, practicing at Bellevue, Harlem and North Brother Island Contagious Disease Hospitals. After a short time at Hackensack (mercy!) "Buck" settled down in Ridgefield Park, Bergen County, N. J., where he has built up a good practice.

"Buck" is a member of the Bergen County Medical Association and the American Medical Association.

He was married on Sept. 10, 1896, at Mecklenburgh, Schuylcr Co., N. Y., to Miss Lucy Thompson and has two children, daughters: Katherine, born May 1, 1898, and Margaret, born Nov. 29, 1899.

CHARLES ROSENBURY ERDMAN.

"Cully" was born at Fayetteville, N. Y., on July 20, 1866, son of the Rev. Dr. William Jacob Erdman and Henrietta J. Rosenbury. He was educated at Jamestown Collegiate Institute, Jamestown, N. Y. His brother, the late William Erdman, was in '84. He entered Princeton in '82 and was graduated with the degree of A.B.

From '86 to '87 he taught English literature and elocution in Franklin School, Germantown, Pa. From '87 to '89 he was at the Seminary and was also an instructor at Evelyn College. The years '89 and '90 were passed in travel and study abroad. In '90 and '91 he was again at the Seminary, graduating therefrom in May '91. On May 8, '91 he was ordained by the Presbytery of Philadelphia North and was installed pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Overbrook, Pa., a suburb of the Quaker City. He remained there till 1897, when he became pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Germantown, Pa., serving that church until the spring of 1906, when he was elected to the chair of Practical Theology in Princeton Seminary. He still holds that exalted position.

During his pastorates at Overbrook and Germantown, and since serving as a professor at the Seminary, "Cully" for seventeen years has addressed the Sunday afternoon service at the Y. M. C. A. department of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Philadelphia on over three hundred different Sundays. He still speaks there twice a month during the winter, preaching Sunday morning and evening in Philadelphia churches, and on the alternate Sundays in churches in New York and elsewhere. He usually speaks at summer Bible conferences at Northfield, Grove City, Silver Bay, Asheville, etc.

Since 1906, "Cully" has been a member of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, New York. He was a commissioner to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Buffalo in 1906, and a delegate to the "Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America" at Philadelphia in 1908. He was a delegate to the World Missionary Conference in Edinburgh in 1910. In 1907 and 1910 he supplied the pulpits of Metropolitan Tabernacle, London (Dr. Spurgeon's) and Westminster Chapel (G. Campbell Morgan's) and addressed the Mildmay and Mundelsley conferences in England in 1907.

"Cully" published "The Ruling Elder" in 1904, and "Sunday Afternoons with Railroad Men" in 1907. He is president of the Alumni Association of Princeton Seminary, 1910-1911.

"Cully" writes: "Speaking of the more important matter of Princeton and '86, it will be noted that a remarkably large number of '86 men are now permanent residents of Princeton—Cameron, Walter Harris, Howe, MacLaren, Paton and myself. We all extend a cordial welcome, both on the occasion of "Old Home Week" and at all other times to any member of the illustrious and beloved Class of '86".

"Cully" was married on June 1, 1892, to Miss Mary Estelle Pardee, of Germantown, Pa., and has four children: Calvin Pardee, born Aug. 16, 1893; Mary Pardee, born March 4, 1895; Charles R., jr., born August 25, 1897, and Alice, born March 24, 1904. Pardee was graduated at Lawrenceville in 1910, and will enter Princeton in Sept. 1911. Mary enters at Dobb's Ferry, N. Y., in Sept. 1911 and "Karl" (Charles, jr.) enters Princeton in Sept. 1914.

FREDERICK EVANS.

Was born in Llangynidr, (wow!) Brecknockshire, Wales, England, April 28, 1865, a son of the Rev. Dr. Frederick Evans and Frances Williams, both of Wales. He came to this country when a year and a half old, and has lived with his parents at Scranton, Pa., New York City and Franklin, Pa., where his father had pastorates, until Sept. '82, when he entered Princeton from the High School of Franklin.

After graduation, he followed newspaper work on The Ledger and The Times of Philadelphia, The Tribune of New York and became managing editor and finally editor of The Newark (N. J.) Daily Advertiser. He left that paper in 1896 to become associated with Garret A. Hobart, Republican candidate for Vice President in the McKinley campaign. When Mr. Hobart was inaugurated in March, 1897, he appointed the Class Secretary as his Secretary and in this pleasant and delightful association, the Class Secretary continued until the Vice President's death in November, 1899. He remained at Washington for a few months with Senator Frye, president pro tem. of the United States Senate, and resigned in Feb. 1900, to become Secretary of the Rapid Transit Subway Construction Co. and the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. of New York, corporations engaged in the building, equipment and operation of the New York Subway. In May 1903 he resigned to become Secretary of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, with headquarters at Newark, N. J., which owns or controls a large percentage of the gas, electric and trolley companies of the State, and of which "Tom" McCarter '88 is president. He left that company in 1908, and since then has been assistant secretary of the Board of Water Supply of New York, which is engaged in the work of constructing a huge water supply system for the metropolis, conveying water from the Catskill Mountains to the city. From this position he resigned in April, 1911.

BLAIR HALL TOWER
AT THE ENTRANCE OF THE CAMPUS, NEAR THE RAILROAD STATION

The Class Secretary lives at the Princeton Club in New York, and is also a member of the University Club of New York, Metropolitan Club of Washington and Nassau Club of Princeton. He is Chairman of the Committee on Publicity of the Graduate Council of Princeton University, but his only claim to distinction is that he is secretary of the Class of '86. He is still—very still—not married.

FRANK BATEMAN EVERITT.

Everitt was born March 8, 1866, at Stroudsburg, Pa., son of the late Rev. Dr. Benjamin S. Everitt '56 and Helen C. Everitt. He prepared at the Jamesburg Institute, Jamesburg, N. J., entered Princeton in '82 and was graduated in '86, with the degree of A.B., receiving the degree of A.M. in '89.

From Sept. '86 to June '87 he taught classics and music at Jamesburg Institute, and from Sept. '87 to May '90, he was a student at the Seminary. From June '90 to August '91 he was pastor of a church in Kansas City, Mo.; from Aug. '91 to Feb. 1901 at Trenton, N. J.; from Feb. 1901 to June 1903 he was Superintendent of the Young People's Association Work at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York. His health broke down in 1903, and he was compelled to go to the country and took a pastorate at New Park, Pa., where he is now, much improved in health.

Before graduation from the Seminary, Everitt was for four years State Secretary of Christian Endeavor Work in New Jersey. He was a Vice President of the State Union for several years. He is also secretary of his class at the Seminary.

He was married on Sept. 11, 1895, at Stockton, N. J., to Miss Sara Helena Van Dyke, and has three children: Kenneth Van Dyke, born Oct. 16, 1896; Helen Gladys, born May 4, 1903, and James Donald, born Sept. 24, 1906. Kenneth is in Township High School and Helen at the public school.

Everitt writes:

My ministry has been a varied one. For thirteen years I was really in city mission work. Twelve years of the thirteen were in connection with institutional churches, that is, churches on the Y. M. C. A. plan with all manner of clubs and organizations, open every day and night. In Trenton, I had the mission chapel of the First Presbyterian Church, which grew very rapidly, until in 1899 we organized an independent church of 344 members. Its work was very exacting, yet interesting. From there, through the Rev. Dr. Purves, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, in New York City, I was called to take up the large and promising work of their Young People's Association on the East Side at Sixty-third Street and First Avenue. This was one of the largest Institutional plants in New York City, costing annually over $11,000. It was in the heart of the tenement district and was prospering finely, when my health broke and I was compelled to give up city work entirely. Since then I have been in this large and influential church in lower York County, Pa. Soon after graduating from college, I became prominently connected with the Young People's Christian Endeavor movement in New Jersey, and was its first State Secretary and Treasurer, which position I held until I left the State in 1890. When I returned in 1891, I was again officially recognized, being for several years, a Vice-President, then its first Superintendent of Evangelistic Work. In that connection, I had the planning of much pioneer and aggressive work and the management of many of their State Conventions.

I am secretary of my Seminary Class and have issued several histories of the class and arranged for all the reunions, so that I can sympathize fully with the work of our worthy secretary.

Aside from this, I have nothing of note to record. Mine has been the humble path of the Christian Ministry, which I love more and more, and of which I am not ashamed. I love to serve my God and my fellow men and the happiest days of my life are those when I have done something that helps another soul.

WILSON FARRAND.

Wilson was born in Newark, N. J., on Sept. 22, 1862, a son of Samuel Ashbel Farrand and Louise Wilson. Two of his brothers are Dr. Livingston Farrand '88 and Max Farrand '92, professor of history at Yale. Wilson prepared for college at Newark Academy, of which for many years his father was head master. He entered college in Sept. '82, received the degree of A.B. in '86, A.M. in '89 and the honorary degree of A.M. from Columbia University in 1908.

Wilson's career in college was highly successful. He stood among the first few men in the class, was very active in Clio Hall, and won the Lynde debate. On leaving Princeton, he became an assistant editor of Scribner's Magazine and was associated with that publication from Oct. '86 to March '87, when he became a teacher and associate headmaster of his father's school, the Newark Academy, one of the foremost "prep" schools of this country. He is now, and has been for several years headmaster of the school, and has a high reputation as a leader in the work of secondary schools. He has written many papers and delivered many addresses on literary and educational topics. He has edited Carlyle's "Burns" and Tennyson's "Princess" and has given a course of lectures on educational subjects at Columbia University. In '95-'96 he was president of the Schoolmasters' Association of New York, and was chairman of the committee that induced Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Princeton to hold conferences for the purpose of unifying their entrance requirements—an important work which has had excellent results.

As an alumnus, Wilson has been active and influential. He has been president of the Alumni Association of the Oranges and is now (1910) president of the affiliated alumni associations of New Jersey.

Wilson was married at Jamaica Plains, Mass., on November 23, 1889, to Miss Margaret Washburn Walker, and has three daughters: Margaret, born Dec. 3, 1891; Katherine, born April 17, 1893 and Dorothy, born June 1, 1897. Margaret is now a student at Smith College, and the other girls go to school in Orange. Wilson says: "After dealing with 300 boys all day it is a relief to have only girls at home, but I confess to one pang of regret—I should like to have a boy of my own to send to Princeton". (So would the Secretary and lots of other '86 men!)

Wilson writes: "My greatest honor has been my election as Alumni Trustee, and as I am gradually getting into the swing of the work, it is becoming one of the main interests of my life". Wilson was elected an Alumni Trustee in 1909. Previously he had been a candidate against Andrew C. Imbrie '95, who was elected in 1907. In the following year, Wilson resigned in favor of "Billy" McIlvaine '85, of Chicago, and in 1909 he was himself elected.

FLEMING
PRESIDENT OF THE CLASS

In recognition of Farrand's standing as an educator Columbia University conferred upon him the honorary degree of Master of Arts at Commencement in June 1908. On presenting Farrand for the degree Prof. T. S. Fiske said:

Mr. President: It is particularly fitting that a great university should indicate its appreciation and approval of those who contribute in an important way to the advancement of the cause of sound education. Wilson Farrand, while laboring in the field of secondary education, has rendered great services both to secondary education and to university education. He has contributed in no small degree to the better correlation of school and college, and in a number of respects not only has shown a way to bring order out of disorder, but also has inspired others to follow along the ways that he has discovered. Among his more notable services I will here mention only his work in the systematizing of the teaching of English by means of uniform college admission requirements in that subject, and his part in helping to perfect the organization of the College Entrance Examination Board. While rendering conspicuous service as an educational organizer, he has found time also to contribute by his writings and lectures to the field of English literature and to develop and watch over an admirable preparatory school.

In conferring the degree President Butler said:

Wilson Farrand—Experienced student of the problems of secondary education and exerting powerful influence for the improvement of relations between schools and colleges, I gladly admit you to the degree of Master of Arts in this university.

MATTHEW CORY FLEMING.

Corry was born in Xenia, O., June 24, 1864, a son of Ebenezer C., and Rachel Cory Flemming. He "prepped" at the Xenia High School and Wooster (O.) University, and after a brilliant career with '86, in which for most of the time, he led his class, received the degree of A.B. in '86 and A.M. in '88. In the senior elections, Corry was chosen President of the Class, and he has occupied this exalted position ever since with loyalty, dignity and success.

After graduation, Corry entered the Seminary and stayed there until Christmas when he left to take up the study of law. He attended the Law School at Ann Arbor during '87-'88 and finished up at the Cincinnati Law School in '89 where he had a close finish with his roommate for first honors. He practised law in Cincinnati for a year, and came to New York in May '90, where he was with Davies, Stone & Auerbach, attorneys for the Manhattan Railroad Co., till November '91, when he opened a law office by himself. In July 1892 he formed a partnership with Gayley '84, and Baucus '86, under the firm name of Gayley, Baucus & Fleming. Later Baucus dropped out of the firm, which finally was dissolved when Corry, in June 1902, became an Assistant Corporation Counsel under Corporation Counsel Rives, with especial charge of matters relating to the Building and Tenement House Departments. His work in this office won high praise from his superiors.

In the spring of 1904 Corry became a member of the law firm of Dexter, Osborn & Fleming, with Stanley W. Dexter, Yale '78, and William C. Osborn, Princeton '83. In 1904 he was chosen by Charles E. Hughes (later Governor of New York and now Associate Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court) to be his assistant counsel in the hearing held by the Gas Investigating Committee of the New York Legislature, in which his services were of the highest value, and were so much appreciated by Mr. Hughes that when he began his insurance investigation on the fall of 1905, he selected Corry as his assistant. His work in this inquiry received the highest commendation on all sides, and brought Corry considerable prominence as a painstaking investigator and able lawyer, and an absolutely fair inquisitor.

Since that time Corry has continued the successful practice of law. He was mentioned at one time in connection with the office of Superintendent of Insurance of New York, but it is understood that Corry declined to allow his name to be considered for this office. Corry is at present counsel for W. W. Ladd, receiver of the New York Railway Co., in its suit against the Metropolitan Securities Co. and its directors to recover $2,797,000. alleged to have been wrongfully transferred from the Railway Co. to the Securities Co. "Bud" Rogers '86 appeared for the defendant in the suit brought in January '10.

Corry was married on October 11, 1893 to Miss Angeline Wilson, of Cincinnati, daughter of ex-Judge Wilson, ex-'64 and a brother of Russell D. Wilson, ex-'99. He has had three children: Wilson Fleming, born September 2, 1895, died February 23, 1898; Matthew Corry Fleming, Jr., born June 8, 1899; William Wilson, October 19, 1909. Corry says that young "Matt" is bound for Princeton about 1920, and "Bill" in 1930.

Corry was a member of Squadron A, and served his sentence bravely. He is also a member of the Princeton, Down Town and University Clubs and the Bar Association of New York, Ardsley Club and the Sons of the Revolution. He is also Secretary of the Presbyterian Hospital.

HENRY HAZLITT FORSYTH, JR.

"Harry" Forsyth died on July 15, 1897, at his home, 14 Ritchie Court, Chicago, after an operation for appendicitis. He had never been entirely well, since the distressing accident in our Sophomore year, when he was struck on the side of the head by a pitched ball in the baseball game between '85 and '86. We can all recall the distressing experiences of that day, and the long weeks of anxiety in waiting encouraging news from the bedside. As a result of this unfortunate accident, "Harry" was obliged to leave college in December '84, and for years after he travelled all over in a vain search for health. The shock, however, was too great, and although he greatly improved in health, he never was the same strong, healthy, vigorous, athlete that he was in Freshman year, when he had the memorable boxing match in the old "Gym" with "Kid" Toler, or when he pitched on the Freshman baseball nine and took part in the cane spree.

After some time spent in travel, "Harry" was able to go into business, and he engaged with his brother, Holmes, '88, in the manufacture of hardware novelties. He was a member of the University Club and other prominent social organizations of Chicago. He always kept up an active and sympathetic in-

GAINES

R. S. GREEN

GUTHRIE

HARRING

terest in his class and in Princeton, and frequently returned to Princeton to renew the associations so cruelly interrupted.

"Harry" left two brothers, William Holmes Forsyth '88, and George H. Forsyth '94.

GEORGE IRVINE FOSTER.

Foster was born at Albany, Oregon, on March 31, 1863, son of James Hearst Foster and Martha Jane Gray. He prepared for College at Albany, entered Princeton in '82 and left in November '83 on account of ill health which he never regained. For a time he was Deputy County Clerk at Albany. He died in May 1887 in Eugene, Oregon, and was buried at Albany, Oregon.

JOSEPH HOLT GAINES.

"Brother" was born in Washington, D. C., September 3, 1864, son of Major Theophilus Gaines and Ariadne Stockton. He "prepped" at West Virginia University, entered Princeton in January of freshman year, and graduated an A.B.

He became connected with The New York Star, but didn't hang on long. Then he studied law and was admitted to the bar of West Virginia in the Fall of 1887, entering into practice with J. W. St. Clair, of Fayetteville, a leading lawyer of the State. Later he moved to Charleston and from May 1897 to March 4, 1901, he was U. S. District Attorney for West Virginia. From March 4, 1901, to March 4, 1911, he was elected to the House of Representatives from the Third, or Charleston, District, and served with ability and distinction until March 4, 1911, when he was beaten in an overwhelmingly Republican district. "Brother" is now practising law in Charleston, and some of these fine days he will be gracing the Upper House as Senator Gaines.

"Brother" belongs to the Metropolitan, Chevy Chase and Alibi Clubs of Washington, and the Princeton Club of New York.

He was married November 23, 1898, to Miss Marjorie Lewis Gentry, of Charleston, W. Va., and has these children: Joseph H., Jr., born November 11, 1900; Theophilus Stockton, born February 3, 1902; Richard Kenna, born July 31, 1903; Marjorie Lewis, born March 21, 1905; Ann Blair, born March 26, 1908, and Hallie Van Bibber, born May 13, 1909. The boys, of course, will go to Princeton.

An Attack and a Reply

A defence of "Brother Gaines" by the Class Secretary

On February 22, 1911, The New York Tribune's Washington correspondence contained the following attack on "Brother" Gaines, under the caption "Gaines Fiasco":

The Ways and Means Committee, in executive session, put the quietus on the silly measure of Representative Gaines, of West Virginia, to-day. Actuated apparently by the same desire as Mr. Bennet, of New York, either to gain a modicum of free advertising or to execute a somewhat bungling flank movement against Canadian reciprocity, Mr. Gaines introduced a bill providing for absolute free trade between this country and Canada, and a tariff wall between those countries and all others for a period of twenty years, and appropriating $1,000,000 to carry out the provisions of the measure. The Ways and Means Committee, on the insistence of Mr. Gaines, met to-day to consider the bill, but on examination decided that it was too silly to occupy their time and an adjournment was promptly taken.

The attack was so manifestly unfair and unjust that the Class Secretary felt impelled to send the following protest to The Tribune which was printed in its issue of February 24:

New York City, February 23, 1911.

To the Editor of The Tribune:

Sir:—The Washington correspondent of your paper, in its issue of February 22, does a great injustice to a faithful and honorable member of the House of Representatives in its attack upon the Hon. Joseph H. Gaines, M.C., from the Charleston, W. Va. district. Mr. Gaines is a distinguished member of the House, and his record and career are such as to defend him from the imputation of the sneering allusion of your correspondent. His record as a Republican and as a faithful representative of his district cannot be impugned or belittled. He is a leader of the bar of his State. He was appointed U. S. District Attorney of West Virginia by President McKinley. He has served five terms in the lower house, and in recent years he has been an able and efficient member of the most important committee of the House—that of Ways and Means. To characterize any legislative action of his as “silly” is absurd, and any member of the House, Democrat or Republican, will testify amply to that. That his views differ from those of others affords no justification for the employment of absurd epithets, for his sincerity, his honesty and his ability cannot be questioned. What he says or does arises from a profound conviction of honesty and right. It is unfair for a great paper to employ unjustifiable epithets to a man whose career, political and personal, cannot in fairness be assailed. Leave such unseemly work as that to the yellow and jaundiced press.

Yours truly,
FREDERICK EVANS.

—
A Wit From West Virginia.

A Study of “Brother” Gaines as a Congressman.

From the Saturday Evening Post, Oct. 22, 1910.

You all remember the gifted gentleman who stood up one day and put forth the sophistical sentiment that if only he were allowed to make the songs of a nation he wouldn't give a dern who made the laws for said agglomeration of people. This explains why, when they were framing that tariff bill that seems to have deposited the Republican party on the rough and jagged rocks, Joseph Holt Gaines, of West Virginia, rising, said: “I care not who makes the rest of this tariff law, but, by heck, I intend to make it for West Virginia, which is where I hail from, if it should interest you. Who touches a schedule in yon West Virginia list gets a maul in the mastoid. March on!” he said. And they marched on, marched on and on; but Joseph Holt Gaines kept step and guard, and when that tariff bill came out of the hopper West Virginia was protected by a collection of Chinese walls to a finished fare-you-well.

You see, Joseph Holt is a member of the Ways and Means Committee, where the Republican majority perpetrated outrages on the Democratic minority day after day when the bill was being made. Now this Joseph Holt Gaines person is a tall and lathy citizen who runs up a few inches over six feet and carries all the ordnance of his class, with a superimposed turret here and there. He has been in Congress for five terms and is nominated in the primaries to succeed himself. During those ten years he has come to be a hefty person in the councils of the House, and before he got there and since he has been there he has been one of those Republicans who think there ought to be separate cars for Democrats on the surface lines. He is a partisan who cannot conceive any prosperity, progress or performance with the Democrats in power, and maybe, when you take a look at the opposition side of the House, he isn't so far wrong; but that is a detail. What I am trying to impress about Gaines is that he is a Republican who is glad of it, proud of it and ready to fight for it.

BLAIR HALL.

GIFT OF JOHN I. BLAIR, A FORMER TRUSTEE. THE BUILDING ON THE LEFT IS WITHERSPON HALL.

Nor does that mean he is barnaced or reactionary. He is a big, red-blooded, hard-hitting person who has beliefs and has the courage to state them. Moreover, there is no sidestepping or trimming or compromising about him. You always can tell on which side Gaines is fighting, for he gets up and announces himself, and if you are fighting against him there will be no temporizing. He will probably hit you in the eye. So watch out.

HOW HE WON THE SAWMILL VOTE.

His creed is West Virginia. He moved to that State from the District of Columbia, his birthplace, when but three years old, and has lived there ever since, which is some forty-odd years. He graduated from Princeton in 1886 and began the practice of the law a year later in Fayetteville. President McKinley made him United States District Attorney in 1897 and he served until he came to Congress ten years ago. In Congress he has grown steadily. He is a skillful parliamentarian, a good debater, a fine speaker and is extremely popular. He stood guard over the industries of West Virginia when they were making the latest tariff bill, and his people got what they wanted; which, by the way, is the apotheosis of statesmanship. If you give the people what they want they will give you what you want. Everybody satisfied. Not particularly ethical, mayhap, but gratifying.

Gaines has a keen sense of humor. He is a good storyteller and his stories always fit and are fit. He doesn't devote too much of his time to story-telling, nor does he pose as a John Allen, or anything like; but he can make a point with a story as deftly as any of his colleagues, a story that is always bubbling over with good humor and is always apropos. He is an ardent and efficient speechmaker, well grounded, well informed, and with an earnest and convincing delivery. He does a good deal of debating in the House and generally makes his point.

They have primaries in West Virginia, as they have elsewhere, and Gaines, of course, was forced to go before the people for his nomination at these primaries. He had opposition and naturally he made a canvass. In one of the counties in his district he met a sawmill man. The sawmill man was by way of being a politician himself, and he had been seen by the friends of the opponent of Gaines and had promised to support the opponent and to get his men to support him.

The sawmill man had a talk with Gaines, who explained to him that the reason the people who were against Gaines were working so hard in the territory was because Gaines would not recommend a certain man for a certain postoffice. It happened that the man Gaines refused to recommend was a warm and personal enemy of the sawmill man, and the sawmill man promptly shifted and went over to Gaines. The sawmill man had sixty-five men working for him, in the woods and at the mill. He was anxious to help Gaines as soon as he understood the situation, and he explained his position and what he could do, illustrating, thereby, the actual working out of the primary system in the country districts as opposed to the lovely theories on which the primary system is based.

"Now, I'll tell you", said sawmill man said to Gaines. "These politicians down this way are getting too blamed smart. They came pretty near putting one across on me. I didn't understand about that postoffice thing, or I would have been for you in the beginning. They gave me the wrong steer. They even tried to give me money, but that don't go.

"You see, if there is any money to be spent at my place I spend it. More than that I put it up. I don't owe them a cent, and I don't want any of their money. It don't take any money, anyhow. All I have to do is to call the boys in from the woods and get them together with the rest of the men at the mill. Then I roll in a couple of barrels of beer and tell them what I want them to do. They'll do it all right. It doesn't make any difference to them. They don't give a hoot about either one of you anyhow."

Gaines told that story on himself during his campaign, as an illustration of several things, having the saving sense of humor that made him appreciate the joke on himself as well as on his opponent. That is what makes him so popular in the House. He puts on no airs, makes no pretenses, humbugs no humbuggery, chases no notoriety, seeks no limelight; but goes ahead and does his work and looks out for his constituents, and generally gets what he goes after.

He is one of the tallest men in the House and has a voice that will rasp a Democrat into a passion in a minute if he wants to put the rasp into it. When he is telling a story it sort of bubbles out of him. He has a kindly philosophy, a clear outlook on life, hates shams and hypocrisy, doesn't pose or strut, and is a good deal of a person, is this Joseph Holt Gaines, of the Third District of West Virginia. He understands his people, his state and governmental affairs, as well. He came up through the ramifications of local politics and has grown to be a man of much influence in the House.

And say, be sure to lay no impious hand on the sacred policy of protection when he is in the vicinity. He eats these freetraders alive, does Joseph; especially and particularly any of those freetraders who may want to start something touching on and appertaining to the industries of West Virginia. The tariff is a local question with Gaines; a distinctly West Virginia proposition. Keep off the grass!

ANOTHER ONE ON "BROTHER".

From The Saturday Evening Post.

Joseph Holt Gaines, who has been in Congress for many years from West Virginia and has risen to a commanding position both on the Ways and Means Committee and on the floor, was defeated for reelection by a man named Littlepage, a Democrat.

"Now, Adam," said Gaines to Littlepage on the day after election, "I shall be glad to do anything I can for you up in Washington, especially in telling you about the rules and how to get favorable committee places, and all that. Call on me any time."

"Thanks, Joe," said Littlepage; "but I guess I won't need you. You see, I intend to begin where you left off."

B. H. GASKILL.

It is doubtful whether any member of the class remembers Gaskill. He entered Princeton in September 1883 and left October '83. He was at one time a member of '85 and came from Mt. Holly, N. J. A letter from the Rev. James W. Williams '87, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Abington, Pa., says:

A Benjamin H. Gaskill died on May 25, 1905, and I was asked to officiate at his funeral. He had been living for some years on South 21st Street, Philadelphia. I had visited him once two years before, as he professed to be an attendant at my church. The poor fellow went all to pieces apparently, lived beyond his means, etc., and after he died the papers printed all sorts of things about him—not to his credit.

The New York and Philadelphia papers of about that time contained accounts of his exploits on the Stock Exchange, and how he obtained money for several doubtful purposes. He was a member of the firm of B. H. Gaskill & Co., which failed in 1905.

He left a wife, but no children.

HARLAN VICTOR GAUSE.

Victor was born in Wilmington, Del., July 4, 1863, son of John Taylor Gause and Martha Jane Carey-Flinn. He went to Andover, where he was in the same class with Tracy Harris. He entered Princeton "Scientif" in 1882 and left in the spring of 1883.

LIBRARY TOWER
BUILT ON THE SITE OF EAST COLLEGE

After leaving Princeton he was one year in the art course at Syracuse, when he entered the office of the Harlan and Hollingsworth Shipbuilding Co. of Wilmington, of which his father was president. He went to Europe in 1894 and located in Paris to study art. He remained in Paris about three years, has spent much time in this country, lived in Rome five years, later six years in Paris and the last year in London, where his headquarters now are. During most of this time he has worked at his art, but not regularly owing to travel and various reasons.

While in Paris he studied mural decoration, his specialty, under Puvis de Chavannes, the distinguished artist, and also studied architecture at the Ecole des Beaux Arts.

At one time he was president of the Metalithic Paving Co. of New York, for paving, flooring, etc.

Something About "Vic" Gause.

The Sun says he's a blooming Britisher.

From The New York Sun of Feb. 14, 1911.

Harlan Victor Gause of London is visiting New York for the first time and he really doesn't know what to make of it all, you know. Mr. Gause did not come direct from England, but got in the other way, and worked across the country by way of Los Angeles and Chicago, and still had some adjectives left.

Mr. Gause arrived at the Gotham yesterday and asked for a room. When the clerk assigned him to one on the fifteenth floor the visitor looked rather blank.

"I say, I really would like to see it first, do you know," he said, so the room clerk showed him up. When they got into the room the Englishman went to the window and looked out.

"Good Lord!" he exclaimed. "It makes me dizzy. And do you mean to tell me I am really up above those Church steeples? Marvellous. Why, I have been up 15,000 feet in the Alps and looked down 3,000 feet, but never have I had such a feeling of dizziness. I'd like to see something else, if you don't mind."

Then the clerk took him up to the twentieth floor and showed him the city from there, but he said that was too far up. Then he was taken down to the ninth floor, but he said that the fifteenth floor would suit him after all.

"It's marvellous", he remarked to the clerk. "I never was so high up in a building before. What, there are buildings that are more than twenty-five stories higher than this! Upon my word. Why are so many flags flying? Lincoln's birthday? Oh, I say, what are those bird cages upon the tops of those buildings?"

The clerk replied that what he saw were the screened playgrounds on the tops of two girls' schools, and the visitor remarked how interesting. Then he called for some food and sat down to rest and digest things.

THE IDENTITY OF VICTOR.

From The New York Sun, Feb. 16, 1911.

A paragraph in the hotel column the other day about Harlan Victor Gause, who registered at the Gotham from London and who in his speech and comments gave the room clerk the impression that he was an Englishman, has drawn two letters to The Sun, each of which distinctly asserts that Mr. Gause, however his address and his accent may have impressed the hotel clerk, is not an Englishman.

One goes so far as to hint strongly that The Sun has been duped in regard to Mr. Gause's nationality, and adds that he was born in Wilmington, Del., and was graduated at Princeton, in the class of '86. The other letter, which is written in a less indignant and more graceful vein, and in a handwriting that is certainly not masculine says:

" * * * the 'Englishman', Mr. Harlan Victor Gause of London, happened to be born in Wilmington, Del., on July 4, 1863; was middle named 'Victor' to commemorate the victory of Gettysburg on that day (not that he had anything to do with that) and lived continuously in America until the last decade. However, I think the joke's on him, not you—but this was too good to keep."

WILLIAM J. GOUDY.

"Billy" Goudy died in 1894, after a successful career in Chicago, as a lawyer and business man. He entered Princeton in September '82 and left in June '85, but at all times he maintained a lively interest in his college and his class. He took up the study of law in the office of his father, William C. Goudy, probably the most noted attorney of Chicago at that time. He was graduated from the Northwestern Law School in Chicago, and entered into partnership with his father and another lawyer under the firm name of Goudy, Green and Goudy. In '92 his father died, the partnership was broken, and "Billy" went into the real estate business with "Bob" Shanklin '83. Two months later he died, after an illness lasting some time.

"Billy" was married December 14, 1887 to Miss Carolyn Harvey Walker, who with a daughter, Helen Goudy, born October 5, 1889, survives him.

W. T. GRAHAM.

Graham was only in Princeton from September '83 to November '83. He then became a member of the Class of '86 of Dickinson College. He lives now at Sunbury, Pa., where he is a practising physician, having been graduated, it is stated, from Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia. He is married and has one little girl, Helen.

JAMES SPROAT GREEN.

"Dodo" was born on March 7, 1864 at Elizabeth, New Jersey, a son of Dr. James S. Green '48 and Frances Winchester. He prepared for Princeton at the Pingry School, Elizabeth; entered College in '82 and was graduated with an A.B. degree in '86; and received the degree of A.M. in 1889.

He entered P. & S. in New York City and was graduated an M.D. in '89. He was House Physician and surgeon to the Elizabeth General Hospital from June 29 to January 1, 1899, visiting surgeon from '92 to the present time; and Dispensary Surgeon from '91 to '95. He has served as President of the Union County Medical Society, President of the Clinical Hospital of Elizabeth, General Vice President of the Board of the Hospital, and attending surgeon. He is also attending surgeon to St. Elizabeth's Hospital and is a member of the Board of Managers of the New Jersey State Sanatorium for Tuberculosis Diseases.

He belongs to the Elizabeth Town and Country Club, and Union County Medical Society.

"Dodo" is one of the solid, substantial citizens of New Jersey, and stands in high repute in his profession.

He was married on September 20, 1892 to Mary Moxley Fisher, and has six children, two boys and four girls: James S. Jr., born March 16, 1894; Margaret W., born August 2, 1895; Frances W. born July 24, 1897; Grace F.,

TROPHY ROOM, GYMNASIUM

born June 24, 1899; Richard F., born December 25, 1901; Mary M., born September 5, 1904.

James and Richard are going to Pingry School, eventually bound for Princeton; while Margaret, Frances, and Grace go to Vail-Deane School, Elizabeth. James is preparing for Princeton.

ROBERT S. GREEN, JR.

The class is already familiar with the news of "Bob" Green's death, which occurred at the house of his father, ex-Governor Green, of New Jersey, in Elizabeth, N. J., on May 17, 1904, after a long and tedious illness. "Bob" was born in Elizabeth October 16, 1865, a son of Robert S. Green, '50, ex-Representative in Congress and ex-Governor of New Jersey, and a descendant of the Rev. Ashbel Green, of the Class of 1783, eighth president of Princeton. He entered Princeton in September '82, and became at once one of the best known and most prominent men in his class. He was active in every phase of social undergraduate life, and was a conspicuous figure in everything connected with '86. He was a member of the Sophomore Reception Committee and played on "Davy" Harlan's famous "Scrub" football team, which helped "Reddy" De Camp's team to bring the championship to Princeton from New Haven in the fall of '85.

After graduation, he became the secretary of his father, who was then Governor of New Jersey. In 1891 he was admitted to the bar of New Jersey and a year later to the bar of New York, where he was associated with the well known firm of Seward, Guthrie & Morawetz. In 1896, he and Albert Wall formed the firm of Wall & Green, with offices in Jersey City. Later this firm was changed into Vredenburg, Wall & Van Winkle, both "Bob" and Albert still being members of it, one of the most successful law firms in New Jersey. "Bob" was also for many years a member of the State Board of Assessors of New Jersey, and was active in Democratic politics.

"Bob" never lost his interest in his alma mater or his class, and invariably attended all reunions and dinners. He belonged to the Mattano Club of Elizabeth, and the Princeton and Democratic Clubs of New York.

The funeral services were held at the Green homestead, No. 76 Cherry Street, Elizabeth, on May 22, 1904, and the large crowd present attested the high esteem and affection with which he was regarded. The burial was in the family lot at Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn.

CHARLES E. GRIFFITH.

"Charlie" Griffith died of yellow fever in the City of Panama on June 14, 1905. He was born October 30, 1861, and entered college in September '82, from Lawrence, Kan. Healthy, vigorous, athletic, full of the joy of living, he soon became a vital force in the class. He won his cane spree in Freshman year, he played on his class football team in Freshman and Sophomore years, he was a successful competitor in the annual athletic games, he sang in the Class Glee Club and the College choir, and he wound up his career in college in a burst of glory as a member of the champion football team in '85.

After graduation "Grif" became secretary and treasurer of the Eudora Milling Company of Eudora, Kan., manufacturers of flour, meal, etc. He was married November 23, 1887 at Johnsonburg, N. J., to Miss Elizabeth L. Foresman, youngest daughter of the Rev. R. B. Foresman, and had one daughter, Helen F., born December 4, 1888.

Later "Grif" wandered about the country, pursuing his profession as an engineer in many states of the Union, in Alaska and finally in Panama. A few years ago he came to New York and made his headquarters with his brother, George W. Griffith, a banker and broker, at No. 11 Pine Street. He went to Panama in June 1905 to become Chief Engineer for the Panama American Company, and was very successful. He was to have left Panama for the North on July 15, but he was taken ill with the dreaded yellow fever, and removed to the Government Hospital, known as the Ancon Hospital. The disease was too powerful, however, and he died early in the morning of June 14. His body was brought to New York, and he was buried by the side of his wife in Oakdale Cemetery, Chicago, on June 25.

"Grif's" father is still living and is President of a bank in South Pasadena, Cal. The daughter, Helen, lives with her grandfather.

WILLIAM ALEXANDER GUTHRIE.

"Billy" was born at Jacksonville, Pa., August 29, 1865, son of John Milton Guthrie and Anna Mary Guthrie. He prepared at Elder's Ridge Academy, entered Princeton in the fall of '82 and was graduated A.B. in '86.

From July 1, '86 to February 1, '94 he was in the lumber manufacturing business with his father, in Indiana, Pa. The panic of '93 unfortunately destroyed the business. In '96 "Billy" became connected with the Sanborn-Perris Map Company, insurance surveyors, and was an inspector in Michigan, Indiana, and Ohio. Since July 1, 1901 he has been in the coal mining business and is now vice-president of Tearing Run Coal Co., West Penn Block Coal Co., and Majestic Coal Co.

"Billy" was a member of the Town Council of Indiana for three years. He says he has had the "usual ups and downs of business life", but we are glad to hear that he is now getting along in fine shape.

WILLIAM D. W. HALL.

Hall was born in Lewes, Del., April 7, 1865, son of Dr. David Hall and Eugenie Hall. He entered college in 1882 and was graduated an A.B., later receiving the degree of A.M.

He received the degree of M.D. from the University of Pennsylvania in 1889, and also attended the N. Y. Polyclinic Hospital College. He has practised medicine ever since at Columbus, N. J., Brooklyn and Philadelphia, where he also has a pharmacy. He is a general practitioner but for the last six years he has been connected with the Philadelphia Polyclinic as instructor in diseases of the nose and throat. He is a member of the Philadelphia County Medical Society and the

UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

Philadelphia Medical Club. He belongs to Melita Lodge F. & A. M., No. 295 and of Melita Royal Arch Chapter, No. 284.

Hall was married to Miss Elizabeth Orr at Lewes, Del., July 18, 1893, and had one child, David, who was born October 4, 1898, and died at the age of nine months.

CHARLES DAY HALSEY.

"Steve" was born September 26, 1865 in Newark, N. J., son of Silas Condit Halsey and Fanny L. Day. He was prepared for college at Freehold Institute, Freehold, N. J., and was in the same class there as Harry Toler. He entered Princeton in '81 with the class of '85, but was graduated with '86.

After leaving college, "Steve" became connected with the Engineers' Corps, Maintenance of Way Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad and was with that company until April 1894. From April 1894, to April 1, 1901, he was associated with "Kid" Toler, in the New York Stock Exchange firm of Toler & Halsey. This firm was dissolved and the firm of C. D. Halsey & Co. was formed, of which "Steve" is still the head. On March 28, 1901, he became a member of the Stock Exchange.

"Steve" was married in Burlington, N. J., on November 20, 1895 to Miss Effie Van Rensselaer Grubb, daughter of General E. Burd Grubb, of Edgewater N. J., formerly U. S. Minister to Spain. He has three children, two boys and a girl: Cortlandt Van Rensselaer Halsey, born October 11, 1896; Charles Day Halsey, Jr., born January 9, 1900, and Lily Van Rensselaer Halsey, born July 15, 1896. Cortlandt is now at Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and Charles is going there, and both are bound for Princeton.

"Steve" lives practically all the year round at a very attractive place at Rumson (formerly Sea Bright) N. J., and is a councilman of that borough. He is a real farmer and gets finer enjoyment in selling a big, fat porker, or a bushel of corn, than he does in selling stocks and bonds. He is a member of the University, Princeton, and Union Clubs of New York and the Rumson Country Club.

R. T. HAINES HALSEY.

"R. T." was born in Elizabeth, N. J., August 28, 1865, son of W. F. Halsey and Fanny E. Haines. He prepared for college at St. Paul's, entered college in '82 and was graduated A.B. in '86. A brother, Dr. John Halsey, was in '91.

From '86 to '88 he was in the well-known banking house of Brown Brothers & Co., New York, and from '89 to '91 with Homans & Co. In 1891 he bought a seat in the Stock Exchange and started business with Alexander M. Hudnut '81, under the firm name of Halsey & Hudnut. He has served as a Governor of the Stock Exchange for several years.

Aside from business, "R. T." has made a reputation as an author, having written in 1899, an elaborate, highly praised and expensive book, entitled "Pictures of Early New York on Dark Blue Staffordshire Pottery"; "Historical Introduction to the Letters of a Farmer in Pennsylvania" in 1903, and "The Boston Port Bill as Pictured by a Contemporary London Cartoonist", published by the Grolier Club in 1904. He prepared in 1906 the catalogue, with historical introduction, for the Boston Museum of Fine Arts on "American Silver and Silversmiths of the 17th and 18th Centuries", and he has contributed articles to Scribner's Magazine on "Josiah Wedgwood, American Sympathizer and Portrait Maker", and on "Edward G. Malbone, America's great 18th Century Miniaturist".

For ten years he has been on the Council of the Grolier Club and on January 7, 1910, Mayor Gaynor appointed him a member of the Municipal Art Commission.

On January 18, 1894, he was married to Miss Helen Homans, of New York who died several years ago. On February 18, 1909 he was married to Mrs. Effie Underhill Crossman, daughter of John T. Underhill, of New York, in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church. Gaylord White performed the ceremony.

"R. T." belongs to the Century, Racquet, University, Grolier, Princeton, Middy, and Ardsley Clubs.

MARSHAL HALSTEAD.

Marshal Halstead died in the German Deaconess Hospital, Cincinnati, O., on January 29, 1908, following an operation for appendicitis on the previous day. At the time of his death, his father, Murat Halstead, the well known editor, his mother, and wife, and other members of his family were at the bedside. The operation was performed by Doctors Walker and Schwaab, but Marshal was unable to recover from the shock.

The funeral took place on February 6, 1908, from the residence of his father. The burial was private. The Rev. Frank H. Nelson, of Christ Episcopal Church, conducted the services. His body, according to his wish, was cremated, and the urn containing his ashes was buried in the Halstead lot in Spring Grove Cemetery. The pall bearers were his brothers, Clarence '87, and Robert '88, Alfred Stern, Frederick Schaeffer, George F. Dana, Willard How, and Drs. Alfred Gaither and Emmanuel Schwab.

Marshal Halstead was born in Cincinnati in the West Fourth Street House where his father lived, on July 10, 1863. He was educated in the public schools, and entered Princeton in September 1882. During his college course he was at all times a conspicuous and prominent member of the class, interested in all the activities of undergraduate social life. He was a member of Clio Hall and of the Ivy Club. He played on the class football team in Freshman and Sophomore years, and was Chairman of the '86 Bric-a-Brac board.

Immediately after graduation, Marshal became the New York correspondent of The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, of which his father was editor. Later he went to Cincinnati and became the business manager of the paper, and subsequently, managing editor and a director. When The Gazette and The Tribune consolidated, Marshal retired and went to London where he was associated with Alfred (now Lord) Harmsworth, the well known English publisher and editor. During President McKinley's first administration, Marshal was appointed in 1897 United States Consul to Birmingham, England, a consular position of the first importance. In this place his services were of the highest character and he served in that office with distinguished ability until his retirement in March 1906, when he was succeeded by his brother, Albert, '89, who is still Consul at Birmingham. Some conception of his capacity as our consular representative at Birmingham may be gathered from the following tribute paid to him by Isaac N. Ford, the London representative of The New York Tribune of May 22, 1906, under the caption "A Popular Consul":

BROWN HALL

GIFT OF MRS. DAVID BROWN, OF PRINCETON. SITUATED ON THE SOUTH CAMPU.S, BACK OF WING AND GYM HALLS.

London, May 12.

Mr. Marshal Halstead's retirement from the American consular service is regretted at Birmingham, where he has won respect and admiration by his energy and devotion to duty. For eight years he has been a keen observer of everything that was going on in that great center of commercial enterprise, and by his correspondence and his reports to the State Department he has shown how useful a consul can be in imparting information to manufacturers and merchants at home and in warning them against unsafe and unbusinesslike practices. When he entered office at Birmingham he was without mercantile experience or special equipment for work; but he had been an active journalist, and this implied future efficiency in conducting a news gathering service among the industries of the town and in sending to America bright and interesting reports on commercial matters. It was not long before he was advising American exporters against appointing exclusive agencies in Europe for the sale of their goods and confiding their interests to foreigners, who would make use of the connection for the purpose of restricting and suppressing dangerous rivalry in business. That shrewd warning against improvident management of foreign trade was followed by detailed information in one industry after another respecting the most practical and effective methods of enlarging export business abroad. When his reports and letters were reprinted in Birmingham, the manufacturers and merchants discovered that a wide-awake American journalist was a model consul. The local newspapers, instead of complaining of official activities directed against the business interests of the town, complimented him on his energy, and asked why the consular work in the British service was not done in a similarly thorough and practical spirit.

I have been in Birmingham so often that I have no hesitation in giving the local explanation of Mr. Halstead's success as a consul. Everybody who was brought into business relations with him was impressed with his characteristic American spirit and his determination to represent his country worthily. It was a common comment among merchants that there would be an immense expansion of British foreign trade if there were as good an Englishman in every important British Consulate as he was a representative American.

Mr. Halstead's work has been an object lesson of what might be made of the British Consulate service if equally vigilant and capable Englishmen were placed on guard and the masters of red tape and the salaried or unsalaried foreigners were turned out. There has been no decline of his American energy during his prolonged residence in the Midland capital. His interest in his work has steadily increased with his experience and equipment, and he has remained a most popular official.

A splendid tribute from a capable and competent observer!

Marshal resigned the consulate so that he might return to this country to marry Miss Clara Lunkenheimer, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Lunkenheimer, of Cincinnati. The wedding took place on June 22, 1907 at Ingleheim, Walnut Hills, Cincinnati.

At the time of his death, Marshal was in charge of the coal and coke interests of his sister, Mrs. Davidson, at Connellsville, Pa., and he was also a director in the Lunkenheimer Company.

One of the Cincinnati papers said of him:

The news of Marshal Halstead's death will come with sudden and saddening force to the hearts of hundreds of people who loved him. Gentle, just and self-sacrificing, he stood in the minds of those who knew him most intimately as representative of the highest type of Christian manhood. With his business acumen he combined a rare generosity of spirit, and it is known that no soul in distress, financial or otherwise, ever appealed to him in vain. Socially, Mr. Halstead was looked upon as a leader—always hospitably inclined, and always knowing the exact thing to do under the circumstances—living daily and every moment all the graces that made him a conspicuous figure in society. He was of commanding appearance—a splendid type of physical manhood. Standing full six feet and magnificently proportioned—with the clear complexion and clear eyes of perfect health, he looked invincible to sickness and death. Since he came from college he has been practically the head of the Halstead family. Foreign correspondence and important journalistic posts in the East kept his father much of the time away from Cincinnati, and Marshal became the natural head of the large family. His marriage to Miss Clara Lunkenheimer last June seemed the crowning event to a beautiful life. Their happiness together was as great as it had been brief.

Another account says:

The personality of the decedent was such that friends say it can improperly be described by words. There was a certain sunshine about Marshal Halstead possessed by but few other mortals, and the mere announcement of his sudden demise on the streets of Cincinnati last night saddened groups of men and women in all walks of life.

"I never heard Marshal Halstead knock a living soul", the tribute of an occupant of a car going home from the theater last night, and echoed by his companions, according to thousands of citizens, showed more expressively than anything the character of the man.

To the last Halstead carried his good cheer with him. His philosophical demeanor gave new hope to the disconsolate and made the parting seem just a temporary adieu, preceding the reunion.

Halstead died on "Carnation Day", the anniversary of the birth of his beloved friend, President McKinley.

From the moment he went to the hospital until his death, Mrs. Halstead was a constant attendant. Her grief was pitiable when the physicians said that her husband was no more and she became quite ill.

SAMUEL MC CLINTOCK HAMILL.

Hamill was born at Oak Hall, Pa., November 3, 1864, son of Robert Hamill and Margaret E. Lyon. He went to school at Lawrenceville, entered Princeton in '82 and left in June '83, for the purpose of studying medicine.

He was graduated an M. D. from the University of Pennsylvania in May '88, and served as resident physician at the Philadelphia Hospital from August '88 to August '89. Hamill writes as follows:

I have been engaged in the practice of medicine in Philadelphia, since 1891. I held my first teaching position in 1892, at which time I was made demonstrator of physical diagnosis in the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania. In 1894 I became instructor in Medicine in the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania. I was an associate in the William Pepper Laboratory of Clinical Medicine. I continued in this service until 1901, when I resigned to become Professor of the Diseases of Children in the Philadelphia Polyclinic and College for Graduates in Medicine, which position I still hold. For the past six years I have devoted myself exclusively to medicine as it relates to the diseases of children.

I am a member of the American Pediatric Society, the Association of American Physicians, and the American Medical Association. Last year I was President of the

T. H. HARRIS

W. B. HARRIS

HELLIWELL

Photo by William Shewell Ellis
Phila. Pa.

H. L. HODGE

American Association of Medical Milk Commissions, and this year I am Chairman of the Section on Diseases of Children of the American Medical Association. I am also a member of the Philadelphia Pediatric Society, of which I was President in 1902, and the following year I was chairman of the Section on Medicine in the College of Physicians of Philadelphia.

I have engaged in a considerable amount of clinical and laboratory research work, the results of which labor I have published from time to time.

I have been absent from all of the reunions of the class of '86, not from choice, but because I am unfortunate enough to be out of Philadelphia, in attendance upon the meetings of the various National Medical Societies at the time of these reunions. This is my misfortune and my regret, and it especially distresses me that I shall not be able to appear on the occasion of this twenty-fifth anniversary. Unfortunately, I have to go to California to the meeting of the American Medical Association, on the first of June. If I was not an officer of the Association, I should forego attendance upon the meeting this year, in order to join the class of '86 in celebrating this reunion. I shall surely reform another year. When I am called upon to meet with you in Princeton next time, unless something very unexpected occurs, I shall surely respond.

"Sam" is also a member of the College of Physicians of Philadelphia, Philadelphia Pediatric Society, Philadelphia Pathological Society, Philadelphia Neurological Society, University of Pennsylvania Medical Society, and belongs to the following clubs: University Club, Philadelphia Country Club, St. Andrews Society, The Society of the Sons of the Revolution, the Scotch-Irish Society.

He was married to Miss Lila Clarke Kennedy, of Philadelphia, on April 17, 1895, and has three boys: E. D. Kennedy Hamill, born June 17, 1897; Samuel McC. Hamill, Jr., born August 8, 1899, and Hugh Maxwell Hamill, born April 16, 1901. The boys are going to Delancy School in Philadelphia.

JOHN W. HARDING.

"Jack" was born in Tunkhannock, Pa., May 28, 1863, son of William B. and Cynthia A. Harding. He prepared at Wyoming Seminary, Kingston, Pa., entered college in '82, and left at the close of Junior year.

He immediately began the study of law, was admitted to the bar and has been practicing successfully at Paterson, N. J., where he stands high in his profession. At present he is a member of the firm of Griggs (ex-Governor and ex-U. S. Attorney General) & Harding. He belongs to the Hamilton and North Jersey Country Clubs, and to the Princeton and Lotos Clubs of New York.

"Jack" was married October 24, 1901 to Miss Ruth Guthrie Thompson, and has one daughter: Jean G. Harding, born January 27, 1903.

DAVID ELWOOD HARLAN.

"Davy" was born in Philadelphia, April 12, 1864, son of David Harlan and Margaret Herbert. He prepared for college at St. James, Washington Co., Maryland, and was graduated with the degree of C.E. in '86. His great distinction in college was his captaincy of the '86 "scrub" which helped to put the football team in shape to beat Yale in the fall of '85.

After graduation "Dave" spent three months in Wyoming and Utah on the Princeton Scientific Expedition. In December 1886 he entered the office of the Chief Engineer of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad in Ohio and became assistant roadmaster. In the spring and summer of '89 he was transit man on the Deer Creek & Susquehanna Railroad at Bel Air, Md. In October 1889, after three and a half months' vacation in Europe, he became assistant to the Division Engineer of the Delaware Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Dover, Del. From June '91 to September '96 "Dave" was assistant supervisor of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Sunbury and Wall, Pa. In December '99 he became treasurer of the Lima Locomotive and Machine Co. at Lima, O., and from February 1900 to July 1902 he was treasurer and manager of the Lima Steel Casting Co. From August 1, 1902 to the present time he has been treasurer and manager of the Crystal Paper Co., at Middletown, O.

"Davy" was married at Lima, O., on November 9, 1898 to Miss Catherine Meily Freeman and has three children: Olivia, born September 6, 1899; Catherine, born November 23, 1900, and Herbert Henry, born April 23, 1902. The girls will enter Mt. Holyoke, Mass., which is their mother's college, and the boy, of course, will go to Princeton.

JAMES ARDEN HARRIMAN.

"Jim" Harriman died in Paris, France, April 20, 1909, whither he had gone in search of medical treatment. His death was sudden, although he had been in poor health for some time. He had lived in Paris six months prior to his death and was accompanied there by his wife.

"Jim" was born on May 31, 1864, and was a member of the well-known New York family of that name. He was a cousin of Oliver Harriman '83, J. Borden Harriman '85, and E. H. Harriman, the prominent banker and railroad man. He entered Princeton in the fall of '82 and was a prominent and well beloved member of '86 during his college course. He and George McClellan lived in the "Red House", in the lower part of the town, where Evelyn College subsequently was.

He travelled considerably after graduation and then became connected with the Wall Street firm of H. B. Hollins & Co., one of the most prominent houses in the "Street". In 1898, he retired from active business and went abroad. Previously, on November 21, 1896, he was married to Miss Adele Leshner, of New York. There were no children.

The later years of his life were devoted to rest and recreation, and one of his principal sources of enjoyment was in attending lectures at the hospitals and medical schools in Paris and elsewhere. It had always been his ambition, never realized, to take up the practice of medicine.

While in New York he became interested in the Naval Militia, and served as an ensign in the First Naval Battalion of New York.

He was a member of the Union, Knickerbocker, University, Princeton and New York Yacht Clubs. He maintained at all times a lively interest in everything pertaining to Princeton and to his class.

A few years ago he purchased a country place, Rolling Farm, Pleasantville, New York, and spent much of his time there.

INTERIOR GYMNASIUM

TRACY HYDE HARRIS.

Tracy was born July 5, 1864, a son of Tracy Hyde Harris and Hannah Virginie Wyckoff. He prepared for Princeton at Phillips Andover, where he played on the baseball and football teams. His career at Princeton was eminently successful. He played on the Class baseball and football teams, and got on the 'varsity football in '83 and stayed there until the glorious championship wind-up at New Haven in '85. He was president of the Baseball Association in '85-'86, and played on the 'varsity nine in '86. No one was more closely identified with the various phases of undergraduate life than Tracy. He was graduated with the degree of A.B., and got his A.M. in course.

After graduation Tracy studied law from October '87 to May '89 at Columbia, finally graduating with the degree of LL.B. from New York University in 1889. Since then he has been engaged in the practice of law: at first with his brother, Edward W. Harris '84, then with "Ed" Harris and Francis Forbes, under the firm name of Forbes & Harris; later with ex-Judge Roger A. Pryor in the firm of Pryor & Harris, and now with his brother in the firm of Harris & Harris.

Tracy has won all sorts of honors. He has been closely and actively identified with athletics at Princeton and has given valuable service as a member of the Graduate Advisory Committee, with which he has been connected practically since graduation. He has been a member of the Board of Governors of the University Club and the Princeton Club of New York. He served as president of the Princeton Club in 1902, 1903, and 1904, and in appreciation of his services, 115 members of the Club gave him a delightful dinner at the Hoffman House on February 21, 1906, and presented to him a beautiful silver loving cup. Tracy was elected vice-president of '86 at our reunion in June 1896.

Tracy is a member of the University, Princeton, Republican, Racquet, St. Anthony, Down Town, Rockaway Hunt, Ardsley, Country Club of Westchester, and Garden City Golf Clubs.

Tracy was married to Miss Laura D. Curtis of New York, at West End, N. J., on September 4, 1890. He lives during a large part of the year at Hewlett, Long Island, where he has an attractive country place.

WALTER BUTLER HARRIS.

Walter was born in Princeton, N. J., July 13, 1865; his father, the Rev. William Harris, was treasurer of Princeton College from 1869 until his death in 1885; his mother was Christina Van Alen Butler. He prepared for college in the Princeton private, public and preparatory schools and entered the Civil Engineering Department of the John C. Green School of Science in September '82, and was graduated June 1886 receiving the degree of Civil Engineer.

After graduation he was employed in the Princeton Bank and later in the summer secured a position in Philadelphia with a firm of mechanical engineers. In the fall of 1886 he obtained a position as rodman on the Engineer Corps of the Wilkes-Barre & Scranton Ry. and soon after was promoted to levelman. He remained with this company until the completion of the road in 1888. In March 1888 he was connected with the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co. on preliminary and location surveys near Phillipsburg, N. J. In the fall of '88 he received a position in the Division Engineer's office of the C. R. R. of N. J., and it was while he was in this position that the offer of an instructorship in Civil Engineering came from Princeton. In 1895 he was made Assistant Professor of Civil Engineering and in 1899 he was appointed Professor of Geodesy. Walter writes as follows:

I am an Elder in the First Presbyterian Church. In Princeton I have served as Street Commissioner, Borough Engineer, Township Engineer, and for seven years was a member of the Board of Health, being President of the Board when I was forced, on account of poor health, to resign. In landscape architecture I directed the grading of the College campus from the "Halls" south including the Brokaw Field, the Princeton Inn grounds, and the drive at Mr. Pyne's. I have been retained by Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa., to prepare plans for their new campus, with sites for proposed buildings, and have designed and constructed a system of jetties for the protection of the New Jersey Coast at Bayhead, Asbury Park, etc. I am the architect of the Charter Club House and of ten dwellings in various parts of Princeton, engineer and architect of Broadmead, a building tract below Varsity Athletic Field, that intellectual Tuxedo where high thinking and plain living go hand in hand with beautiful surroundings.

Walter was married on November 22, 1892, to Miss Anne L. Yeamans, of Princeton and has had four children: Dorothy C., born October 16, 1893; Walter Butler, born October 19, 1895; George Yeomans, born April 11, 1901, died April 14, 1901; Helen Boyd, born April 5, 1902. Dorothy goes to Kent Place School, Summit, N. J.; William B., Jr., to Princeton High School, and Helen goes to Miss Purves's Private School.

Walter was obliged to sail for Italy on February 14, 1911, on account of his health. He wrote before sailing: "It is a great regret not to be with the class at their coming reunion, the best, I am sure, we will ever have, but the doctor advises an imperative rest, and I am looking forward to six months of enforced idleness without relish. Hoping the best things for the reunion and wishing I could be with you all etc."

The best wishes of the class go out to Walter for complete restoration.

CHARLES ELLIOTT HAYS.

Hays entered Princeton in junior year. He came from Crawfordsville, Ind. He was born March 30, 1867, and was graduated from college in 1886.

Since graduation Hays has been practically lost to sight, although now and then the Secretary has had some track of him. After leaving Princeton he taught in a preparatory school in Mifflintown, Pa., and took a theological course in Philadelphia, intending to prepare himself at Princeton for the ministry. Since then there have been several reports concerning him—one to the effect that he was a private in the army at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; another that he served in the Boer War and the Cuban Army. It is known that he was second lieutenant, 18th Infantry, U. S. A., resigning January 6, 1897, and it is stated that he was also in the British Army, serving in India and Africa. His sister in New York has declined to give any information concerning him.

CHARLES HELLIWELL.

Helliwell was born in Bradford, Yorkshire, England, May 1, 1863, son of Moses Helliwell and Mary Smith Helliwell. He prepared at Phillips Andover, entered Princeton in September '82 and was graduated as A.B. in '86 and received the degree of A.M. in '89.

FACULTY ROOM
LOCATED IN NASSAU HALL

At first he thought of teaching, and taught Latin and English at the Morris Academy, at Morristown, N. J. He remained there for four years, and then went to Union Theological Seminary, and was ordained to the ministry at Park Ridge, N. J. in 1890. He kept a preparatory school in Madison, N. J., and supplied a pulpit in Park Ridge from '90 to '96. Since that time he has been a minister holding pastorates at Old Concord, Pa., Mannington, W. Va., Bellaire, O., and Richmond, O., where he now is. In May 1901 he was graduated in theology from the Western Theological Seminary. During his five year's stay at Mannington he had built a new church of brown stone, and his church supported a mission four miles away, which later he organized into a Presbyterian Church, with a pastor of its own.

Helliwell was married to Miss Minnie A. Morris, of Sandwich, Mass., on June 29, 1887, and has three children: Lillian Agnes, born January 22, 1889; Marion Angela, born August 25, 1891, and Charles Harold, born July 1, 1897. The two daughters are Sophomores in the Western College for Women, at Oxford, O., and Harold is in the Grammar school at Richmond.

Helliwell writes:

There is not very much to tell of my life and labors. My pathway has been pleasant, and as one of our writers says: "This way runs the trail that lies along the higher sunlit hills where those who journey see afar, and the light lingers even when the day is done". We have had few sicknesses, and only now and then a slight misfortune. We have a great deal to be thankful for. I often think of the fine fellows of '86 and occasionally I write a line or two to some of them. I read eagerly any news I see about them and I rejoice greatly in their successes. I shall enjoy the reading of the Class Record.

SAMUEL C. HENNING.

Henning came to Princeton from Louisville, Ky., in Freshman year, and left in 1883 and went to Harvard where he was graduated with the Class of '87. He entered into the real estate and financial brokerage business in Louisville and five or six years ago he was associated with his brother, J. W. Henning & Co., dealers in stocks and bonds in Wall Street. He is now a member of the firm of S. C. Henning & Co., 71 Broadway, New York.

He married Miss M. Julie Duke, of Louisville, Ky. He is a member of the Metropolitan and Tuxedo Clubs. Inasmuch as he was graduated from Harvard he prefers to be enrolled with that institution.

WALTER LOWRIE HERVEY.

Walter was born in Mt. Vernon, O., September 28, 1862, son of Dwight B. Hervey and Mary E. Reeder. He prepared at the "prep" department of Denison University, Granville, O., entered Princeton in September '84, graduated A.B. in '86, and received the degree of Ph.D., honoris causa, when he became President of Teachers' College, New York, in '92.

He taught three years in boys' preparatory schools. In 1889 he became Dean and later President of Teachers' College. He remained at the college eight years, resigning in 1897 and spending the following year in Europe in study and travel. He was a student at the Universities of Berlin and Jena. In 1898 he became a member of the Board of Examiners of the New York Board of Education and is still a member of this important organization. For six years, '93-'99, he was dean of the Chautauqua School of Pedagogy. He has been a lecturer on religious education at Hartford Theological Seminary and at Yale Divinity School; chairman Educational Committee, West Side Y. M. C. A., and President Department of Elementary Schools and Member of Council of Religious Education Association.

Walter writes:

I have never heard of man, woman, child, or jackass, who coveted my job as examiner. My side lines, however, have been more interesting. For the past twelve years I have been adviser to the Educational Department of Longmans, Green and Company, and for the past four years have been editing the Horace Mann Readers.

As chairman of the Educational Committee of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association for the past ten years I have seen the enrollment in the educational classes (including Finance Forum, Real Estate, Motor Boating, and Aeronautics) mount from 500 to over 2800, the tuition fees in one year being over $70,000: the "West Side" has broken all records for attendance, for receipts and for variety of work offered. I am a member of the Council of the Religious Education Association, a trustee of the Society for the Preservation of the Adirondacks, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Italian-American Civic League, and a vestryman in Holy Trinity Church. I served two terms as president of The Round Table. For the past two years (nearly) I have been a member of the Executive Committee of the Child Welfare Committee, Gaylord White being chairman of the Committee on Settlements, "Dick" Hodge being an active member of the Committee on Churches, Temples and Sunday Schools, and "R. T." Halsey being a distinguished guest on the opening night in the 71st regiment armory. From November to February, as chairman of the Administration Committee, I was in executive charge of the exhibit,—the biggest and bulkiest job I ever had.

"Please put in anything you want to say." Well, during the past twenty-five years I have found the world a pretty interesting place to live in,—never more so than now. I am a firm believer in the doctrine that the real satisfactions of life—those centering in work, play, music, pictures, books, travel, home and friends—should not diminish but should rather mount with advancing years. My best wish for '86 is that this may hold good for every man in the class.

Walter was married July 14, 1887 to Miss Antoinette Bryant, of Gilbertsville, N. Y., and has one boy, Walter Bryant Hervey, born June 16, 1892, who is now a Freshman at Princeton, "proud and glad", his father says, "to be there as we are proud and glad to have him."

HARRY HILLARD.

Harry was born in Mendham, N. J., February 23, 1865, only child of Henry Hillard and Mary Ballentine. Some years later, his father having died, he and his mother made their home in Morristown, N. J., where he attended Morris Academy. He entered Princeton in '82 and left in November '85, on account of ill health. He received his diploma as A.B. later.

He went to California for his health, and decided to make that his home, much to the regret of his many friends here. Soon after going West, he purchased land in southern California for a fruit ranch and had it planted with orange and grape fruit, which he still owns, and from which fruit is now being raised for the market, as well as for his own table.

In 1891 while on an Eastern visit, he married Miss Ellen Walsh Hum-

FITZ-RANDOLPH GATEWAY.

ERECTED IN FRONT OF OLD NORTH ON NASSAU STREET, IN HONOR OF NATHANIEL FITZ-RANDOLPH, DONOR OF THE GROUNDS ON WHICH NASSAU HALL STANDS.

phreys, of Pittsburg, on October 15. Two children were born: Humphreys Hillard, born January 17, 1894, and a little girl, born Dec. 24, 1904, who died a few days later. The son attends the California Polytechnic School at San Luis Obispo.

After his marriage he returned to Berkeley, a suburb of San Francisco, where he lived with his mother and acted as College Secretary of the State Y. M. C. A. Later, while completing his theological studies he became the assistant pastor of the Berkeley Presbyterian Church where he remained until called to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church of San Luis Obispo. Harry's mother died while he was in Berkeley.

In May 1910 he came East as Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church held at Atlantic City. His summer vacations, as it is too warm then to remain in San Luis Obispo, are usually spent at Catalina Island. Since he has been in San Luis Obispo as pastor, a new church has been built and the membership greatly increased.

Harry writes:

Harry Kemper and I hold the Princeton fort here, but ours are the only Princeton faces seen for great stretches of time. We are "exiles" as far as the college is concerned."

HUGH LENOX HODGE.

Hugh was born at Mauch Chunk, Pa., May 25, 1864, a son of the Rev. Dr. John Aspinwall Hodge and Charlotte Gebhard Morse, and a twin brother of "Dick". He was educated in the public schools of Hartford, Conn., entered Princeton in September '82, was graduated in '86 with the degree of A.B., and received the degree of A.M. later. While in college he played on the lacrosse team and on the championship football team.

After graduation he entered the Princeton Seminary and was graduated therefrom in '89, having taken "P.G." courses also in college. Hugh played on the 'varsity football team the year after graduation. Since that time he has been a minister of the Presbyterian Church. From May '89 to the fall of 1891 he travelled through Europe, Asia Minor, Palestine, and Egypt, as tutor to John W. and Horatio Garrett '95, of Baltimore. From December '91, to October '95 he was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Oxford, Pa.; from October '95 to March 1909, he was pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church of Erie, Pa. From April 1909 to September 1910, he lived in Scotland and London recuperating and studying privately the Bible, the churches and other organizations, "working for the uplift of humanity". He is now pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Sewickley, Pa., near Pittsburg, having moved there in the fall of 1910.

Hugh was married in October 1893 in Glasgow, Scotland to Miss Annie Fleming Beith, daughter of Hon. Gilbert Beith, M. P., and has two children: Gilbert Beith Hodge, born July 25, 1900, and Beatrice Hodge, born September 13, 1903. Both are now at school in Sewickley and Gilbert is bound for Princeton.

Hugh writes:

I resigned my charge in Erie February 1909 because I had broken down in health with nervous exhaustion and had to have a complete rest for an indefinite period. I lived out of doors in Scotland for a good six months and greatly enjoyed the beauties of Edinburgh, St. Andrews and the Highlands. After that I was able to take up studies systematically and continuously, and for a full year every morning I had the rare opportunity of pursuing my favorite line without any outside responsibilities or demands on my time. The afternoons and evenings I occupied in attending the lectures, addresses, etc., offered to the public and in seeing how aggressive work was actually carried on by those who employ their whole time in uplifting their fellows in Scotland and in London, England. I was a delegate to the World's Missionary Conference in Edinburgh in June 1910 and attended the General Assembly of the United Free Church of Scotland in 1909 and 1910.

RICHARD MORSE HODGE.

"Dick" was born in Mauch Chunk, Pa., on May 25, 1864, a son of the Rev. Dr. J. Aspinwall Hodge, and Charlotte Gebhard Morse. His mother belonged to the family of S. F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph, and his father was a member of the Hodge family which has been so intimately connected with Princeton college and seminary. His brothers are J. Aspinwall '83, Hugh '86, and Samuel C. '88.

"Dick" was prepared for Princeton at the High School of Hartford, Conn., entered Princeton in September '82 and was graduated in '86 with the degree of A.B., receiving the degree of A.M. in course subsequently.

"Dick's" career in Princeton is well known to all members of the class. He was active in college life and athletics. He played football and lacrosse, and was quarter-back on the famous team which beat Yale in '85. He was a Lynde debater, was active in Whig Hall and in his Senior year was a managing editor of The Princetonian.

After graduation he entered the seminary with his brother Hugh, and both of them played on the football team the fall after graduation. "Dick" also played in '87. "Dick" also was coach of the football team subsequently, and his advice and counsel were eagerly sought. Many of the newer plays in the game, especially the "flying wedge", were attributed to him. He remained at Princeton 'till 1890, taking P.G. courses in college and seminary. He was ordained a minister in '90 and has been pastor of Presbyterian Churches in Milwaukee from '90 to '92; at Wallingford, Pa. '93, and Riverton, N. J., '94-'95. He became professor of Theology and Pedagogy in the Assembly Bible and Training School and professor of Bible history in Fredericksburg College, both at Fredericksburg, Va. He was superintendent of the Bible Institute at Nashville, Tenn., and pastor of the McNeill Memorial Church there in 1899.

In 1900 he went to Palestine, and from 1901 to 1907 he was director of Extension Teaching in the Union Theological Seminary, New York, and from 1902 to 1907 he was lecturer on Biblical Literature at the Teachers' College of Columbia University. From 1907 to 1911 he has been lecturer in Biblical Literature, and English Extension Teaching in Columbia University.

He belongs to the Religious Education Association, the Presbyterian Church Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis, the National Geographic Society, the Free and Accepted Masons, and Theta and Chi Alpha, two local ministers' clubs. He is an independent Democrat, and is as fond of golf now as he used to be of football.

He received the degree of D.D. from the University of Nashville in 1901.

He was married to Miss Alice Austen, of Glencoe, Md., June 28, 1888, and has two children: Genevieve Austen, born September 22, 1894, and Edward Austen, born March 30, 1896. Genevieve attends the Fawcett-Hodge School, New York, and Edward is at Hackley School, Tarrytown, N. Y.

FOOTBALL GAME ON UNIVERSITY FIELD

"Dick" has attended all the class reunions, except the first, and many of the informal reunions in New York.

J. PARKE HOOD.

Hood died at his home in Mt. Airy, Philadelphia, on March 17, 1904. He suffered from an attack of pneumonia, from which he was unable to recover.

Hood came to Princeton in September '82, and left college in June '84. He was with us just long enough to endear himself to all of us. He never lost interest in his college or his classmates, and frequently returned to Princeton. He was connected, after leaving college, with the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Co., at Pottsville, Pa., and then returned to Philadelphia to become paying teller of the Union Trust Co. He was with that company for seven years, and for six years with the Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf Railroad, of which he was Secretary and Treasurer, with offices at Philadelphia. At the time of his death he was treasurer of the Consolidated Lake Superior Co.

On April 15, 1891, he was married to Miss Emily Baird Thompson, at Pottsville, Pa., who, with four children, survives him: John Parke, Jr., born April 21, 1893; Sidney, born June 2, 1896; James Gowan, born December 27, 1899; Heber Thompson, born April 13, 1904.

Parke, Jr., has been at work for more than a year. It was hoped to send him to Princeton when he got through school, but he has a very good position in the Pennsylvania Railroad at Pottsville and is perfectly happy. Sidney, the girl, is at the Wissahickon Heights School. Gowan is at the Chestnut Hill Academy. He is quite a student and an omnivorous reader, and he will reach Princeton in due time. Heber is at the "Mount Airy School" or Kindergarten, too young, as yet, to think of college.

"Hoody" was a member of the Princeton Clubs of New York and Philadelphia; The University Club of Philadelphia, The Philadelphia Cricket Club, and the Mt. Airy Country Club.

JAMES HAYS HORNER.

"Jim" was born in Allegheny County, Pa., October 10, 1864, son of Thomas D. Horner and Mary A. Horner. He went to school at Cheshire, Conn., entered Princeton "Scientif" in September '82 and left in September '84 to go into the coal mining business. Since 1893 he has been in the insurance business in Pittsburg. "Jim" comes on to New York once in a while and always receives a warm welcome from '86.

He was married October 11, 1888 to Miss Laura Moye. They have no children.

WALTER BUTLER HOWE.

Walter was born on September 2, 1865 at Princeton, son of Edward Howe and Hannah T. Butler. His brother, Edward, is in the class of '90. He went to the Princeton "Prep" School and Greylock Institute, South Williamstown, Mass., entering Princeton "Scientif" in September '82 and leaving in May '84.

He was with the Princeton Bank for a while and from '85 to '93 was with the North British & Mercantile Insurance Co. From 1895 to 1904, he was in the export business with "Senator" Baucus, in New York. Walter's headquarters for several years have been in Princeton, his old home, where he is in the real estate and insurance business on Nassau Street.

Walter was married in New York City May 28, 1895 to Miss Annie Jewett Collins.

WILLIAM HERBERT HUDNUT.

"Huddy" was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., October 24, 1864, a son of Alexander Hudnut and Marie Louise Parker. He was prepared for college at Phillips Exeter, class of '84, entered Princeton in '82, and was graduated in '86 with the degree of A.B.

On leaving college he entered the Seminary but was obliged to leave on account of illness. He returned, however, and remained in the Seminary two years, finally graduating at the Union Theological Seminary in New York. He was ordained in 1890, and served as Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Port Jervis, N. Y., from July '90 to July '95; then in July '99 he was called to the First Presbyterian Church of Youngstown, O., the oldest church of any denomination on the Western Reserve, and is still there. His church is now raising money for the building of a parsonage, and has already secured $10,000.

He was married June 25, 1890 at Northampton, N. Y. to Miss Harriet Beecher and has five children: Dorothy, born June 22, 1891; Marjorie, born December 27, 1892; Herbert, born February 4, 1894; Ella Katherine, born October 26, 1895, and William Herbert, Jr., born May 29, 1905. Marjorie is at Miss Dana's School, Morristown, N. J.; Herbert enters Princeton and will be a member of the Class of '15; and Katherine of the Class of '17 at Wellesley.

"Huddy" writes:

There is little to tell. The record is to be filled in chiefly with hard work and the joys of my home life. For almost twelve years now I have had the responsibility for a large and exacting parish. During that time the city has about doubled its population. I have tried to be a citizen as well as a minister and have given freely of my time and strength in furthering all organizations and movements that make for civic betterment. For several years past I have had an assistant. I am a member of the Mahoning Golf Club and have been greatly benefitted in body if not in disposition by attempting an impossible bogey. Two years ago the church sent my wife and me for a summer abroad. We visited Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Belgium, England and Scotland.

Hudnut received the degree of D.D. from the University of Wooster, Wooster, O., in 1906.

OTIS L. JACOBS.

Jacobs died on September 30, 1897 at his home in York, Pa., of cancer of the caecum, after a long and trying illness. At the time of his death, he was Principal of the York High School.

ALEXANDER HALL.

GIFT OF MRS. CHARLES B. ALEXANDER, OF NEW YORK. ERECTED ON THE GROUND BETWEEN REUNION HALL AND THE OLD "GYM."

Jacobs was born in York, Pa. on March 15, 1862. After leaving college, he taught in Central Pennsylvania College, New Berlin, Pa., where he was professor of mathematics, and vice-president of the institution. He then became Vice-Principal of the High School in York, and later Principal, which position he held at the time of his death. Some idea of his standing in the community may be gathered from the following comment in The York Daily:

The death of Professor Jacobs removes a most estimable and able educator from the public schools of York. He was thoroughly earnest and active in advancing the interests of the schools, as well as those of the students under him; and he daily mingled the influences and examples of a noble Christian character with his work and duties. Coming here in 1887 as assistant principal upon the retirement of ex-County Superintendent Brenneman, he soon won the respect and affection of the various classes of the High School and held them ever after in increasing degree and confidence as assistant first, and afterwards as principal. Prof. Jacobs' intellectual and professional gifts were many and of a high order that revealed a ripe and scholarly mind. When Prof. Shearer retired from the principalship, he was succeeded by Prof. Jacobs, who had by his excellent work as assistant meanwhile demonstrated his professional capacities. Since then, year after year, he had been bringing the High School to a new and higher standing among educational institutions, and if his life had been spared he would have accomplished other great things for its good, growth and usefulness.

He was an active member of the United Evangelical Church, and local preacher in that body. He was also active in Christian Endeavor work.

The funeral of Prof. Jacobs was one of the largest ever held in York. Two services were held, one for the family and the public, the other for the school teachers and scholars. The burial was in Prospect Hill Cemetery.

Jacobs was married November 24, 1887, to Miss Nellie Madge, of Baltimore, who died in 1892. He left two boys: Paul Burke, born June 12, 1889, and Oscar Madge, born January 16, 1892. Paul graduated from the York High School in 1906, and from Penn. State College in 1910. He is now employed as a chemist for the Davis Coal and Coke Company, at Thomas, W. Va. Oscar is a graduate of the High School in Brooklyn, N. Y., and has now (1910) entered on a course in a medical and surgical school in Brooklyn. His address is No. 525 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn. They are both healthy and stout boys, according to their grandfather.

CHARLES ALBERT JAGGAR.

"Jag" was born at Southampton, L. I., N. Y., Nov. 3, 1862, son of Albert Jaggar and Maria Pelletreau. He was prepared for college at Genesee Wesleyan Seminary, Lima, N. Y., and spent freshman and sophomore years at Oberlin College, entering Princeton in the junior class, fall of '84. He was graduated with the degree of A.B., and received the degrees of A.M. and Ph.D. in '88.

From Sept. '86 to June '89 he was a post-graduate at Princeton, taking special courses under Dr. McCosh. From Sept. '89 to Sept. '92 he was principal of the Glenwood Collegiate Institute at Matawan, N. J., and from Sept. '92 to June '93 he was professor of mathematics and science at Parson's College,

Iowa. From Dec. '93 to April '94 he was a student at Berlin University. In Nov. '94 he bought The Seaside Times at his old home in Southampton, of which, as he says, he is now "editor, proprietor, business manager, sole owner, general utility man and devil—that sterling and stirring journal; advertising rates on application."

He was married at Southampton June 9, 1887, to Miss Anne Halsey White and has two daughters: Mary Pelletreau, born Jan. 14, 1889, and Gertrude Elizabeth, born June 3, 1894. Mary was graduated from Oberlin in 1910 and is now teaching at Jamestown, N. Y., and Gertrude is at Southern Seminary, Buena Vista, Va.

HENRY WYNANS JESSUP.

"Cadav" was born in Beirut, Syria, Asia, on January 20, 1864, a son of the Rev. Dr. Henry Harris Jessup and Caroline Bush. His father was for many years a leading Presbyterian missionary in Syria. The son was educated at Albany Academy, Albany, N. Y., and with his brother Will, entered Princeton in Sept. '82, and was graduated with the degree of A.B. in '86, receiving that of A.M. three years later.

He studied law in the office of the late Noah Davis and attended the Law School of the New York University, receiving the degree of LL.B. in 1888, and LL.M. in 1892. He became a member of the faculty of the Law School in 1891, but resigned two years later to become a law partner of Noah Davis. When Judge Davis retired Jessup went into partnership with David Bennett King for four years and since then he has been practicing alone.

Jessup is the author of a recognized and standard treatise on "Law & Practice in Surrogates' Courts", which has run through three editions. He has been a member for three years of the Presbyterian Supreme Court, known as the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Presbyterian Church of the U. S. A. He is an elder in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, and of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions. He says he is "still a Republican in spite of Roosevelt", and he was the original proposer of Wilson Farrand as the successor of Woodrow Wilson as president of Princeton. He is a lecturer on legal ethics before the Dwight Alumni Association of New York, Union University Law School and the Educational Alliance. He is a member of the Century Club of New York and the Authors' Club of London, "by virtue of sundry publications of a fugitive character".

He writes:

I had a delightful visit recently (Dec. 1910) from Vanneman, who is a medical missionary at Tabriz, Persia, with whom my brother Frederick '97 lives. Professionally, I have had an interesting life. I studied law with Hon. Noah Davis, who gave me this advice: "Settle every case you can, but if you fight, fight like hell". Pursuant to this advice I have settled over 90 per cent of all matters entrusted to me.

Jessup was married to Mary Hay Stotesbury, of Philadelphia, on October 15, 1889, at West Chester, Pa., and has five sons: Henry Herbert, born Feb. 18, 1891; Theodore Carrington, born Feb. 28, 1892; John Butler, born Sept. 15, 1894; Philip Caryl, born Jan. 5, 1897, and Richard Stotesbury, born Oct. 1, 1907.

Jessup says that he finds Princeton "too costly to send my five boys there".

HORNER

HOWE

JAGGAR

H. W. JESSUP

Herbert is in Columbia, class of 1913; Theodore in Hamilton, class of 1914, and John and Philip are at Ridgefield School, Ridgefield, Conn.

Jessup recently won out in the so-called Westminster Church cases, in which he succeeded in establishing the denominational trust in the property of dissolved Presbyterian churches. It was a new question in New York and at first he was beaten in the lower courts. The case will be as important among ecclesiastical cases as the case of the Walnut Street Church in Kentucky.

WILLIAM JESSUP.

"Will" was born in Syria, Asia, April 26, 1862, son of the Rev. Dr. Henry Harris Jessup and Caroline Bush. He went to the Academy at Albany, N. Y., entered Princeton in the fall of '82, was graduated as A.B. in '86 and received the degree of A.M. in '89.

The first year after graduation, he was engaged in preparing boys for college—tutoring. Then he entered the Seminary and after a full course he was ordained and accepted by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions as a missionary and assigned to Syria, where he was born. He has been in Syria ever since and has been visited there by his brother Harry, Hugh Hodge and "Davy" Milton. He has returned to this country frequently and a number of the Class have had the pleasure of meeting him at Harry's house or elsewhere.

He writes as follows:

The field in which I work involves the supervision of 40 widely scattered schools (including examinations), the pastoral oversight of 30 churches and the accounts of the Mission, which are intricate owing to the number of salaries and the necessity of dealing with them in Turkish currency, and with the Board in American currency.

I am practically legal adviser of our converts and have to assert and protest their rights in the native courts. I have to preach and teach, to baptize and to bury, to counsel and correct, to ride hundreds of miles on horseback and I have recently been put in charge also of the large boys' school at Sug el Gharb.

There are a number of Princeton men out here, and occasionally we re-une.

Wish I could be with the fellows at the quarter-centennial. God bless you all. Give my love to everyone. May each of the '86 throw a man's weight into the scale for betterment!

"Will" was married on October 19, 1890, to Miss Faith Jadwin, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and has four daughters: Theodosia Davenport, born March 17, 1892, at Zahleh, Syria; Elizabeth Palmer, born June 18, 1894, at Aaleih; Helen Butchart, born Aug. 27, 1895, at Zahleh; Faith Jadwin, born Sept. 18, 1902, at Aaleih. A son, Henry Harris, born Oct. '97, died July 5, '98. Theodosia is a sophomore at Vassar, and the other daughters are at the Faculty School at Beirut, Syria.

ROBERT C. JOHNSTON.

"Mud" was born in Hollidaysburg, Pa., Nov. 4, 1863, a son of Benjamin W. Johnston and Maria Crawford Johnston. He prepared for college at "C. C. I.", New Haven, Conn., entered Princeton in Sept. '82, and was graduated with the degree of A.B. in '86, receiving also the degree of "M. U. D." cum laude.

After leaving Princeton and the "Goldie Club" "Mud" went to Deadwood, S. Dakota, and read business law. From '87 to '89 he was busy "travelling".

Then he became connected with the Hollidaysburg Iron & Nail Co. In Dec. '91 he was the victim of an explosion which severely burned his face and his head. While he was recuperating he read law and was admitted to practice in Blair County, Pa. From 1898 to 1908, he lived in Sheffield, Ala., and became a director and finally president of the Sheffield Rolling Mill, which in September 1908 became involved in bankruptcy. Since then "Mud" says he has been "recovering" and he describes himself as a manufacturers' agent.

Those who knew "Mud" in college—and who didn't?—will be astonished to learn that he has been clerk of the Presbyterian Church at Sheffield—which is "going some!" He is also superintendent of the Sunday School, which is as gratifying as it is surprising and remarkable.

"Mud" was married on June 29, 1897 to Miss Delia B. Patterson, of Hollidaysburg, Pa. He has no children.

FRANCIS FISHER KANE.

Kane was born in Philadelphia, June 17, 1866, a son of Robert P. Kane, and Elizabeth F. Kane, a descendant of the famous Arctic explorer, Elisha Kent Kane. He was educated at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., entered Princeton in '83 and was graduated in '86 with the degree of A.B., subsequently receiving the degree of A.M.

After graduation he studied law at the University of Pennsylvania and read law under George Tucker Bispham in the office of McVeagh and Bispham. In President Cleveland's second term he was appointed Assistant United States Attorney in Philadelphia, and held that office during the following administration of President McKinley. Then he went into partnership with the Hon. James M. Beck and D. Stuart Robinson, under the firm name of Beck, Robinson & Kane (Mr. Beck becoming later Assistant Attorney General of the United States.)

Francis has been active and prominent in the Democratic politics of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania and was a candidate for Mayor of Philadelphia, but was defeated by the Republican nominee, Mr. Weaver. He was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention of 1904. He says: "I am a Democrat with strong Mugwump proclivities—Gold Democrat. I voted for the two amiable old gentlemen in 1896, and did not vote in 1900. I am a crank in the matter of municipal politics; a rabid anti-Imperialist; generally 'agin' the Government".

He belongs to the Princeton, University and University Barge Clubs of Philadelphia and is not married. "No hope of anything different in this life as I am now old and very bald. Had I my life to live over again, ah! then it might be otherwise!"

Kane writes:

My father is dead and I live with my mother. I take inexpressible pleasure in seeing old classmates. When they come to Philadelphia if they knew what a favor they conferred, they would come oftener. My office and telephone number are "in the book" and at either place one and all of the old class are and will be while I live, most welcome.

WILLIAM DICKEY KEARNS.

(From the Class Record, "After Fifteen Years")

"Birdie" Kearns died of pneumonia at Mercy Hospital, Pittsburg, April 13, 1900, after an illness of less than one week. The notice of his death was a great shock to his friends, as it was the first intimation they had of his sickness. He was buried on Sunday, April 15, 1900, Dr. W. J. Reid, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church, conducting the services. Among the pallbearers were three of his classmates, R. D. Totten, J. J. Lawrence and Dr. J. P. Shaw. His mind was perfectly clear until the last. A few moments before he died he asked the nurse about his pulse and temperature, and on receiving her reply, he said: "I cannot live much longer at that rate."

William Dickey Kearns was born in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, October 31, 1865, the son of James Dickson and Mary (Ballantine) Kearns. His paternal grandfather, William Kearns, came to America from the north of Ireland, and his paternal grandmother, Mary Campbell, was a native of Paisley, Scotland. On his mother's side, both the Ballantines and Wallaces were Scotch. He was prepared for college in Newell's Institute, Pittsburg, and was graduated from Princeton in the Class of 1886. After a year spent in the drug business in Pittsburg, he began the study of medicine under Joseph N. Dickson, M.D., of Pittsburg, and in 1888 entered the Medical Department of Columbia University, New York City, graduating from that institution in the Class of 1891. For the year following his graduation he occupied the position of resident physician in Mercy Hospital in Pittsburg, and since 1892 had been engaged in the private practice of his profession in that city. He was examining surgeon of recruits for the regular army during the Spanish-American War, and was surgeon to Passavant Hospital in Pittsburg at the time of his death. His professional career was remarkably successful, and his skill as an able diagnostician was acknowledged by all.

"Birdie" is another of the old guard to be removed from the ranks of '86 by death. His genial humor, his alertness of mind, his unflinching love for '86 and Princeton endeared him to every member of his Class. He will be sorely missed, for at all the reunions he was a conspicuous and beloved figure.

ALFORD KELLEY.

Kelley was born in Baltimore, Md., April 6, 1859, son of William Herod Kelley and Agnes Stewart. He was prepared at Baltimore City College and by private tutor, entered Princeton in September '81 with the Class of '85, dropped into '86 and received the degree of A.B.

He entered the Seminary and received the degree of A.M. after graduating from the "Sem". He filled pastorates at Nicholson, Pa., '89-'90; Mooredale, Pa. '90-'93; Frazer, Pa., '93 to '05, and Erie, Pa., '06-'07. In 1905 he was Moderator of the Chester Presbytery, commissioner to the General Assembly, and associate editor of the Pennsylvania State Prohibition paper. He is now with the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League and is superintendent of the Harrisburg district of twelve counties. He is not married.

HENRY LAWSON KEMPER.

"Harry" entered Princeton in September '82 and left in June '84. He was born in Cincinnati, O., January 31, 1863, a son of Henry L. Kemper and Elizabeth M. Kemper. He prepared for college at the White & Sykes School, now Franklin School, at Cincinnati.

On leaving college "Kemp" went into the banking business with the Commercial Bank of Cincinnati, and since then has had several positions with various banks. He is now cashier of the Commercial Bank of San Luis Obispo, Cal. He has never lost his interest in Princeton or '86, and came back for the sexennial and decennial.

He was married on December 24, 1894, at New Brunswick, N. J. to Miss Clara V. D. R. Runyon and has two children: Warren R. Kemper, born July 21, 1895, and Cornelius R. Kemper, born September 20, 1897. Both children are being educated in the public schools, and Warren expects to go to Exeter to prepare for Princeton.

"Harry" writes:

Harry Hilliard, too, is here, pastor of our Presbyterian Church, and I try to assist him in his duty as pastor and preacher by singing in the choir. He is so loyal to his Alma Mater, even in the pulpit, that it would not surprise me at any time to have him announce: "We will all now join in singing all the verses of 'Old Nassau'", and had we won the football game it might have been: "Whoop her up for '86". But I am just as loyal, and if he ever does make such an announcement, I shall "line up" and sing with all my heart.

HENRY CUMMING LAMAR.

"Tilly" Lamar died on March 1, 1891, near Augusta, Ga. He had gone out rowing in the canal with Miss Louise King Connelly, to whom he was engaged, for the purpose of seeing the effects of a recent flood. The boat was caught in the tremendous current, the oar was pulled under the side of the boat, which overturned and plunged Miss Connelly and "Tilly" in the water. "Tilly" went under and never came up again. The force of the current was so great that his shoulder was broken, by being dashed against the iron bars of the wier. Miss Connelly was drowned almost as quickly. The current was soon shut off and both bodies were recovered.

The frightful accident cast a gloom over the entire community, where both of the young people were so well known. Miss Connelly was the eldest daughter of Mr. John B. Connelly, of Augusta. She was a granddaughter of the late John P. King. She was twenty-one years of age and was educated at the school of Mrs. Sylvanus Reed, in New York, and is described as a beautiful young woman, of charming and delightful character. She completed a course of study in Paris where she lived with her aunt, the Marchioness of Anglesey. Miss King inherited a fortune of $500,000 a few months before her death.

On March 13, both Miss King and "Tilly" were buried. The funeral of "Tilly" took place in the afternoon at the Church of the Good Shepherd, in Augusta, the Rev. W. M. Walton officiating, assisted by the Rev. C. C. Williams. "Tilly" was buried in the beautiful cemetery of Summerville, by the side of his father, mother and brother, Paul Cazenove Lamar '89.

LAMAR

"TILLY" LAMAR

"Tilly" Lamar was born on October 4, 1865, the eldest son of the late Derosset Lamar, a member of the well-known Southern family of that name, and a nephew of the Hon. Joseph B. Cumming, from whom he got his middle name. He came to Princeton in September '82, and from that time on his undergraduate life became a part of the history of Princeton. He played on his class football teams for two years, and in 1883, he became a half-back on the 'Varsity team when "Alex" Moffat was captain. From that time on he was a member of the 'Varsity, and his brilliant playing on the team, his wonderful dodging, his splendid drop-kicking and punting, his fearless courage in offense and defense, and his marvelous ability to score, will never be forgotten in the history of Princeton football. In the year of '84 he scored seven touchdowns, and in the fall of '85, he made himself forever immortal at Princeton, by his marvellous touchdown in the game against Yale at New Haven on November 21st, when by a long run down three-quarters of the field, eluding or dashing through three-quarters of the Yale team, he turned defeat into victory and gave to Princeton the football championship of 1885.

That victory doubly endeared "Tilly" to the college and to his class. He remained, however, the same, quiet, unassuming, polite and attractive undergraduate he had always been.

After graduation, he returned to his home in Augusta, went into the hardware business for a short time, and then in April 1887, he became connected with the Augusta Cotton Factory. In 1889 he went to Nicaragua with Miss Connelly's father to settle there, but was obliged to return to this country, on learning of the serious illness of his brother Paul. This illness terminated in Paul's death, and "Tilly" continued to live in Summerville, a suburb of Augusta, up to the time of his tragic death.

"Tilly" is survived by his sister, who is the wife of General William P. Duval, recently in command of the United States Military forces in the Philippines.

ADRIAN HOFFMAN LARKIN.

"Sal" entered Princeton in September '82 and dropped into '87 in '83, on account of illness. He was captain of the 'Varsity nine in his Senior year. "Sal" is, of course, thoroughly identified with '87, but '86 still has a soft spot for him and a warm welcome when he wants to join us. "Sal" is a successful lawyer in New York and is a member of the well-known firm of Joline ('70, who married "Sal's" sister) Larkin & Rathbone. He has been very successful at the law, is a well-known golfer, and has made thoroughly good.

He married Miss Katherine B. Satterthwaite, of Nutley, N. J., and has two children: Sarah E., and James S., who is a student at Morristown School, bound for Princeton.

"Sal" belongs to the Racquet, University, Princeton, Down Town, Brook and Garden City Golf Clubs. He had two brothers in Princeton: Francis '79, and John '82.

JAMES B. LAUGHLIN.

"Jimmy" was born in Pittsburg, Pa. on August 20, 1864, son of Henry A. Laughlin and Alice Deniston. He was educated at Isaac Koontz School, Pittsburg, and entered Princeton in September '82.

Since leaving college, most of "Jim's" life has been devoted to the steel business with the well known steel firm of Jones & Laughlin, of Pittsburg, one of the largest steel concerns of the world. In this firm he has occupied many important positions during the last twenty-five years, having served as a director and as treasurer. The latter office he resigned on January 1, 1910.

He is president of the Pittsburg & Lake Angeline Iron Co., vice-president of the South Side Trust Co. of Pittsburg and vice-president of the Lake Superior & Ishpeming Railway Co.

"Jimmy" was married on October 10, 1888 to Miss Clara B. Young, daughter of William Wallace Young, of Pittsburg. He has three children, two boys and a girl: Ledlie Irwin, born April 26, 1890; Henry A., born March 18, 1892, and Alice D., born October 19, 1895. Both the boys went to St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H. Ledlie is now (1911) in the Junior class, 1912, and Henry is in the Freshman Class, 1914. Alice is in school at Dobb's Ferry, N. Y.

JOHN J. LAWRENCE.

"Jay" was born in Huntington, Pa., October 5, 1865, son of John J. Lawrence and Anna E. Lawrence. A brother, William W. Lawrence, president of the National Lead Company, is a member of the class of '78. "Jay" prepared at the Western University of Pennsylvania, entered Princeton in '82 and graduated with the degree of B.S.

"Jay" went into the paint business with his brother in the firm of W. W. Lawrence & Co., Pittsburg, and he has been in that business ever since, with an occasional venture in gold mining. He has been back for every reunion since graduation.

He was married at Cincinnati, O., on October 19, 1892, to Miss Clara Louise Andrews, and has four children, two boys and two girls: Louise, born October 17, 1893; John J., born October 15, 1895; William W., born May 9, 1897, and Miriam, born February 2, 1899. Louise goes to Westover School in Connecticut; John is in Lawrenceville, Class of 1913; and the other two children are at the Alleghany "Prep" School.

ROBERT LINCOLN LEE.

"Bob" was born in New York City, son of William H. Lee and Louise M. Northam. He was educated at Cutler's School, New York City, entered Princeton in the "Scientif" School in '82 and left in the spring of '83.

From '83 to '95 he was engaged in cattle raising in Montana. From '95 to '02 he was a partner in the well known firm of Tweedy & Co., importers and jobbers in New York. While in Montana "Bob" was manager of Lee Bros. cattle ranch at Birney and later President of the Birney Land & Live Stock Co.

He was married in June 1897 to Miss Josephine Clairborn Wilson at Roanoke, Va. He belongs to the Racquet and Ardsley Clubs and is a veteran of Squadron A.

JACOBS

KEARNS

LAUGHLIN

LESLIE I. LAUGHLIN
Class of 1912

HENRY A. LAUGHLIN, JR.
Class of 1914

JOHN S. MC ADAM.

"Mac" was born at Newport, R. I., October 6, 1861, a son of Samuel McAdam and Margaret C. McTaggart. He prepared at Roger High School, Newport, entered Princeton in September '82 and was graduated A.B.

He spent two years at Columbia Law School, was graduated and admitted to the bar. He practised law in New York from '88 to April 28, 1901, and from 1901 to November 15, 1909 he was an examiner in the Lawyer's Title Insurance & Trust Co. From that date to this he has been in the law firm of Mabbeth & McAdam.

"Mac" was married on November 6, 1895 at Newport, R. I., to Miss Anna H. Crandall, and has three boys: Roger W., born March 24, 1900; and John S. Jr., and William C., TWINS, born November 25, 1901. The boys attend the public schools of Kearney, N. J., and "Mac" says they are "booked for Princeton".

JAMES WALLACE MC ALPIN.

"Mac" was born on April 24, 1865 at Savannah, Ga., son of James Wallace McAlpin and Marie Sophia Champion. He was a brother of Hon. Henry McAlpin '81, Judge Court Ordinary at Savannah. He prepared for Princeton at Virginia Military Institute, entered Princeton in the fall of '82 and left in Sophomore year, to the regret of all the members of the class to whom he had endeared himself by his charming Southern manners and his delightful personality.

The following extract from a letter by his brother, Judge McAlpin, will give some idea of his career and fortunes after leaving Princeton:

I have delayed answering your previous communication regarding "Jim" in the hope that I might find a photo that would do him partial justice, but I regret to say that I have been unable to find one. He was averse to having his picture taken and the only ones we have of him are in groups and most of them small kodak pictures that cannot be enlarged.

"Jim", as you know, was a beautiful, manly lovable character. Honest to an extreme, he believed every one else equally honest, trusting everyone with a childish simplicity. Convivial in his love for his fellow man, he abhorred the avaricious greed of the business world, for to him money meant nothing. Consequently his inheritance was easily gotten from him. He retired to the country life which was more congenial than the hustle and noise of a city. He loved nature and agricultural pursuits. He was wonderfully clever and resourceful in mechanical construction. He was almost a finished carpenter and cabinet maker and invented several devices of mechanical usefulness, but his lack of business enterprise and push prevented his turning his patents to any financial profit.

Two years before he died he met and fell in love with a high bred charming lady, one of the aristocratic, proud but poor families of South Carolina. This lady was a widow of exceedingly small means with a fascinating little family of two sons and two daughters. "Jim's" love was reciprocated, and before marrying her he concluded he would build his own nest as he was too proud to go to her home which she owned. He had practically no means to expend on the erection of a home such as he thought suitable for his wife and like the pioneers of this country he went into the forest, felled the virgin trees, squared the logs for the framework, purchased the lumber and nails, and with his own hands, assisted only by an ignorant day laborer, built one of the most comfortable, convenient, artistic and attractive homes I have ever seen. Here on the bank of a bold salt river, nestled amid a grove of splendid, moss-festooned oaks, he took his proud and loving wife in September 1909. They were perfectly happy and congenial. Both loved the country and knew the name and nature of every sprig and plant and it appeared to us that loved them both that this union would produce not only supreme happiness and contentment but perhaps wealth, certainly prosperity. God ordained otherwise. In February he developed marked symptoms of kidney trouble and by June he was placed in bed in a hospital in this city. Although everything was done for him, known to medical science, that might relieve him, still it was ordained otherwise and he passed into the great beyond on the 9th day of August, less than a year from his wedding day.

"Jim" lived at Lindon Plantation, Bluffton, S. C. and was a planter there, as he had been since he left college.

He was married on September 19, 1909 to Mrs. Catherine Bostick Jones, who had four children by her first husband, two boys and two girls ranging from 16 to 2 years of age.

GEORGE BRINTON MCCLELLAN.

George was born on November 23, 1865 at Dresden, Germany, where his parents were temporarily residing. He is the only son of General George B. McClellan and Ellen M. Marey. He was educated at St. John's School, Sing Sing, New York, entered Princeton in '82 and was graduated in '86 with the degree of A.B. Later he received the degree of A.M. in '89; the honorary degree of LL.D. from Princeton in 1905; the same degree from Fordham University in 1905 and from Union College in 1906.

After graduation, George travelled in Europe and remained there for two years. From February '88 to October 12, '99 he did newspaper and editorial work for The New York Journal and The World. Later he became assistant to the financial editor of The Herald and eventually its railroad editor. He studied law one year at the Columbia Law School and was admitted to the bar in June 1892.

From October 12, 1889 to January 1, 1893, he was treasurer and auditor of the New York and Brooklyn Bridge. On January 1, 1889, he was appointed by Governor Hill an aide-de-camp on his staff, with the rank of Colonel. From January 1, 1893 to June 1, 1895, George was elected president of the Board of Aldermen of New York, on the Tammany ticket with a plurality of 78,210, the largest plurality ever given up to that time for any candidate for public office in the City and County of New York.

George was elected to the 54th Congress as a Democrat in March 1895, and reelected to the 55th, 56th, 57th and 58th Congresses, serving in all for ten years. While in the House of Representatives he made an excellent record, serving on the Ways and Means Committee, the most important committee of the House. He resigned from the House in December 1903 after he had defeated Seth Low, Mayor of New York, who was a candidate for re-election, by more than 62,000 plurality. He was re-elected Mayor in 1905, when he was victorious over William M. Ivens and William R. Hearst, by a handsome vote. George served the City as Mayor until January 1, 1910, when he declined a re-nomination. His career as Mayor of New York is a matter of record, and it reflected the highest credit upon him as a public official of honor, integrity, distinction, and value—giving New York an administration honorable alike to him, to his class and to his college.

LAWRENCE

MAC LAREN

McCLELLAN

On June 1905, the degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon him by Princeton and he was presented to President Wilson as a candidate for this honor in these words:

"George Brinton McClellan, a graduate of Princeton University in the Class of 1886, for ten years a member of the national House of Representatives and now Mayor of the City of New York. Entering young and untried into public life, it soon became evident that he was under the guiding influence of a sense of responsibility in public service, and that he knew this involved patient study and a willingness to acquire slowly, if need be, knowledge and familiarity with the people's needs. Winning by this conservative course the increasing confidence of his constituents and fellow members, he soon attained recognition as an influential, able, conscientious and fearless legislator. As Mayor of our metropolitan city he has repeated with emphasis his earlier record of these sterling qualities in a larger way as an officer of administration, and to-day, by general consent, stands as the best Mayor New York has known within our memory."

On January 28, 1908, George was the guest of honor at a dinner given at the University Club, New York, by the American group of the Société des Architectes Diplômés par le Gouvernement, a club of American architects who have received a diploma at the École des Beaux-Arts. The club presented to the Mayor a special medal from the parent society in France with instructions to award it to the American layman who had rendered conspicuous service to the cause of architecture in this country. It was presented by the French Ambassador, M. Jusserand.

On April 20, 1909, the Princeton Alumni of New York and elsewhere gave a dinner in honor of the Mayor which was attended by 500 men. The dinner was a great success. Twenty men of '86 sat at a separate table and "whooped it up" for George of '86. John L. Cadwalader '56 presided, and speeches were made by President Woodrow Wilson '79, Job E. Hedges '84, Edmund Wilson '85, Attorney General of New Jersey, and by the Mayor himself. Altogether it was a magnificent tribute to the Mayor for what he had done and striven to do as the Chief Magistrate of the metropolis.

On January 12, 1910, George and Mrs. McClellan sailed for Europe to do some mountain climbing in Switzerland and to tour the Continent. "I have served six years in the Mayor's office", said he, "and ten years in Congress and what I need now is a good long rest".

On his return to New York in September 1910, he took up the practice of law, and is associated with Eugene L. Richards, who will be remembered as one of Yale's half backs in the class of '85.

George has been prominently identified with City, State and National politics. He is a member of Tammany Hall and was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1896.

George is a member of the Union, Princeton, Author's and Church Clubs of New York, the Metropolitan, and Army and Navy Clubs of Washington, and the Loyal Legion and Sons of the Revolution.

On October 30, 1889, he was married at Newport, R. I., to Miss Georgiana L. Hecksher, of New York. He has no children.

He is the author of "The Oligarchy of Venice", a history, and of numerous magazine articles and lectures on public questions. When Grover Cleveland died in 1908, George succeeded him as incumbent at Princeton of the Stafford Little Lectureship on Public Affairs, founded in 1899 by the late Henry Stafford Little '44.

George lives in Princeton most of the year, and is now building a house there. He sailed for Europe in January 1911, and will not be able to attend "Old Home Week".

In the Spring of 1911, a fund, amounting to $50,000 was given to Princeton to establish a lectureship on public affairs, to be held by George, who will enjoy the income of this amount.

SAMUEL JOHN MC CLENAGHAN.

McClenaghan was born in Fairfield, Penn., March 17, 1862, son of Samuel C. and Agnes H. McClenaghan. He prepared for college at York Collegiate Institute, York, Pa., and entered Princeton in September 1884, graduating with the degree of A.B. He entered the Princeton Seminary, and after graduating there, was settled, first, at Pleasant Grove, N. J., then as assistant to the Rev. Dr. James M. Ludlow '61, pastor of the Munn Avenue Presbyterian Church of East Orange, with special charge of the Elmwood Chapel. He remained there for nine years. He suffered from an attack of nervous prostration, and was obliged to go to Asheville, N. C. where he remained for five years, preaching at the Normal College at that place. Later he removed to Knoxville, Tenn., and became the pastor of the Fort Sanders Presbyterian Church. He is now pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Jamesburg, N. J.

He has been clerk of the Presbytery, and twice Commissioner to the Presbyterian General Assembly. He writes:

My work has been in quiet and inconspicuous pulpits. I never cared for honors, and consequently never received any. I have honestly tried to help men and women to a brighter and happier life and trust that I have not been wholly unsuccessful.

McClenaghan was married on June 4, 1889 to Miss Anna B. Marsh, of Princeton, and has three children: Marguerite, born June 19, 1890; Willis, born July 6, 1894; Esther, born July 12, 1899. Marguerite is a graduate of Maryville College, Tenn., 1908, and of Teachers' College, Columbia University 1910. Willis is in the Jamesburg High School.

JOHN W. McKECKNIE.

"Mac" was born in Wilmington, Ohio, October 3, 1862, son of J. B. McKecknie and Julia McKecknie. He prepared at Wilmington College, Ohio, entered college in 1882 and graduated A.B. in 1886. While at Princeton he played on the lacrosse team.

"Mac" went to the Columbia School of Mines and took a course in architecture, studying also in the office of Cady, the architect. He was also connected with the Metropolitan Museum of Art, superintending the work on the Willard Collection of Architectural Casts. In 1896 he was abroad studying. In 1898 he moved to Kansas City, where he is a successful architect.

He married Lotta Hilliker, of New York, on December 6, 1900, and has a daughter, Mary, born in 1902.

McCLENAGHAN

McKENNIE

McKENNEY

ROBERT J. MATHIS

MATHIS

CARROLL MCKENNEY.

Carroll McKenney died at his home—his father's home—in Washington, D. C., on October 11, 1894. He had been abroad during the summer of 1894, and just before sailing for home he complained of feeling ill. His malady increased at sea, and was further aggravated by the vigorous treatment he received at quarantine. When he reached home on October 1, it was found that he was suffering from typhoid fever. For ten days he suffered uncomplainingly, and then the end came.

Carroll was born in Washington, D. C., on December 31, 1865, a son of James H. McKenney, who has for many years been the honored Clerk of the Supreme Court of the United States. He was a brother of Frederick D. McKenney '84, and Charles A. McKenney '92. On leaving college he studied law and was admitted to the bar of the District of Columbia in June '88. For a time he was a clerk in his father's office, and in 1892 he entered into the active practise of law with the firm of Phillips and McKenney, practising successfully up to the day of his untimely death.

Carroll was greatly beloved in Washington, as he was in Princeton, because of his many kindly and lovable qualities. He was an enthusiastic and loyal Princetonian and '86 man, and he attended every reunion of his class.

He was buried in Oak Hill Cemetery, Washington.

JOHN MCMULLIN.

After a long illness John McMullin died of consumption in Tucson, Ariz., on January 8, 1903. He had fought bravely against the malady, had travelled throughout the country in hopes of securing relief, and even contemplated a trip abroad to consult with eminent specialists. His hope was a vain one, and despite every care and every attention, he could not avert the inevitable end. His wife, in writing to the Secretary of his death, said: "He always felt a great interest in his class and college and was going to the Reunion 'after fifteen years' when he was taken ill. He so often spoke of his college days, and his different friends in '86, that I feel as if I knew them all, and shall always take an interest in his college. Perhaps some day my own boys may go there".

"Mac" entered Princeton in '82 from San Francisco, he and "Jim" Adams being the only representatives from California. He left college in December '84 to go into business, much to the regret of all his classmates, who admired him for his many fine traits of character.

John McMullin was born in Stockton, Cal., and was thirty-seven years old at the time of his death. His father, Capt. McMullin, was an old Texas Ranger, and his mother was prominent socially in San Francisco. He was educated in the public schools there, and after leaving Princeton, took a trip to Europe, and returning to his native State, engaged in farming in San Joaquin County. He was elected to the Assembly from that county and took a deep interest in public and political affairs. In Fresno he became president of the Fresno National Bank, president of the San Joaquin Ice Company, vice president and manager of the Fresno Canal & Irrigation Company and director and first vice-president of the California Raisin Growers' Association.

The Fresno Republican had this to say of him:

John McMullin was one of the most respected men in Fresno. Quiet in demeanor and gentlemanly in all his dealings with men, he was firm in his decisions, unalterable in his purpose. He attracted men to him, and while possessing none of the cheap tricks of the politician, yet he could always gain the votes of his fellow men. He took an active interest in politics and was one of the most influential men in the councils of the Democratic party. On several occasions the nomination of State Senator was tendered him, but he declined. The only office he ever held was that of Assemblyman, having been elected from San Joaquin County.

Mr. McMullin was one of the best type of business man. Coming into a large inheritance, he added to that which he had. In the business community his judgment was frequently sought. He had a clear decisive mind, a large grasp of affairs, and sound sense. In all his business ventures he was successful.

McMullin was married in Oakland, January 4, 1884 to Miss Betty Hays, daughter of a business associate of his father in the early days. Mrs. McMullin, with three children survives him: John Jr., born 1890; Eliza, born 1891, and Harmon, born 1894.

McMullin was buried in Rural Cemetery, Stockton.

Mrs. McMullin, who is now Mrs. Joseph H. Norris, and lives at Oakland, Cal., writes that her boy, John, is in business in San Francisco; her daughter, Eliza, made her debut in San Francisco last year. The younger son, Hays, is determined to be a rancher.

WILLIAM STEVENSON MAC LAREN.

"Mac" was born in Princeton, January 1, 1866, a son of the Rev. Donald MacLaren and Elizabeth Stockton Green. A brother, Malcolm MacLaren '90, is now professor of electrical engineering at Princeton. He was prepared for Princeton at Prof. Hastings's Academy in West Philadelphia, entered college in September '82 and was graduated with the degree of A.B.

"Mac" entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York and was graduated in '89 with "Buck" Bailey, "Dodo" Green and "Fe" Paton. Two months before graduation he received an appointment on the house staff of Bellevue Hospital, and he was an interne there until April 1891, when he went to Litchfield, Conn. to practise. A few years ago he went to Princeton, where he enjoys a large and successful practise. He has served on the Board of Health for four years, and during the year 1910 he has been physician to the Princeton Athletic Association, taking care of the various athletes.

"Mac" was married on June 14, 1892 to Miss Louisa Cobane, of Skaneateles, N. Y. She died on July 13, 1896, leaving two children: Lydia, born June 2, 1894, and William S. Jr., born June 16, 1896. On April 12, 1898 he was married to Miss Blanche Freeman of Philadelphia, and by her has one son, Donald Ross, born February 14, 1903. Lydia goes to Arlington Institute, Alexandria, Va., and William goes to Blair Academy, Blairstown, N. J.

"Mac" is now a member of the '86 "bunch" at Princeton, and he always has a warm and hearty welcome for any member of the Class who goes back to the old place.

MAPES AND HIS TWO BOYS

AUGUSTUS STRONG MAPES.

"Gussie" was born in New York on August 17, 1865, son of John A. Mapes and Sarah S. Strong. He prepared for college at Goshen, N. Y., entered Princeton September '82, and was graduated with the degree of A.B., receiving that of A.M. in course later. "Gussie" was the Class Poet and the author of the Class Song we remember so well:

We are gathered now together
Our parting song to sing.

After graduation "Gussie" studied law at Columbia and was graduated in the Spring of '88. He has practised law since then with his father under the firm name of John A. and A. S. Mapes until his father's death in February 1907, since which time he has practised alone.

"Gussie" has been married twice. His first wife was Miss Helen Russell Shipman, and they were married October 14, 1891, at Stony Ford, N. Y. She died October 4, 1892. On February 5, 1897 he was married to Miss Annette M. Stewart, of New York, and has two children: John A. Mapes, born February 5, 1898 and Douglass Stewart Mapes, born April 28, 1901. Both of the boys are at Riverdale School, Riverdale, N. Y., bound for Princeton, of course.

"Gussie" belongs to the Princeton, University, and New York Athletic Clubs, and invariably attends all Princeton functions, inside and outside, and especially '86 gatherings.

JOHN CASS MATHIS.

"Jack" Mathis died on December 2, 1904, at his home in Chicago as the result of a second operation for appendicitis.

The funeral took place at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and the burial was at Oakwood.

He was born in Springfield, Ill. on July 18, 1864. While in college he was prominent in his studies and in athletics. He played on the championship lacrosse team, was a Lynde debater, a managing editor of The Nassau Lit. and correspondent of The New York World.

"Jack" was the first man in '86 to get married. He was married on June 28, 1886, in Brooklyn, to Miss Marie Wyatt, by whom he had two sons: Robert Jennings Mathis, born January 4, 1890, now a member of the Class of 1913 at Princeton, and John C. Jr., born August 22, 1897. In August 1896, Mathis began newspaper work on The Illionis State Register, of Springfield, Ill., and in October of that year he entered the law office of Conkling and Grant. He was admitted to practise in November 1887. He entered actively into the National campaign of '88, and did excellent work for the Republican party. He opened a law office of his own and engaged in practise for himself until in 1889 he was appointed by U. S. Attorney General Miller as Assistant United States Attorney for the Southern District of Illinois, a position which he filled with credit and ability.

In 1892, Mathis accepted a position with N. W. Harris & Co., of Chicago, the well-known brokers and dealers in municipal and corporation bonds, and made the law of investment securities a specialty. Three years later he left that firm, but continued to do much of their work, and built up an independent clientage in Chicago. In 1896, he formed a law partnership with S. P. Shope, an ex-justice of the Illinois Supreme Court, and others, under the firm name of Shope, Mathis & Barritt. Later the firm became Shope, Mathis, Zane & Webe, and when the litigation arose over the franchises of the street railway companies of Chicago this firm was retained as counsel in the contest to test the validity of the ninety-nine year act.

Mathis was a member of the University and Chicago Clubs.

The older boy, Robert, is now a Sophomore at Princeton. The younger son "Jack" is thirteen years old, and resembles his father very much. He is in his last year at the Elementary School of the University of Chicago. After this year (1911) he expects to begin his preparation for Princeton in earnest.

Mrs Mathis writes: "Mr. Mathis enjoyed the '86 reunions so much. He never missed one if he could possibly attend."

FREDERICK G. MEAD.

"Fred" was born at Ossining, N. Y., November 5, 1861, a son of Robert G. and Harriet N. Mead. He prepared for college at Marlborough Churchill's, N. Y., entered Princeton in 1882 and left June 1884.

For a time Mead was a farmer or breeder, interested in the development of horses and dogs. In '94 and '95 he was in the contracting business. From 1895 to 1905 he was in the employ of New York City in the Department of Water Supply and was at one time superintendent of the second division of the Croton Aqueduct. Since then Mead has been doing nothing. He is now living in London and writes:

I hope to be with you in June. I am sorry that I have not kept more in touch with the old class, but promise to mend my ways. My family has been in Europe for the past six years. My girls have been studying languages and now that my younger girl is about through school, we intend to return to the United States in April 1911.

"Fred" was married to Miss Anne L. Lawrence at Paterson, N. J. on April 28, 1887 and has two daughters: Christine, born July 28, 1890, and Mary R., born April 9, 1893. The younger daughter is attending school at Eastbourne, England.

HARRIS CORNELL MESEROLE.

"Mezzy" was born July 9, 1865, son of Abraham Meserole and Catherine M. Meserole. He prepared for college at Siglar's School, Newburgh, N. Y., entered Princeton with the Class of '85 in 1881, and then was graduated with the Class of '86, with the degree of A.B.

Soon after graduation he became connected with the Williamsburg Fire Insurance Company, of New York, and was with that company for four years. In 1890 he went with the Manufacturers' Trust Co. of Brooklyn, which later lost its separate identity through merger with the Title Guarantee and Trust Co. In 1904 he resigned to devote his attention to some tangled real estate matters and to look after his health which has not been robust. He is leading the simple quiet life, looking out for his health.

"Mezzy" has attended all reunions, big and little, of '86, and is always "on the job". He belongs to the Princeton Club of New York. He is not married.

EDWARD DE MOSS MILLER.

Miller was born in Gerardstown, W. Va., June 12, 1862, son of William Smith Miller and Isabella Wilson McKeown. He prepared at Newark Academy, Newark, Del., entered Princeton in the fall of '83 and was graduated as A.B. in '86, and received the degree of A.M. in '88. Subsequently he got the degree of Ph.D. from Berlin University in '98.

On graduation, he won the fellowship in philosophy and "polled" philosophy and German while holding the fellowship. He was in the Seminary from '87 to '91. He was active in the ministry from '91 to '94 and from '94 to '98 he was a student of philosophy in Berlin.

The Secretary regrets to state that since that time Miller has not been in good health. He is living quietly at his old home.

MARION MILLS MILLER.

Miller was born at Eaton, O., February 27, 1864, a son of Robert Miller and Margaret Ann McQuiston Miller. He prepared at the Eaton High School and entered Princeton in September '84, receiving the degree of A.B. in 1886, A.M. in 1888 and Litt.D., in 1889.

From September '86 to June '87, Miller taught in Princeton Preparatory School; from September '87 to June '88 he was fellow in English at the college; from '88 to December '92 he was assistant professor in oratory under "Mary" Raymond. Since January '93 he has been "engaged in literary and social reform work in New York City. I have been editor of The University Magazine, Financial Record, Business, and The Manuscript; literary adviser of Funk & Wagnalls Co., publishers, and book editor of P. F. Collier & Son."

Miller is a Single Taxer (whatever that may be). In 1897 he was secretary of the executive committee of the Henry George campaign for mayor that year. In 1896 he was an independent Bryan Democratic candidate for Congress in the Twelfth District of New York, and was defeated by George McClellan, who, however, declined Miller's numerous invitations to a joint debate.

Miller organized the Association for the Public Control of Franchises, which was instrumental in securing the passing through the New York Legislature of the Ford bill for the taxation of franchises.

Miller is also engaged in the real estate business and is secretary of the Oak Island Beach Association at Babylon, L. I. Miller writes:

I am a bachelor. Even as a literary father, my children are largely adopted ones, as my labors have chiefly been in editing works of others. Thus, from the literary remains of Henry C. Whitney, a legal colleague of Abram Lincoln, I edited a two-volume life of the great President. I also edited "The Works of Lincoln", (of which, by the way, The New York Sun said: "This selection is admirably well made; with much that is familiar, there is more that has not attracted so much attention"). Other sets of books edited by me are "The Works of Edgar A. Poe", "The Nineteenth Century and After", "The Classics—Greek and Latin", Masterpieces of Fiction.

Miller is the editor-in-chief (1910) of "The Classics", a comprehensive and thoroughly edited selection of the Greek and Latin masterpieces of literature, in fourteen volumes. The work is published by Vincent Parke & Co., New York. Miller has translated for this work some of the poems and fragments of Sappho, and some of the idyls of Theocritus. Maurice Thompson, the Indiana poet and novelist, has declared Miller to be "the most successful of all translators of Greek lyric poetry."

"I have assisted in the writing of a number of other books, the one of interest to Princeton men being "The Princeton Speaker", a revision of Prof. Raymond's "Orator's Manual". In tribute to another Princeton Professor, the late Samuel R. Winans, I would say that, encouraged by him, I published "The Sicilian Idyls of Theocritus", metrical translations, many of which were made while studying under him in college. This little book secured me admission to the Author's Club and has led to other delightful literary associations and friendships. My only other club is the Manhattan Chess."

Miller is unmarried.

DAVID M. MILTON.

"Dave" was born in Kentucky, Nov. 20, 1864, entered Princeton in the Fall of '82 and was graduated an A.B. in '86.

After graduation he studied philosophy and German literature at Heidelberg for three years, and also studied at the College de France, Paris. Returning to this country in '89 he studied law at Columbia University and was in due course admitted to the bar.

On March 25, 1896 at Louisville, Ky., he was married to Miss Ellen Hunt Fink and has three children: Albert Fink, born September 11, 1897; David M. Jr., born February 22, 1900, and Ellen Fink, born December 14, 1902.

"Dave" has forsaken the law and is now a "gentleman farmer", tilling the soil at Pocantico Hills, where John D. Rockefeller grows.

"Dave" writes regretfully that on account of absence abroad he will not be present during "Old Home Week".

JOHN C. MONTANYE.

Montanye came to college from Johnsville, Pa. He was born July 11, 1865, entered college in '82 and was graduated A.B. in '86. After graduation he was an assistant in the College Library and later was graduated from Columbia Law School. It is understood that afterwards he was involved in some trouble. In any event, nothing has been heard from or about him for twenty years.

JOHN A. MONTGOMERY.

John was born in Trenton, N. J., July 11, 1865, son of Augustus R. Montgomery and Margaret Kernochan. He was prepared for college at Trinity Military Institute at Tivoli-On-Hudson, N. Y., entered Princeton in '82 and was graduated an A.B. in '86. While in college the "Dude" roomed with "Shag" Congar.

After graduation he went into the office of the Clerk of the Court of Chancery at Trenton, studied law and was admitted to the bar in June '91. In '88 he ran for school trustee and cut down the Republican vote a good deal, but not quite enough. The "Dude" is a successful practitioner at the bar, and is quite active in the politics of Mercer County. In September 1909 he nominated Katzenbach '89 for Governor in the Democratic State Convention at Trenton, and in November 1910 he was the Democratic candidate for State Senator in Mercer County. Although the county is normally Republican by 2500, the "Dude" made a fine campaign and was "licked" by only 500 votes. He says: "I have led the simple life, devoting my time chiefly to my profession and to my family. I believe that "Dan" Bickham, "Jack" Mathis and I have the distinction of being the first '86 men to have sons at Princeton". He might add "Jimmy" Laughlin, who has two boys at Princeton and Walter Hervey, also.

THE PRINCETON INN

ERECTED AND OWNED BY ALGERNI, AND SITUATED ON THE MORGEN PROPERTY, PART OF THE STOCKTON ESTATE.

The "Dude" was married at Trenton on November 19, 1891, to Miss Helen B. Stryker, daughter of the late General William S. Stryker '58, Adjutant General of New Jersey from 1867 to 1900, and has two children: John R., born November 6, 1892, and Helen S., born September 6, 1894. John is now at Princeton in the Class of 1913, and Helen is attending private school in Trenton.

MATTHEW H. MORGAN.

Morgan left '86 in March '83 and was finally graduated with the Class of '87. The Secretary has been unable to find out anything about him.

A. L. NELDEN.

Nelden was with the Class until February '84. He was graduated from the New York Homeopathic Medical College, and since then has practised his profession as P. T. Barnum used to practise his. He is, or was, a face specialist and guarantees to straighten a nose, eliminate a wrinkle, reduce the size and shape of an ear, or do any stunt to the human face that the patient is willing to stand for and pay for. That will be about all for old "Doc" Nelden.

JOHN S. PARKER.

Parker died suddenly on June 30, 1904, at his home in Ocean Grove, N. J. He was born on August 24, 1852, and was the oldest member of the class. He was married when he entered Princeton, and during his college course, he served as minister to several Methodist Churches. He was an earnest faithful student, quiet in demeanor, loyal and zealous in his work.

After leaving college, he preached as a regularly ordained minister of the New Jersey Methodist Episcopal Conference, serving at different times as pastor of churches at Windsor, Beverly, Trenton, Turkey and Cedarville, N. J.; Ottowa and Columbus, Kansas; Ashland, Hudson, West Superior and Viragua, Wis.

In May 1903, he was prostrated by the heat, and never recovered from the shock. He was left without an appointment in the Spring of 1904, and moved to Ocean Grove, where he died.

Parker was married before he came to college to Miss Lizzie Sexton, at Asbury Park, N. J., on October 20, 1880. He is survived by his wife and three children: Alma T., and Edna H., TWINS, born Nov. 24, 1887, and Claude Willard, born April 2, 1890. Another son, Leigh S., died at one year of age, while Parker was a sophomore.

STEWART PATON.

"Fe" was born in New York City, April 19, 1865, a son of William Paton and Annie S. Paton. He prepared at Wilson & Kellogg's School, New York, entered Princeton in Sept. '82, was graduated with the degree of A.B. in '86, and received the degree of A.M. in '89.

He was graduated from "P. & S." New York in '89, was on the staff of Bellevue Hospital from '89 to '91, together with MacLaren, and was assistant to Dr. T. Gaillard Thomas from '91 to '93. He then studied for three years in the Universities of Edinburgh, Vienna, Freiburg, Berlin and Naples, making a specialty of nervous and mental diseases. He later became assistant associate in Psychiatry at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, and was a member of the Lunacy Commission of Maryland, and director of the Sheppard Asylum at Baltimore. He resigned these positions in 1904 and went abroad to carry on special work and investigation in Berlin and at the Zoological Station, in Naples, Italy, for five years. While in Naples, he rendered distinguished and able service to the victims of the volcanic eruption. He returned to this country in 1909, and is now living at Princeton, where he is pursuing his investigations at the new and finely equipped Biological Laboratory.

"Felix" was married to Frances Margaret Halsey, a sister of "R. T.", in Brooklyn, N. Y., on June 24, 1892, and he has three children: Frances Evelyn, born Sept. 1895; William, born 1897, and Richard Townley, born 1900.

He is building a house at Princeton on the shores of Carnegie Lake and writes: "The latch string hangs on the outside of our door".

In 1905, "Fe" published a book on "Psychiatry" which has been well received and highly commended.

On March 7, 1911, Gov. Woodrow Wilson appointed Stewart a member of the board of managers of the State Village for Epileptics.

EDWARD HAMILTON PERSHING.

"Persh" was born on January 23, 1865, at Johnstown, Pa., a son of Judge Cyrus L. Pershing and Mary Rogers Pershing. He is a brother of Theodore Pershing '85. He "prepped" at the High School of Pottsville, Pa., entered Princeton in the fall of '82, and was graduated with the degree of B. S. While in college he was the leader of the Instrumental Club.

From '86 to '89 he taught German and mathematics at Englewood, N. J. He then studied medicine at P. & S. and was graduated in 1892. He entered the Presbyterian Hospital, New York, as a member of the staff in July 92, and remained there two years, when he moved to Lawrence, L. I. Since 1894 he has practised medicine at Lawrence and Woodmere, where he now lives.

"Ned" was married on June 20, 1900, at Shamokin, Pa., to Miss Marie Antoinette Boggess. He has no children.

He has travelled a great deal by bicycle and automobile, during his vacations, both here and abroad.

He belongs to the Princeton Club of New York, the Rockaway Hunt Club of Cedarhurst, and has been visiting surgeon to St. Joseph's Hospital, Far Rockaway, and Nassau Hospital, Mineola, L. I.

HORACE PORTER.

Porter was born in Harrisburg, Pa., in Nov. 1864, son of General Horace Porter and Sophie McHarg. His father was aide and secretary to General Grant during the war, and recently was U. S. Ambassador to France. His brother, Clarence, was in '95.

Horace, or "Laz", as he was affectionately known, was educated at Lawrenceville and entered Princeton in '82. He was very prominent and popular in '86, during freshman year, and then he dropped into '87 with which class he was graduated.

He entered the office of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad and was in that office up to the time of his death in Sept. 1890. He is survived by his widow, who was Miss Adelaide Wattson, who has since married again.

WILLIAM RANKIN.

Rankin was born in New York City April 1, 1863, son of the Rev. Dr. Edward E. Rankin and Emily Watkinson Rankin. He was prepared for college at Williston Seminary, the Hartford, Conn., public school and the Newark Academy. He received the degree of A.B.

After graduation, from '86 to '87, he was a private tutor; from '87 to '88 a teacher in a school at Media, Pa.; from '89 to '90 he held the English fellowship at Princeton; from '90 to '91 he was in Europe; '91 to 92 he held the fellowship of Archaeology at Princeton. He spent a term at Harvard, and had a second archaeological fellowship at Princeton, '95-'96, and spent several years in Europe "working on the history of origins of modern plastic and graphic art as a life study and as a basis for criticism and projected museological work, which was started by the help of Princeton. I am now known as a specialist and an expert on internal evidence, especially by making the first attempt at a scientific estimate of early Italian pictures in America". Rankin was in Europe principally from 1892 to 1903, with one year, '92 to '93, teaching French and German at Pingry School, Elizabeth, N. J. In 1903 and 1904 Rankin lectured at Wellesley and Simmons Colleges, Massachusetts, and since then has been engaged in literary, journalistic and art expert work. He has made an international reputation as an art expert and has published considerable original work. He writes:

I am engaged in art-historical studies, and especially on the general theory of art, with the purpose of educational work in college text books. I have also been doing general art-expert work, professionally. After finishing a book now in hand, I expect to do some journalism and art expert work. I am trying to escape an over-specialization which is instructive, but unprofitable. I have been quite on the inside of art matters, in Europe and here.

Rankin was married to Miss Carrie Louise Rundle, a sister of George Rundle, on June 11, 1902, at Montagu, Sussex Co., N. J., and has three daughters: Teresa, born Feb. 5, 1904, at South Framingham, Mass.; Caroline Ayer, born Sept. 28, 1905, at Richmond, Mass., and Wilhelmina, born March 10, 1908, at Elizabeth, N. J.

JOSEPH POPE RANNEY.

"Joe" was born in Newark, N. J., Feb. 20, 1865, son of Timothy Pickering Ranney and Anna Pope Pennington. He was educated at the Newark Academy, entered Princeton in September '82 and was graduated with the degree of A.B. in '86, later receiving the degree of A.M.

After graduation until April 1889, he was assistant to the auditor of W. V. McCracken & Co., railroad builders of Wall Street, New York. From April 1889 to March 1891 he was engaged in engineering work, chiefly railroad construction with the Rome & Carthage Railway Co. of New York, and also in Kentucky and Ohio. From Nov. 1891 to Feb. 1899, he was secretary and treasurer of the Caledonia Mining & Manufacturing Co., and treasurer of the Chambersburg & Gettysburg Railroad Co., at Chambersburg, Pa. In April 1896, he was admitted to the Franklin County bar at Chambersburg, and became a colleague of "Snorky" Stewart and Walter Sharpe. He was admitted to practise in the Supreme Court two years later. In January 1899 he returned to New York and became secretary and treasurer of the Tidewater Building Company, a concern which, it is understood, is closely connected with the Astor estate and does a large part of its building and construction work.

"Joe" was married on June 16, 1908, to Miss Mary G. Kintzing, of New York, at Buffalo, N. Y., at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. John C. Richards. He belongs to the Princeton Club of New York and the Cottage Club of Princeton, and lives at Dobb's Ferry, N. Y.

A daughter, Helen Pennington Ranney (of the Class of '86, as "Joe" puts it) was born March 5, 1911.

ALFRED N. RAVEN.

Raven writes as follows:

I was born on March 1, 1856 in Macomb, N. Y. I prepared for college at Winona, Minn. and Galesville, Wis. I entered Princeton in September '83 and left in March '84. After leaving Princeton I spent three years in Auburn Theological Seminary and was graduated from the institution. My first pastorate was at Elbridge, N. Y. My second pastorate was at Phillipsburg, N. J., the First Presbyterian Church. My third pastorate was at Mifflintown, Pa., where I also taught in the Mifflin Academy, Latin, French and Mathematics.

I went to Seattle in 1900 and became pastor of the Ballard Presbyterian Church. In 1905 my health gave out and I went into the country and lived in the woods for five years, entirely regaining my health.

I came out of the woods in November 1910 and have since been delivering lectures in different places and doing some preaching. The subjects of my lectures are: "The Philosophy of Happiness"; "The Home, The Bulwark of The State"; "Atoms as Revealing Mind".

I attained some prominence in Pennsylvania as a lecturer before Teachers' Institutes. I have written a few poems, some of which have been published in The New York Evangelist, one of which "Eternal Life" elicited high praise. It consists of only twenty lines. I have about ready for the press a book entitled "Almost a Socialist". It is intended to show that the underlying philosophy of Socialism is contrary to the facts of history and experience.

I am looking for a suitable opening in the East in some church not too large.

Last of all, but not least, I have a fine son, aged 18. He is already attracting attention in Seattle as a musical director. A musical festival will be held in May in Seattle. There will be a chorus of 1,000 voices, led by a symphony orchestra from New York. Our little boy is drilling 100 voices for that festival.

M. M. MILLER

G. REYNOLDS

ROBINSON

I am vigorous and hearty at 55, possessed of a fine voice for public speaking.

Raven was married to Miss Ella S. Perry, at Oswego, N. Y., July 21, 1888, and has one son, Alfred Perry Raven, born May 1, 1892.

RAVEN AS AN ORATOR

Comments on His Ability as a Lecturer

Mr. Raven is an orator of high quality, humorous, pathetic, sincere, and always dramatic. He is possessed of exceptionally graphic powers.—The Juniata Tribune.

If ever he comes again we shall need a larger building, for the church will not hold the audience.—Altoona Tribune.

Mr. Raven is perfectly at home on the platform, possessed of a large amount of magnetism, has a good clear voice and is full of his subject.—Lewistown Free Press.

A. N. Raven, the popular lecturer and teacher of Mifflintown, delivered his lecture—"Neglected Life Lessons" in the First Presbyterian church last Wednesday night. The house was crowded, and a more delightful audience never met in this town. Interest in the lecture never lags from beginning to close. The lecture is unique in this, that the "Lessons" come close home to life, and while somewhat philosophical are so developed by humorous stories and poems in such a way that one can never forget them.—Warren Democrat.

Rev. A. N. Raven was one of the regular lecturers at the Mifflin County Teachers Institute, following Gen. Morgan of Alabama, and Russell Conwell of Philadelphia. He made a decidedly favorable impression. Mr. Raven is not content to amuse his audience, he also instructs them.—G. T. Cooper, Sup't of Public schools of Mifflin Co., Pa.

TAYLOR REED.

"Bunnie" was born at Reedsville, Pa., September 3, 1867, son of John Reed and Elizabeth D. Reed. He is probably the youngest man in the class. He prepared at Lewiston Academy, Lewiston, Pa., entered college in September 1892 and was graduated with the degree of A.B., receiving that of A.M. later.

"Bunny" won the Experimental Science Fellowship and took up his residence in Princeton. The second year he was tutor in mathematics, and in 1888 he became assistant to Professor Young in practical astronomy, and remained at Princeton until 1901. While with Professor Young he made several important contributions to astronomical science and achieved a reputation as an astronomer. Since 1901 he has been with the General Electric Company, at Schenectady, working in the laboratory, mainly in electrical and magnetic testing of materials and apparatus. "Bunny" is not married.

ARTHUR W. REMINGTON.

Remington was born at Hillsdale, N. Y., December 13, 1863, son of George F. Remington and Helen W. Bullard. He prepared at Sedgwick School, Great Barrington, Mass., entered Princeton in September 1882 and left in June 1885. Later while at the Princeton Seminary he passed his senior "exams" and received his degree and diploma as of the Class of '86.

After leaving Princeton, he taught at Sedgwick School, and then entered the Seminary in 1887. He was licensed to preach by the New Brunswick Presbytery on April 22, 1890. He has had charges in Canaan Four Corners, N. Y.,

Holyoke, and Hyde Park, Mass., the Beacon Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, and Freehold, N. J. In 1905, his doctors ordered him away from work for a long rest, and with his wife he made a trip to Egypt, Palestine, Turkey, Greece, Italy, etc. They were away five months. "This year to avoid the danger of longer nerve strain and to get a fruit orchard under way, I am 'rusticating' on a New Hampshire hill top. I expect to return to my chosen work, the ministry, before another year."

Remington was married on July 2, 1890 to Miss Mary L. Kimball at Milford, N. H. He has no children.

GEORGE REYNOLDS.

George was born in Orange, N. J., May 6, 1864, son of Clinton G. Reynolds, '54 and Mary A. Rainsford. He entered Princeton with the Freshman Class and got the degree of A.B. in '86. While in college George played left field on the 'Varsity.

He studied theology at the Seminary and in '87 again played on the ball nine. He was pastor of the Immanuel Presbyterian Church at Grand Rapids, Mich. from '89 to '91; then at Richfield Springs, New York, from '91 to '98; at Overbrook, Phila., succeeding "Cully" Erdman from 1898 to 1902, and at the Second Presbyterian Church of Kansas City, Mo., from that date to the present.

George has received the degree of D.D.

He was married at Grand Rapids, Dec. 20, 1892 to Miss Julia Nitchie Cobb, and has two children: Sanford Cobb Reynolds, born October 27, 1893, and Katharine Rainsford Reynolds, born May 16, 1896. Sanford takes his preliminary "exams" for Princeton in June of this year.

EDWARD ORTH ROBINSON.

It is with deep sorrow that the Secretary records the sudden death of "Ned" Robinson at his home in Pasadena, Cal., on January 7, 1911, from an attack of angina pectoris.

The first intimation the Secretary had of this untimely calamity was from the following letter from "Ned's" brother, William A. Robinson '81, who is headmaster of Kennedy House at Lawrenceville School:

My dear Mr. Evans.

I am sending herewith a clipping from The Harrisburg Patriot, announcing the death of my brother and your classmate, E. O. Robinson. I remember with great pleasure the affectionate terms in which you and Mr. Baucus spoke of Ned when I met you at the Princeton Club some years ago, and feel sure that this announcement will mean something more to you than a mere vacancy in the class roll.

The statement as to the cause of his death was based on the first brief telegram. On account of the very sudden nature of the attack and the lack of any previous warning, it was thought best to hold an autopsy, and the trouble was found to have been angina pectoris.

So far as we have been able to learn, he was apparently in his usual state of good health on Saturday morning and until after he came home from the office at three o'clock that afternoon. None of our telegrams have stated the hour of his death, but as the final announcement reached us soon after ten o'clock that evening, he must have passed away before six, possibly before five o'clock.

As a Princeton man, you will be interested in the following additions to the facts stated in the clipping. I was in '81, my brother T. H. was in '91, and my father was a trustee of Princeton from 1875 to 1887.

Yours sincerely,
W. A. ROBINSON.

The clipping to which Mr. Robinson refers reads as follows:

DEATH OF EDWARD O. ROBINSON

SON OF LATE REV. DR. ROBINSON DIES SUDDENLY IN PASADENA

News was received in this city yesterday of the sudden death on Saturday afternoon at his home in Pasadena, California, of Edward Orth Robinson. His death was due to angina pectoris. He is survived by his wife and one son, Harlan Baird Robinson; by one brother, William A. Robinson, of Lawrenceville, and by one sister, Miss Mary B. Robinson, of Harrisburg. His wife was Mary Baird McKnight, of Pittsburg, whose brother, Harlan McKnight, is treasurer of the Pennsylvania lines West of Pittsburg.

Mr. Robinson, who was the son of the late Rev. Thomas H. Robinson, D.D., well known in this city as the pastor of Market Square Presbyterian church, was born here on May 20, 1865, in the residence on Front Street now occupied by William K. Alricks. After graduating from Princeton in 1886, he engaged in the banking business in Pittsburg and later removed to Los Angeles and thence to Pasadena. While in California he was connected with the William R. Staats Company, real estate brokers.

He will be buried at Redlands, California, the home of the widow of his brother, Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., who died in 1907.

The following clipping from The Los Angeles Times, date of January 9, 1911, gives a few more facts and shows the high esteem in which "Ned" was held in his community:

DEATH STRIKES POPULAR CITIZEN

Pasadena, Jan. 9.—Business and financial circles of Pasadena and Los Angeles were shocked yesterday morning to learn that Edward Orth Robinson, for many years assistant treasurer and director of the William R. Staats Company, died at his home No. 255 State Street, very suddenly Saturday night of angina pectoris, a fatal form of heart failure.

Six years ago Mr. Robinson came to Southern California from Pittsburg, Pa., where he was engaged in the banking business with his brother under the firm name of Robinson Brothers. He lived for a year in Redlands, since which time he has resided with his wife and child in Los Angeles and Pasadena. Five years ago he became connected with Staats Company and was assistant manager of the Los Angeles office of that firm, with offices at No. 104 East Fourth Street.

The deceased was a particularly strong and robust man and the very picture of good health. Sickness was a thing unknown to him and he had no warning whatever of the approach of death until he was suddenly stricken.

He was born in Harrisburg, Pa., in 1865, being the son of Dr. Thomas Hastings Robinson of the Allegheny Theological Seminary; graduated from Princeton in 1886 and a post graduate of Lehigh University. Leaving college he entered the banking business.

In Lehigh he was a member of the Sigma Phi fraternity and was a member of the University Club of Los Angeles and the Annadale Country Club. The deceased is survived by a widow and a small son. The funeral services will be held at the late residence this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment will be in Redlands.

"Ned" had already made out his answers for the Class Record, and his reply was forwarded after his death. He was born in Harrisburg, Pa., May 20, 1865, son of the Rev. Dr. Thomas Hastings Robinson and Mary Wolf Buchler. He was prepared for college at Harrisburg Academy, entered Princeton in 1882, and got his A.B. in 1886. While in college he was universally esteemed and beloved for his many social qualities and his cheerful and happy disposition.

From 1886 to 1888 he was a clerk in the Pittsburg Tube Works. In January 1889 he decided to take a course in electricity and studied two years at Lehigh University, playing on the ball nine there. Later he gave up electricity for business and from 1890 to 1895 he was a clerk with Robinson Bros., bankers and brokers at Pittsburg. In 1895 he became identified with the large Denny estate as treasurer and acted successfully in that capacity until April 1903, when he went to Redlands, Cal., on account of the health of his wife. From 1904 to 1905 he was treasurer of the Los Angeles Box and Hive Co., at Los Angeles, where he then lived. In 1905 he became assistant treasurer of Wm. R. Staats & Co., an important brokerage and banking house in Los Angeles and Pasadena. This position he held at the time of his death. The Vice-President of the firm, Mr. John Earl Jardiner, in a recent letter to the Class Secretary says: "His death has been a great blow to us all. As you knew him so well it is needless for me to tell you how high was his character and how lovable his disposition."

"Bob" Totten, who also sent news of "Ned's" death, wrote: "I am dazed by the sad news, as I had received a picture of his home and little boy at Christmas. "Ned" was getting along finely and he was looking forward to bringing his wife and boy back to the East and to Princeton for the 25th Reunion."

"Ned" was married to Miss Mary Baird McKnight, on October 27, 1897, at Sewickley, Pa. He has had three sons: Edward Orth, Jr., born December 28, 1900, at Sewickley; Charles McKnight, born December 2, 1906, at Los Angeles, and Harlan Baird, born June 8, 1909, at Pasadena. Edward died on July 4, 1902, and Charles on January 20, 1908. The youngest son, Harlan, is going to Princeton, deo volente, as "Ned" wrote.

We are indebted to a member of "Ned's" family for the following account of the funeral on January 9, 1911:

The beautiful simple service was held in "Ned's" charming new Pasadena home. It was conducted by the Rev. Robert G. Freeman, who was in the Graduate School at Princeton '07. It was opened with Gladstone's memorial prayer, followed by scripture reading and two hymns, and prayer by Dr. MacLaren of Princeton, father of the wife of "Ned's" brother, William A. '81. Many of the Princeton men in this vicinity were among those who attended the services. On Tuesday morning, Jan. 10, the interment took place at Redlands, in our beautiful cemetery, and "Ned" was laid to rest beside his little son and his younger brother, Thomas H. '91. Among the six friends who went to Redlands with us were three of his business associates, Herbert T. Muzzy '04, Secretary of the Princeton Club here, and an intimate friend of "Ned's" from Pittsburg, who had come to spend the winter in Pasadena only three days before "Ned's" death.

GEORGE BLACK RODDY.

George Black Roddy died suddenly of heart failure on September 9, 1910, while travelling on a train of the Susquehanna River & Western Railroad

RODDY

RANNEY

ROWELL

SHELDON

Company, between Roddy and Hoffman stations, in Centre Township, Pennsylvania. He had left his home in New Bloomfield, Pa., in the morning to transact some business in Harrisburg, where he was joined by his brother, the Rev. Joseph Stockton Roddy '91. Roddy complained of not feeling well on the return trip and had gone out on the rear platform to get some air. He suddenly called out for aid and sank down, when he was caught by his brother just in time to save him from falling off the train.

The Perry County Democrat said: "The sad news of his sudden death spread over town with incredible rapidity and produced the profoundest sorrow, casting a gloom over the entire population."

Roddy was the second son of George B. and Martha (Ege) Roddy, descended from Alexander Roddy, one of the pioneers of Perry County, and George Black, who settled there in 1756 and 1766 respectively. He was born on the old Black farm at Mount Pleasant, February 27, 1866. His father died in 1867. His mother lived on the farm until 1869, when she moved to Juniata County, and then in 1878 moved to New Bloomfield.

He was educated in the public schools of Blair and Philadelphia, and although the youngest boy in his division he stood at the head of his classes in the Philadelphia Grammar schools. He entered Bloomfield Academy and became a member of the Class of '86 at Princeton in 1882. Every '86 man will recall Roddy's career in college—his high standing, his quiet, unobtrusive character, his steady application and his intellectual triumphs. He won the Sophomore mathematical prize, was first honor man in Junior year, and was graduated among the first three men of the class. On Commencement Day he delivered the English Salutatory. He became Classical Fellow, which carried with it a prize of $600. After graduation he was for a time instructor in Latin and Greek. He then went to Europe and became a student in theology in Berlin University, and studied languages in Paris, Rome and Athens. He spoke Greek, German and French fluently and was said by Prof. Orris to be "the ablest modern Greek scholar in America". At one time he carried on an extensive correspondence in Greek with King George of Greece and others relative to the Olympian games. He became instructor in Greek at the Princeton Theological Seminary, which position he held for some time, when he studied law and was admitted to the Perry County Bar in 1898. Meantime in 1894-1895 he was principal of the Bloomfield Academy, with which he and his brother were connected at the time of his death.

At the bar "he acquired an extensive and lucrative practice and had a thorough and comprehensive knowledge of the law."

Roddy was a Presbyterian and a Republican. He was an ardent champion of local option, and a leader of the Anti-Saloon League and leader of the Independent Republican movement. He was prominently mentioned as a candidate for County Judge next year.

On June 10, 1903, Roddy was married to Lillian O. Barnett, of New Bloomfield, and had five children: Stanhope Orris (named after Prof. Orris), born February 1, 1904; George Black, born May 24, 1905, died September 4, 1905; Robert Edward, born June 11, 1906; Martha Ege and Lillian Barnett, TWINS, born May 20, 1908. Martha died March 16, 1909.

The funeral was held on September 8 at his late home. The services were conducted by the Rev. I. Potter Hayes, the Rev. J. Thomas Fox, the Rev. R. F. McClean, and the Rev. Alfred Kelly '86. The burial was in the family plot.

The high esteem in which George Roddy was held was shown by the large crowd at the funeral. The day was one of general mourning, and as a mark of respect the schools were closed.

All of the local papers spoke in the highest terms of his career and character as a citizen, as a lawyer, as a churchman, as an educator and as a father.

By his will the estate was turned over to his brother. The will provides a bequest of $1,000 to Princeton for the founding of a scholarship; and $2,500, or if his estate will permit, one-tenth of the estate likewise is to be devoted to founding scholarships. He carried heavy life insurance to the amount of $121,000.

His brother writes as follows: "George had a bilious attack recently, with complications. He was very busy, having succeeded me as head of the firm of Roddy & McWilliams, in the insurance, loan and real estate business in Harrisburg, Pa. He made daily trips to Harrisburg and would frequently work till midnight, having a good practice at Bloomfield, as well as Harrisburg. This resulted in an overworked condition. In addition, his wife was an invalid for the last two years, and this was an additional burden. Recently he and I purchased the Bloomfield Academy. His family are now living with me in Philadelphia."

RICHARD REID ROGERS.

"Bud" was born in Bourbon County, Ky., in 1867, a son of Judge Benjamin F. Rogers and Elizabeth Jameson. He came to Princeton in September 1882 from Mt. Sterling, Ky., and was graduated with the degree of A.B. in June 1886, receiving the degree of A.M. in course later.

After graduation "Bud" studied law at the University of Virginia, and was graduated with honors, receiving the degree of LL.B. He was for a time secretary of an extension of the Louisville Southern Railroad. He began the practice of law in Louisville in 1889 and in 1892 went to Frankfort as assistant to the Attorney General. Two years later he went to Tennessee, to follow the law, business and politics, standing up bravely as a Sound Money Democrat in a locality where it was almost worth a man's life to be anything but a Bryanite. He came to New York in 1897, and entered the law office of Seward, Guthrie and Steele, one of the most important firms in the metropolis. Later the firm became Guthrie, Cravath and Henderson. "Bud" left that firm in 1906 to become General Counsel to the Isthmian Canal Commission (Panama) and the head of the Department of Law, having charge of the government of the Canal Zone. In 1909 he became the general counsel of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and allied companies of New York City, operating the subway system, a position of importance and responsibility. He is also counsel of the Panama Railroad, and spends considerable time in Washington, where his wife and daughter have made their home. "Bud" is a member of the Metropolitan Club of Washington, at which spot "Monty" Blair, "Brer" Gaines, "Bud" and the Class Secretary frequently foregather.

"Bud" was married on June 25, 1892, to Miss Eunice Tomlin, at Jackson, Tenn., and has one daughter, Elizabeth Reid, born August 17, 1895. His daughter went to Miss Master's School at Dobb's Ferry, and is now (1910) at Madam Payer's School in Paris, France.

"Bud" is a member of the University and Princeton Clubs of New York, and the Metropolitan and Chevy Chase Clubs of Washington.

MORSE ROWELL.

Morse Rowell died at his home in Miller's Place, Long Island, New York, April 5, 1896, of hasty consumption. He had been ill only two weeks. While he was with '86 only one year, he will be remembered for his quiet, pleasant ways and cheerful happy disposition. His letters to the Secretary always bore testimony to his affection for his Class and for Princeton.

Rowell was born in New York, July 2, 1863, son of the late Rev. Morse Rowell, who had himself been a son of Old Nassau, and of Letitia C. Rowell, who is still living. He was educated at Alexander Military College, White Plains, N. Y., entered Princeton in September 1882 and left at the end of freshman year.

After leaving Princeton, he went for a short time to New York University and then taught at his old school. He attended Union Theological Seminary, graduating in 1890. From October 26 to the spring of 1892 he was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Cadillac, Mich.

Rowell was married to Miss Belle J. England, at White Plains, N. Y., on December 24, 1888, and had four children: Ira Morse Rowell, born March 31, 1890; Mary Belle Rowell, born October 25, 1891; Marjorie Lily Rowell, born November 14, 1893, and Violet England Rowell, born August 13, 1895.

Ira is associated with the New York Telephone Co. of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Mary Belle is a freshman in Vassar College, and Violet and Marjorie are at the High School in Highlands, N. Y., where Mrs. Rowell lives.

Mrs. Rowell writes as follows:

It was my hope that my son Ira Morse Rowell would go through Princeton College where his father and grandfather had been, but his health would not permit. My husband was so full of plans for the future; he saw a great work to be accomplished for humanity, and seemed especially fitted to draw men out of their dead selves into higher things; his expressions in the pulpit, were broad, deep and clear, and often I have heard men say "You give us so much wholesome and needed food for thought, Mr. Rowell." To be sure he was found fault with occasionally for his liberal views, but this never troubled him in the least, feeling as he did, that progress meant fighting for the Right to the very end. His love for his children was very beautiful; to him, they were all like rare jewels, and when he left them for my training alone, I did feel that the responsibility could never be carried, but, wonderful to relate, I have kept them all together, under the most discouraging circumstances, for clergymen, as a rule, are too poorly remunerated during their life, and at death, have little, if anything, to leave the family. I can frankly add: Faith has carried me through, because I believe "Life is what we make it." Mr. Rowell was not rugged and it was better for him to rest and leave the burden for me; no doubt, if he had lived, great suffering would have come to him.

Your class stands for more than we will ever be able to comprehend; its influence is so far reaching, so uplifting, and is an inspiration for the untold numbers who will follow.

GEORGE L. RUNDLE.

George Rundle lost his life on January 21, 1901, as a result of injuries received by being hurled from his carriage which came into collision with a construction train on the D. L. & W. Railroad tracks near Delawanna, N. J., a few miles from Passaic, on the previous night. The rig was wrecked and Rundle was hurled fifty feet through the air. He was placed aboard the train and taken to the General Hospital at Passaic. The entire staff was summoned in the effort to save his life. He was suffering from severe internal injuries, and regained consciousness only for a moment. At 7.25 the next morning, the end came.

George Rundle was born on February 19, 1863. He came to Princeton from Walpack Centre, N. J., and was an earnest and zealous student throughout his course. After graduation he became principal of the public school at Hainesburg, N. J. He then studied medicine at New York University, received his degree, and became house physician at St. Mark's Hospital in New York. Later he went to Passaic and became one of the most prominent physicians of that city. He was one of the governors of the General Hospital, and a member of its staff. He was a member of the Passaic Medical Society, the Kenilworth Club and the Passaic Club.

The funeral was held on January 23, at his home, with interment at Cedar Lawn Cemetery. The members of the Passaic Medical Society, the Governors and staff of the General Hospital, Kenilworth Club, Passaic Council Daughters of Liberty, and Junior Order of American Mechanics attended in a body. The pall-bearers were members of the medical society and the hospital staff.

Rundle was married to Miss Helen McDonalds, who died several years ago, leaving one son, Henry McDonalds Rundle, born July 10, 1896. Since her death Rundle lived with his sister.

Rankin sends the following information concerning members of the Rundle family:

Mrs. Rundle died on July 31, 1896, three days after the birth of her son. Since his father's death, the boy, Henry, lived with his maternal grandmother, until her death, and since then, with his maternal aunt, Mrs. Catherine Wright, at Passaic. He has been educated at Public School and summer military camp. He is a sensitive, reticent and wholesome boy. He is probably going to Princeton. George Rundle left a decent little property to his boy, who is named after his maternal grandfather.

WALTER KING SHARPE.

Walter came to Princeton in the fall of 1882, but was obliged to leave in the fall of 1883, on account of the death of his father. He is one of the "Old Guard" of '86, however, faithful and true, turning up at all reunions and taking his share in all the activities of the Class.

He was born December 24, 1863, at Chambersburg, Pa., a son of J. McDowell Sharpe and Emma King Sharpe. He was prepared for college at Phillips Andover, from which he was graduated in 1882. After leaving Princeton, Sharpe spent a year travelling in Europe, returning to Chambersburg to study law with Judge Stewart (father of "Snorky"), now one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. He was admitted to the Franklin County bar in February 1889, and has practised law at Chambersburg ever since. He is now a member of the firm of Sharpe & Elder.

SHEA

SHEA AND HIS BOYS

SILVER

Walter was married on March 6, 1897, to Miss Helen McKeehan Cook, of Chambersburg. He has two children, a boy and a girl: John McDowell Sharpe, born March 30, 1898, and Winifred Sharpe, born October 24, 1903.

"Joe" Ranney, who used to live in Chambersburg, says: "There is no lawyer in Franklin County who stands in higher repute than Sharpe, and personally, I think he is the best read and brightest of them all."

JAMES PRIESTLY SHAW.

"Jim" was born in Versailles Township, Allegheny County, Pa., on February 6, 1864, son of William A. Shaw and Sarah C. Shaw. He prepared for college at Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., and was in the same class with Mills Bevin. He entered Princeton in 1882 and was graduated in 1886, with the degree of A.B., receiving the degree of A.M. in 1889. In his senior year he was captain and catcher on the 'Varsity nine.

"Jim" was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, in 1890, and has since then practised his profession with success. He has also been active in public and city affairs, trying to improve local conditions by getting small parks, play grounds, public bathhouses, places of public comfort, etc. He has been a member of the Pittsburg Council in 1902 to 1904; Chairman of the City Committee of the Civic Party; Chairman of the Sixth Ward Civic Association; Director of Charities and Correction of Pittsburg from 1906 to 1909, under Mayor George W. Guthrie, of whose cabinet he was a member; President of the Princeton Club of Western Pennsylvania, 1902 and 1903; medical examiner for the Equitable, Northwestern and a number of life insurance companies, fraternal, accident and liability companies, and life member of the Pittsburg Free Dispensary. He is an independent Republican and has been quite active in the Civic Party.

"Jim" belongs to the Princeton and University Clubs of Pittsburg, Americus Republican Club, Princeton Club of New York, Ivy Club, Allegheny County Medical Society, Pennsylvania State Medical Society, Americus Academy of Medicine, Heptasophs, Royal Arcanum, Elks, etc.

"Jim" is not married.

GEORGE EDWARD SHEA.

George was born in Allegheny, Pa., October 16, 1865, a son of C. B. Shea and Elizabeth Galway. He was educated in the public school and under private tutor, entering Princeton in September 1882 and graduating with the degree of B.S. in 1886. His brother, "Joe" Shea '85, is now a trustee of Princeton.

After graduation, from the autumn of 1886 to the summer of 1891, he was with his father's dry goods firm, Joseph Horne & Co., Pittsburg. During the summer of 1891 he travelled in Europe. He finally decided to cultivate his voice and studied music in Paris under Bouhy, the eminent vocal teacher, from 1891 to 1894. From the autumn of 1894 to 1902 he sang in opera in Holland, Belgium, France, New Orleans and Mexico City, under the nom de theatre of Georges Chais. He created the role of Kurwenal in "Tristan and Isolde" at the Nouveau Theatre, Paris, under Lamoureux, a well known Parisian concert leader. From 1903 to 1905 he taught singing and sang in concert in London. In 1905 his health failed, and he has suffered since from a nervous malady, which at this time (January 1911), we are happy to say, has almost completely disappeared. Two years ago "Buck" Bailey went out to see him and helped him greatly with his advice and ministrations.

Since 1909 "G" has been teaching singing in Paris.

Although living so far distant, "G" has attended most of the reunions, and his singing has given unbounded delight to his classmates.

"G" was married on May 27, 1897, in Paris, to Mlle. Celine Bonheur, a well-known contralto, who accompanied him on several of his tours. He has two sons: George Edward, Jr., born July 27, 1902, and Henry Gregory, born January 14, 1904. Both were born in Paris where they now attend the Ecole Gory, 41 Rue Prony.

George writes:

The most important and disagreeable experience since the last reunion, 1906, was, for me, the nervous illness of 1908. I was not expected to recover therefrom but went to the mountains and began to improve, which since I have continued. Have taken to golf—duffer class and play on the links of the "La Boulie" Club, Versailles, of which I am a member.

RALPH CROWLEY SHELDON.

"Sheldo" was born August 26, 1862, at Rockford, Ill., son of Porter Sheldon and Mary Sheldon. He "prepped" at the High School of Jamestown, N. Y., entered Princeton in September 1882 and was graduated A.B. in 1886. His brilliant intellectual achievements during his course will readily be recalled by his classmates. He was salutatorian.

"Sheldo" hid himself from the Class view for several years, and his reticence and aloofness still persist. He began the study of law at Jamestown, and in April 1887 he went south to spend some time on his father's farm. Two years after leaving Princeton he entered the employ of the American Aristotype Co., which manufactures photographic papers and supplies, and is now the manager of that company, which is a division of the Eastman Kodak Co. He has also been president and treasurer of that company. He is president of the Post Publishing Co., publishers of the Jamestown Morning Post, a daily paper. He is a director of the Union Trust Co., the Home Telephone Co. of Jamestown, and the Union Traction Co. of Kansas.

Reports from Jamestown indicate that "Sheldo" is "quite some" citizen of that village.

"Sheldo" was married on June 16, 1898, at Jamestown to Miss Isabella Marvin, and has two children: Julia, born October 25, 1900, and Ralph C., Jr., born June 24, 1905.

JOHN ARCHER SILVER.

Silver was born August 4, 1863, at Churchville, Md., son of James Silver and Annie Paunell. He went to York Collegiate Institute, York, Pa., entered Princeton in sophomore year, September 1883, and was graduated A.B. in 1886, receiving the degree of A.M. in 1889.

On leaving college, from September 1886 to January 1889, he taught mental science and higher English in Jaffna College, Ceylon. From September 1888 to June 1890 he was a student of theology at the Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge, Mass. From September 1890 to September 1892 he was a student of theology, philosophy and history in the Universities of Berlin, Heidelberg and Paris. From September 1892 to June 1895 he was a student of history and philosophy in Johns Hopkins University and got the degree of Ph.D. in 1895. In September 1895 he became professor of history in Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y. He is the author of "The Provisional Government of Maryland 1774-77". He is also instructor in economics and politics at Hobart.

Silver was married at St. Leonards-on-Sea, England, on June 3, 1891, to Miss Agnes McMurdo, daughter of Edward McMurdo, of London, and has one child, Edward McMurdo Silver, born March 15, 1903. Edward is bound for Princeton.

RENWICK THOMPSON SLOANE.

"Billy" was born February 28, 1866, in Allegheny City, Pa., son of James Renwick Wilson Sloane and Frances Beard Swanwith. He is a half-brother of Prof. William M. Sloane. He prepared for college at the Western University of Pennsylvania, entered Princeton in September 1882 and left in December 1883.

From March 1884 to July 1887 he was a clerk in the Second National Bank, Pittsburg, and later, from October 1890 to July 1898 was an agent in the Pittsburg office of the New York Insurance Co. From July 1898 to April 1899, he enlisted for the Spanish War with the 15th Minnesota Volunteers Infantry, and he became a corporal. He never, however, had a chance to get in the fighting game. From June 1900 to January 1910, he was connected with the Northwestern Telephone Exchange Co., at Minneapolis, Minn. He is now (January 1911) general agent of the Northwestern Life Insurance Co. in the same city.

"Billy" was married on December 23, 1907, at Minneapolis to Miss Katherine Sitterly, by the Rev. Dr. Harry P. Dewey. He has no children.

HARRISON BROOKS SMITH.

"Jopah" was born in Charleston, W. Va., September 7, 1866, son of Isaac Noyes Smith and Caroline Quarrier. He prepared for college at Kanawha Military Institute and at Washington and Lee University 1882-1884. He entered Princeton in junior year, the fall of 1884, and soon became thoroughly identified with the Class.

After graduation he attended the University of Virginia for a law course, and in due time was admitted to the bar, and became a member of the firm of Couch & Smith. Later the firm became Flourday, Price and Smith, and it is now Price, Smith, Spilman & Clay, one of the leading firms of West Virginia. He has been City Solicitor of Charleston, and is, or has been, an elder in the Presbyterian Church of which Waddell is the pastor. He is also President of the Southern States Mutual Life Insurance Co., a concern which, it is understood, has been very successful. "Jopah" frequently comes to New York to "wallow" in Wagner. He is still addicted to the old 'cello, from which he extracted such limp melodies while on the Instrumental Club. He is a golfer of considerable horse power, plays tennis with "Brer" Gaines, and his singing voice has lost none of its Orphic charm.

"Jopah" married Miss Katherine Dana Bowne, in New York on May 12, 1896, and has three children: Harrison Bowne Smith, born March 2, 1898; Helen Dana Smith, born March 2, 1900, and Alex Quarrier Smith, born March 23, 1908.

"Jopah" says the boys will probably go to a Virginia preparatory school, "for the purpose, as my unreconstructed mother says, "of learning good manners", while Helen will go to such school or college as she may prefer. "Jopah" writes:

After graduation I studied law because I inherited the habit from four generations of lawyers—took a limited course at the University of Virginia (interrupted by illness) and have since practiced with a fair measure of success, though with some loss of family prestige, illustrated by the following anecdote: My father was a lawyer of excellent standing and ability. My grandfather, however, was of heroic mould in his profession, with a reputation for ability and learning second to none. An old client of my grandfather's came to me to prepare some important papers for him which I did to the best of my skill and judgment, handing him the completed documents neatly typewritten and bound, with carbon copies for his files. After a careful examination, and some requests for information and explanation, he laid aside the papers and scrutinizing me closely, asked: "Harry, do you think you will ever be as good a lawyer as your grandfather?" "No", I replied, "I fear not". After glancing from me to the papers he blurted out, "Damned if I think so either".

ALEXANDER STEWART, JR.

"Snorky" Stewart died at his home in Chambersburg, Pa., on January 8, 1895, and was buried in the Falling Spring Presbyterian graveyard on January 10. Among the pall-bearers were "Billy" Timlow and Walter Sharpe, representing '86, and Kennedy '84.

Stewart entered Princeton in the fall of 1882. He was born in Chambersburg, February 7, 1866, and was a son of the Hon. John Stewart '57, now Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. Few men entered more actively into the different phases of undergraduate life than "Snorky". His never failing humor, his joy of living and his cheerful optimism endeared him to all of his classmates, and established for him a lasting foundation of affection and esteem among them. He was not a profound student, or a "poler", but everyone knew that if "Snorky" had wanted to, he could have stood among the leaders of his class. His subsequent career showed abundantly the stuff that was in him. He "made good", as we all knew he would.

On leaving college, he began the practise of law and was in time admitted to the bar, of which for years his distinguished father had been the distinguished leader. His standing in his profession is indicated by the following resolution adopted by the members of the Franklin County bar:

Whereas, the bar of Franklin County has, with profound grief, learned of the death of our brother, Alexander Stewart, Esq., who departed this life on the eighth day of January, A.D. 1895; therefore, as an expression of our heartfelt sorrow for his death and of our appreciation of his character and ability, we adopt the following resolutions:

Resolved, that in the death of Mr. Stewart the bar of Franklin County has suffered the loss of one of its brightest members, who during the seven years of practise and association with us, had already become distinguished in his chosen profession. In him, to rich natural endowments and a highly disciplined mind, studious habits had added unusual attainments in the law. He loved the study of the law and threw all the energy of his life into the mastery of the profession he had selected. In the short period of his legal practise he attained the foremost rank among his fellow members of the bar and has left them the example of a noble and stainless character. Possessed of a strong and logical mind and sound judgment his legal reasoning was forcible and convincing. In his professional career he was honorable and conscientious and was trusted and beloved by his clients and respected, honored and admired by his opponents. He took an active and leading part in affairs. He was distinguished for his eminent attainments for a lawyer of his age; his great strength of character; superb courage and self reliance.

STODDARD

STRATER

STRONG

Resolved, that in his death we feel a personal bereavement, since he had endeared himself to each of us by his uniform kindness and courtesy of manner, and his grand regard for the feelings of those with whom he came in contact.

Many eloquent speeches were made at this meeting, all of them testifying to the high character and attainments of "Storky" as a lawyer and as a citizen. He was a counsel and a member of the Board of Directors of the National Bank of Chambersburg and was actively identified with the political, social and professional life of Franklin County.

CHARLES G. STODDARD.

"Chunk" was born in Dayton, Ohio, January 31, 1865, a son of John W. Stoddard '58, and Susan Kiefer Stoddard. He entered Princeton in September 1882 and was graduated in 1886, with the degree of A.B.

After graduation he took a trip to Europe returning in October, when he became assistant bookkeeper of the Stoddard Manufacturing Co of Dayton, manufacturers of agricultural implements, of which his father was president. Subsequently he became purchasing agent, superintendent, vice-president and general manager of the company. When the making of automobiles in this country began to assume large proportions, the Stoddard Manufacturing Co. devoted itself to their manufacture, and on the retirement of "Chunk's" father a few years ago, "Chunk" became president of the Dayton Motor Car Co., makers of the well-known Stoddard-Dayton car, and of the Courier Car Co.

Perhaps, however, "Chunk's" greatest achievement was when he beat all comers and rivals, and became father of the CLASS BOY.

"Chunk" was married at Dayton, on June 21, 1888 to Miss Laura Van Ausdal, a sister of "Charlie" Van Ausdal, '85. The CLASS BOY, John W. Stoddard, Jr., named after his grandfather, was born April 16, 1889. His brother, Robert Van Ausdal, was born December 29, 1890, and his sister, Mary Chloe, was born June 5, 1894. At our Triennial Reunion in 1889, "Chunk" was present and responded to the toast, "THE CLASS BOY", which was received with wild enthusiasm. At our Sexennial in 1892, "Chunk" brought on the CLASS BOY and received the CLASS CUP from his classmates.

John W. Stoddard, Jr., (honorary member of '86) is now a student at Cornell. His sister is at Miss Porter's School, at Farmington, Conn.

WILLIAM EDWARD STRATER.

The Class will deeply regret to hear of the sad death on May 24, 1908, by drowning, of "Will" Strater, while bathing with his son in Harrod's Creek, near Guyton's Mill, in Oldham County, Kentucky. Accompanied by his wife and Edward, his thirteen-year old son, Strater drove to the scene of the drowning on Sunday morning for a day's outing. It was a warm day, and with his son, Strater went in bathing. He was a good swimmer, but soon after he entered the stream he uttered a cry of distress and sank to the bottom. Mrs. Strater bravely waded into the water to rescue him but was unable to do so. She sent her son to the nearest house for assistance. Neighbors hurried to the scene, but before the body was recovered, life had departed. Doctors were summoned, and worked for three hours, but in vain. The body was then removed to the Strater country home, near Harrod's Creek.

News of the tragic death spread rapidly and many of the friends of the family were at the house when the body arrived there.

Dr. Morrison, the attending physician, stated that death was due to cramps, brought on by reason of the chilly water.

"Will" Strater was forty-two years of age, the youngest of three brothers composing the Strater Brothers Tobacco Company of Louisville, Ky., of which he was secretary and treasurer. He was born in Chillicothe, O., January 28, 1866, a son of the Rev. Caspar H. Strater, a Lutheran minister, but had been a resident of Louisville most of his life, having moved there with his parents when seven years old. He was graduated from the Male High School and entered Princeton in the academic department in the fall of 1882. He did not complete the course, leaving Princeton in June 1883, but while he was in college, he won many friends by his kindly and cheerful manner, by his lively interest in undergraduate affairs, and by his warm and genial disposition. He never lost interest in Princeton and '86, and all his letters to the Class Secretary testified to his undiminished affection for both.

Strater was married to Miss Jessie La Nauze Clarkson, December 14, 1893, and had one child, a son, Edward La Nauze Strater, born December 2, 1894. He was a member of the Board of Trade, the Pendennis Club, Commercial Club and the Country Club of Louisville, and the Middle Bass Club on Lake Erie, where he had a summer cottage. He was a director of the United State Trust Co., and Vice-President of the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association.

He was a member of Calvary Episcopal Church, and maintained a home in Louisville, and during the summer months lived at his country place near Harrod's Creek. He was one of the best known and foremost business men in Louisville. His son, Edward, is a student at Hill School, Pottstown, and hopes to enter Princeton in 1913.

One of the local papers said of him:

The business community and the community generally will hear with sorrow and regret the sudden and shocking death of William E. Strater.

Mr. Strater was in the very strength of his manhood; strong, vigorous and glowing with health. In business he was in the midst of various activities. His career had developed his faculties to the highest usefulness. He stood among those younger business men, whose success foretells a future of great usefulness.

C. D. HALSEY

R. T. HALSEY

HARLAN

Then death touched him and stilled in a moment all the pulse of his being and ending all plans and activities to be brought hereafter to fruition.

In his personal attributes Mr. Strater was a most attractive man, and his death will be a personal loss to a large circle beyond his immediate family and business associates. A city is what its citizens make it, and Louisville can ill afford at this time to lose a man of the character and fitness of William E. Strater.

OLIVER SMITH STRONG.

"Ollie" was born in Red Bank, N. J., December 30, 1864, son of Benjamin Strong and Adeline T. Schenck. He prepared for college at Newburgh Academy and Montclair High School, entered Princeton in September 1882 and was graduated in 1886, as an A.B., become an A.M. in course, and got the decree of Ph.D. later from Columbia.

"Ollie" won a fellowship in biology and studied at Princeton until 1890, when he became an assistant at Lake Laboratory, Milwaukee, until July 1891. Later he became fellow and assistant in biology at Columbia, and from 1895-1904 he was tutor in comparative neurology and assistant in histology at Columbia, and later instructor in histology, and also associate editor of The Journal of Comparative Neurology. At present he is instructor in anatomy at Columbia.

Here are the title of some of "Ollie's" articles. They look and feel like neurological debauches, but "Ollie" says they're sober descriptions:

"The Structure and Homologies of the Cranial Nerves of Amphibia as determined by their Peripheral Distribution and Internal Origin," Zoologischer Anzeiger, 1890; "Lithium Bichromate as a new Reagent for hardening adult brains in the Golgo method," N. Y. Academy of Sciences, Vol. XIII; "Atlas of Nerve Cells," by M. Allen Starr, Ph.D., with the co-operation of Oliver S. Strong, Ph.D., etc., etc.

"Ollie" belongs to the Princeton Club, and is still unmarried. "Felix" Paton says he has an international reputation as a biologist and nerve expert.

EDWIN K. THOMAS.

Thomas died suddenly in May 1889 at his home in Middletown, Ky., after a brief illness of four days. Shortly after that a classmate wrote as follows:

"Ed" Thomas's death was a very sad one. His business career had been remarkably successful, and he had just concluded a more than usually advantageous transaction when he was attacked with acute peritonitis. For many hours before his death he endured, I have been told, the most intense agony, but in such a trying time as this, knowing, too, that the end was inevitable, his courage did not yield. He arranged his final affairs with wonderful coolness and fortitude and passed away, as he had lived, a quiet, unassuming, Christian gentleman.

Thomas was only with '86 from September 1882 to December 1882, when he left to go into business. During that brief time, however, he endeared himself to all of us by his kindly and genial ways, and his fine manly character. He was a brother of Claude Thomas '84, recently consul at Marseilles, France.

LEWELLYN THOMAS.

"Tommy" was born in New York City, May 14, 1865. He entered Princeton in '82 and was graduated in '86. After leaving college he went into the railroad supply business, and later into the Pittsburg and Western Railway, of which his father was president. He afterwards became president of the Cairo, Vincennes and Chicago Railway. It is stated that he is now resident manager of the General Railway Signal Company, of Chicago, manufacturers of railway signals and safety appliances. The secretary has been told that "Tommy" has been married, and that his wife died a short time ago. Inasmuch, however, as he has not communicated with the Secretary for lo! these twenty-five years, exact and detailed information concerning him is naturally unavailable.

WILLIAM FERREE TIMLOW.

"Billy" was born in Lancaster, Pa., November 8, 1864, a son of the Rev. Daniel Ostrow Timlow and Lydia Sharpless Timlow. He prepared for college at York Collegiate Institute, York, Pa., entered Princeton in September 1882 and was graduated in 1886 with the degree of A.B.

"Billy" came to New York in May 1887 and entered the firm of Stone, Timlow & Co., commission dealers in hides and skins. Parts of the years 1891 and 1892 were spent in California looking after certain mining interests. From April 1, 1907, to July 18, 1907, he was floor member of the firm of Ware & Timlow on the New York Stock Exchange. From July 18, 1907 to July 1, 1909, he was a member of the Stock Exchange firm of Luke, Banks & Weeks, as head of their collateral loan department. He is now connected with the Stock Exchange firm of Luke, Banks & Weeks.

"Billy" is a member of the Graduate Council of Princeton, representing '86. He had the honor of being the first president of the Princeton Alumni Association of Northern New Jersey, which was organized in November 1909, and is a wide-awake and active body.

"Billy" was married on April 23, 1895, to Miss Evelyn Carolan, of San Francisco, and has one daughter, Emily Carolan, born April 17, 1896, in San Francisco.

"Billy" is and has been the treasurer of '86 since graduation, and the Class owes him a debt of gratitude for his faithful and loyal services.

HENRY PENNINGTON TOLER.

The Secretary regrets to announce the death, under exceedingly sad circumstances, of "Harry" Toler, who committed suicide by plunging into Hell Gate tide off Ward's Island, New York, on February 1, 1910. He had been confined in the Manhattan State Insane Asylum for seven months as a victim of incurable religious mania. This mania had been steadily developing for several years, and finally culminated in an attack against some of the members of the First Church of Christ (Christian Science) of New York, whereupon he was adjudged insane and committed in July 1909 to the Asylum on Ward's Island. It seemed for a time as if he were recovering, and his friends and his family were much encouraged, only to be shocked and grieved by the sad and tragic termination of his life.

TOLER

VANCE

VANNEMAN

The body was not recovered for several months, but in May, it was found in the East River, and identified by Hugh Toler, a brother. The funeral was held on May 6 at the home of Mrs. Toler, 75 East 54th Street, New York, and the burial was at Morristown, N. J.

"Harry" or "Kid" Toler, as he was affectionately called, was born in Newark, N. J., on April 28, 1864, and was a member of the well-known family of Pennington (one of whom was a Governor of New Jersey) in New York and New Jersey, a family closely identified with the history of Princeton. He was educated at the Freehold (N. J.), Academy and his roommate and classmate there was his roommate and classmate at Princeton, "Steve" Halsey, who subsequently became his business partner. He entered Princeton in 1881 with the Class of '85, taking the C.E. course, but subsequently dropped into '86 and was graduated with us.

In college Toler was a conspicuous figure on account of his physical prowess, his bright and attractive manner and his keen sense of humor. As an athlete he was a prominent figure. He played on his class baseball nine in 1885 and 1886 and was half back on the championship football team which defeated Yale in the fall of 1885 at New Haven. For two years also he held the record as the intercollegiate pole vaulter, and his vaulting in 1886 remained for several years as the intercollegiate record. He was also the leader of the banjo club while in college.

Upon graduation Toler entered into the stock brokerage business with his brother, Hugh K., as a member of the Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York. In 1889 he was married to Miss Virginia Wheeler, of New York, who, with two children, Henry P., Jr., and Dorothy P., wife of John H. Auerbach '05, of New York, survive him. He was very successful as a broker and for several years was associated in business with "Steve" Halsey, as the Board member of the Stock Exchange firm of Toler & Halsey, Mills Building, New York. This firm was dissolved on April 1, 1901, and Toler went into business for a time for himself. Later he became actively identified with the Christian Science movement in New York and became a "healer". Subsequently he became interested in a scheme to recover valuable lands in New York for members of the Toler family and others, millions of dollars being involved in the scheme, which he subsequently abandoned at the request of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy. On July 21, 1909, he was taken to Bellevue Hospital and was put under observation in order to determine his mental condition. As a result of this observation he was committed on July 21 to the Manhattan State Hospital, Ward's Island, where he remained up to the time of his tragic death.

Toler was a member of the Union Club of New York and the Baltusrol Golf Club. At one time he was one of the leading golfers of this country, standing third in the amateur championship in the late nineties. One of his brothers was the late William P. Toler '82.

His death is deeply deplored by a large circle of Princeton men, his classmates, and other friends, who are especially grieved over the sad circumstances attending the later years of his life, and over the termination of a career which had been abundantly successful and honorable, and which gave promise of still further success and honor.

ROBERT DUNCAN TOTTEN.

"Bob" was born in Pittsburg on August 1, 1866, a son of Robert Christy Totten and Marie Louise Mellier. He "prepped" at Newell Institute, Pittsburg, entered Princeton in the fall of '82 and was graduated with the degree of A.B.

Although "Bob" expected to go into business, he changed his mind and became a lawyer, making a specialty of patent law. He is associated with his brother-in-law in the law firm of Kay & Totten, which has built up an excellent practice.

"Bob" has been President of the Princeton Alumni Association of Pittsburg and vicinity and is active in Princeton affairs.

He was married at Pittsburg on December 20, 1892, to Miss Elizabeth A. Reymer, and has three daughters: Elizabeth R., born December 9, 1893, and Phyllis R. & Louise M., TWINS, born March 8, 1902. The oldest daughter is at the Misses Masters' School, Dobb's Ferry, N. Y.

"Bob" belongs to the Pittsburg, Allegheny County, Pittsburg Golf Clubs; the Princeton Club of New York and the Ivy Club of Princeton.

LEWIS H. TOWLER.

Towler died on June 25, 1897, at his home, 4343 Prairie Avenue, Chicago. The Class Record of '85, of which Towler was at one time a member, says: "He committed suicide while temporarily deranged, as the result of the silver discussion in 1896, and spent his time talking on the subject on the street corners, finally losing his mental balance entirely. The date is from the records in the office of the Coroner of Cook County and the proofs of loss which were made on the insurance policies held by Towler in the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company."

Whether this is the case or not, we do not know, but we do know that he had been in poor health for six months previous to his death.

Towler was from Corunna, Michigan. He was born October 20, 1860, and entered Princeton with '85, subsequently dropping into '86, with which class he was graduated. On leaving college he spent two years at the Princeton Seminary, during which time he took charge of a church for four months at Milan, Michigan. He was so much afflicted with catarrh, however, that he was obliged to turn his attention to some business calling. He became connected with the Equitable Life Assurance Society, and was a very successful agent. He wrote many articles for insurance papers, and was the author of "Towler's Tables of Life Insurance Forms". He was married on January 2, 1899, to Miss Leela May Savage, at Olivet, Michigan, who with two children,—John W., born April 20, 1891, and Charles A., born October 13, 1896,—survives him.

Towler was present at our Decennial Reunion and was warmly greeted. He was a sincere and loyal Princetonian.

HENRY EDGERTON VANCE.

"Hank" was born in Wheeling, W. Va., July 26, 1864, a son of J. N. Vance and Lillie E. Vance. A brother, W. McC. Vance, is a member of the Class of

EGBERT

CROZIER

HUDNUT AND SON

MEAD

R. M. HODGE

1901. He was educated at Linsley Institute, entered Princeton in September 1882 and was graduated with the degree of C.E. in 1886.

Since graduation "Hank" has been in the wholesale shoe business with offices at Wheeling and Chicago, and is the head of the Vance Shoe Co. "Hank's" life has been quiet and successful. He frequently comes to New York and generally turns up for all meetings of '86. He is a member of the Princeton, University and Metropolitan Clubs of New York, the Union League and Calumet of Chicago and the South Shore Country and Huron Clubs of Wheeling. He is not married.

WILLIAM SUMMERILL VANNEMAN.

Vanneman was born at Penn's Grove, N. J., on January 15, 1863, a son of Edwin A. and Josephine Vanneman. He was educated at Salem Collegiate Institute, Salem, N. J., entered Princeton in September 1882 and left in February 1885.

On leaving college he studied medicine at the University of Pennsylvania and received the degree of M.D. in 1888. From July 1888 to February 1889 he was surgeon at the Philadelphia Dispensary, and from February 1889 to May 1890 he was resident physician at the Philadelphia Hospital. On September 20, 1890, he sailed for Persia, and became a medical missionary at Tabriz under the direction of the Presbyterian Board of Missions. He has remained there in the same capacity ever since, except for a furlough from June 1889 to August 1890, and from August 1910 to August 1911, both of which furloughs were spent and will be spent in this country.

Vanneman has served with distinction in Persia. He has attended the Shah and the Crown Prince, and has received from the Shah second and third decoration of the "Lion and Sun", the Persian decoration bestowed on foreigners.

Vanneman writes:

In addition to my regular medical missionary work I have been consulting physician to the families of two Shahs while they were living in Tabriz and in 1896 accompanied the harem of Musafar, Deen Shah, as physician in chief, on a caravan journey of 400 miles from Tabriz to Teheran. I was decorated by the Shah of Persia in 1896, and have been requested to become regular physician to the Royal family residing in Teheran, the capital, but I have preferred to remain in mission work at Tabriz. In 1904, for services in the cholera epidemic of that year, I received a testimonial signed by all the consuls and the European colony residing in Tabriz.

When the cholera raged throughout Persia, Vanneman rendered valuable services. As a physician he gave medical attendance to the sick, and as a missionary he ministered to the dying and assisted in burying the dead. For this service the Superintendency of a new hospital at Teheran was offered to him, which he declined. He is said to be the best physician in Persia.

Vanneman was married in July 1890 in Philadelphia to Miss Marguerite Amy Fox and has four daughters: Aimée Sherin, born December 8, 1892; Dorothy Jewett, born May 8, 1894; Irene Wood, born November 24, 1896; and Ruth, born February 17, 1892, died February 27, 1892. All the children were born in Tabriz. Aimée and Dorothy are in the first year at Vassar College, and Irene is at Putnam Hall Preparatory School, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

CHARLES S. VAN SYCKEL.

"Charlie" was born in Trenton, N. J., July 11, 1864, son of ex-Vice-Chancellor Bennet Van Syckel '46 and Mary E. Van Syckel. He prepared for Princeton at the Trenton Model School, entered college in the fall of 1882 and was graduated an A.B. in 1886.

After graduation he took a Continental trip and then became assistant superintendent of the Mercer Rubber Company at Trenton. Since 1890 he has been identified with the Greenwood Pottery Company, and the Greenwood China Company, and is secretary and treasurer of both.

He was married October 11, 1888, to Miss Isabel S. Stephens, of Trenton, and has had four children: James Stephen Van Syckel, born September 5, 1889; Mary Elizabeth Van Syckel, born March 12, 1892, died August 24, 1910; Isabel Van Syckel, born June 18, 1897, and Helen Van Syckel, born December 24, 1901. The son is bound for Princeton.

"Van" belongs to the Trenton Country Club, the Princeton Clubs of New York and Trenton, Holland Society of New York, Mantoloking Golf and Yacht Clubs and the Trenton Club.

"Charlie" writes as follows:

I regret very much that I cannot be present at the "Old Home Week" as I sail for Europe June 3, 1911. Many added cares as well as a great sorrow, in the death of our oldest daughter last summer, have come to us this past year, so I am taking my wife and family for a much needed change.

JAMES ANDERSON VAN WAGENEN.

"Jim" was born in New York City, July 7, 1862, a son of Cornelius Doremus Van Wagenen and Susan Anderson. He has a brother, C. D. Van Wagenen, '89. He was prepared for college at Columbia Grammar School, entered Princeton in the fall of 1882 and was graduated with the degree of A.B., receiving later the degree of A.M. in course.

He studied law at Columbia and received the degree of LL.B. in June 1888. From October 1888 to the fall of 1889 he was a law clerk in the office of the late Charles M. Marsh; from 1889 to 1890 he was in the office of De Witt, Lockman & De Witt; from 1890 to 1900, he was associated with Eaton & Lewis. For the last few years, he has been in the real estate business with G. Nicholas and later with Gilsey, Havemeyer & Jenney for which firm he was instrumental in putting through a big deal for leasing valuable property in East Thirty-fourth Street, New York, to the Post Office Department.

"Jim" is no longer a bachelor, for he was married October 27, 1908 to Miss Evelyn Jean Léger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Odilon Léger, of Montreal. He has no children.

"Jim" is the real thing whenever anything concerning Princeton or '86 is concerned, turning up regularly for all class and college functions, and following athletics with the same keen attention as while in college.

He writes:

I have been a member of the Union League Club of New York City, since June 1888; am a trustee of the American Savings Bank, No. 115 West 42 Street, New York City; Treasurer of the Board of Trustees of Alexander Chapel, Nos. 7 and 9 King Street, New York City, which Chapel is under the control and direction of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church; am a member of the West End Association, an association of residents living on the West End of New York City, whose aim is to look after all matters which affect the welfare of the property owners and residents on the West Side; am also a "Fellow for Life" of the National Academy of Design, of New York City; life member of the New York Society Library, oldest library in New York City, dating back before the Revolution.

VAN WAGENEN

WADDELL

WALL

"Jim" also belongs to the Princeton and Knickerbocker Whist Clubs and the Bar Association.

JOHN M. WADDELL.

Waddell was born at Triadelphia, W. Va., August 9, 1863. He "prepped" at the High School, Princeton, Ill., entered college in junior year, September 1884, and was graduated with the degree of A.B. in 1886.

He taught at Shady Side Academy, Pittsburg, from 1886 to 1889, and helped to prepare many boys for Princeton. From 1889 to 1892 he was at the Princeton Theological Seminary, where he roomed with "Jack" Calhoun. He was pastor of the Amity Church at Dravosburg, Pa., from 1892 to 1896; at Clearfield, Pa., from 1896 to 1904; at Doylestown, Pa., from 1904 to 1907, and since 1907 he has been pastor of Kanawha Presbyterian Church, Charlestown, W. Va., where he is ably supported by "Jopah" Smith, and more or less so by "Brer" Gaines.

He was married at Elm Grove, W. Va., on May 25, 1892, to Miss Nellie Lee Storer, and has five children: Elizabeth Calhoun, born February 28, 1893; Susan Sharpe, born November 2, 1894; Archibald McDonald and John Storer, TWINS, born January 2, 1899, and Eleanor Lee, born October 13, 1905. Elizabeth was graduated from Blair Hall, June 1910, taking first honor; she is now a student of music at Wilson College. Susan is a senior at Penn Hall, preparatory to Wilson College.

ALBERT CHANDLER WALL.

Albert was born in Kingston, N. J., January 24, 1866, son of Edward B. Wall '48 and Sara Berry Wall. He prepared for college at the Stevens School, Hoboken, N. J., where his father was stationed as a professor in Stevens Institute. Albert entered Princeton in the fall of 1882, was graduated A.B. in 1886, and subsequently got his A.M.

From 1886 to 1889 he studied law, and was admitted in November 1889. Three months of this time he taught the freshman class at Stevens logic, and the sophomores English literature. For a time he practised law in partnership with William F. Abbett, son of the late Governor Leon Abbett. In February 1894 he became counsellor at law. For some time he was associated with "Bob" Green in the firm of Wall & Green, Jersey City; later with Vredenburg, Van Winkle & Wall, of which "Bob" was a member; then of Vredenburg, Wall & Carey, with which he is still connected. This firm is one of the most important law firms in New Jersey, and is counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad and other large and important interests. Albert, it is needless to say, stands high at the bar, and has a fine reputation as a brilliant after-dinner speaker. At one time he was President of the Village of South Orange, where he lives, but he has devoted himself to the law and not to politics.

Albert was married to Miss Maria Gibson Carey, at Mt. Calvary Church, Baltimore, Md., on April 30, 1896, and has two children, a girl and a boy: Josephine Carey Wall, born December 13, 1899, and Albert Carey Wall, born February 12, 1902. Josephine will go to Miss Carter's school at Catonsville, Md., and Albert will go to Princeton.

RODMAN WANAMAKER.

"Rod" was born in Philadelphia, Pa., February 13, 1863, a son of John Wanamaker, the well-known merchant, and a brother of Thomas B. Wanamaker '83. "Rod" entered Princeton with the Class of '85, but was graduated with '86, receiving the degree of A.B. and later that of A.M. While in college, he was prominent and active in social and athletic life. He was manager of the Glee Club, a member of Ivy, and played football on the victorious team which beat Yale at New Haven in 1885.

Since leaving college "Rod" has been connected with the firm of John Wanamaker, of which he is now a member. His life has been a very busy one, and his time has been divided among his places of business in Philadelphia, New York and Paris. After graduation he took a trip to Europe and on his return he was married to Miss Fernande Antonia Henry, of Philadelphia, on November 4, 1886. Mrs. Wanamaker died in 1900. "Rod" has three children: Fernande, John, Jr., and Marie Louise. Fernande was married in Paris to Arturo Heeren, a son of Count and Countess de Heeren, on October 4, 1909.

"Rod" was married in London on July 27, 1909, to Miss Violet Cruger, daughter of the late Eugene Guido Crugor of New York, and a step-daughter of J. Frederick Tams of Tuxedo, N. Y.

"Rod" belongs to the University and Markham and Manheim Clubs of Philadelphia; Yacht Club de France, Polo Club, Automobile Club and Chemins de Fer of Paris. He is vice-president of the Independence Trust Co. of Philadelphia.

In January 1910, during the time of the great flood in Paris, "Rod" offered to pay the bread bills of sufferers for one month. His first installment amounted to $6,000.

In 1907 "Rod" was advanced to the rank of Officer of the Legion of Honor by the President of France. Previously he had been made a Chevalier of the Legion in 1897, in recognition of his services in the encouragement of art. His promotion is regarded as a mark of high appreciation from the French Government. In Paris "Rod" has been very prominent in art circles, where he has been President of the American Art Association.

On December 29, 1910, "Rod" contributed to the City of Philadelphia the sum of $50,000 in sums of $2,000 yearly for a period of twenty-five years, provided the City will establish a permanent fund, the income of which in addition to the $2,000 provided annually by "Rod" will furnish pensions for the support of the families of city employees who may be killed or incapacitated from injury received in the discharge of their duties. His gift, which Mayor Reyburn described as "an unusual and generous display of public spirit and benevolence" was at once accepted by the Select and Common Councils of the city which also appropriated $100,000.

On February 2, 1911, "Rod" purchased The Philadelphia Evening Telegraph

TOWER OF HOLDER HALL

from his brother-in-law, Barclay H. Warburton. The Wanamaker interests now have the ownership of three of the seven Associated Press newspapers of Philadelphia: The Record (Democratic), The Evening Telegraph (Republican), and The North American (Republican).

GAYLORD STARIN WHITE.

Gaylord was born in New Rochelle, N. Y., on March 3, 1864, a son of Charles Trumbull White and Georgianna Starin White. He went to Williston Seminary at Easthampton, Mass., and Chapin Collegiate School, New York. From 1882 to 1884 he was at the University of New York, entering Princeton in September 1884 and graduating as A.B. in 1886.

After graduation, Gaylord went on The New York Tribune, as a reporter for the Fresh Air Fund, in which work he was succeeded in the following year by the Class Secretary. From 1887 to 1890 he was a student at Union Theological Seminary, New York. After graduation there, he became a student in Berlin and Oxford. He was ordained by the Presbytery of New York on May 15, 1892, and became assistant minister of Rutgers Presbyterian Church in New York. From 1893 to 1901 he was pastor of the City Park Branch of the First Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn, N. Y. He was called in May 1901 to Union Theological Seminary as Director of Student Christian Work and Headworker of Union Settlement, and later became lecturer on Applied Christianity at the Seminary and Staff lecturer at New York School of Philanthropy.

Gaylord has been especially interested in social movements. He was in residence at Toynbee Hall, London, in 1892, and while an active minister developed his church work along "institutional" lines, with especial attention to the working classes. As Headworker of the Union Settlement, Gaylord has accomplished a splendid work, and has been actively identified with charitable and educational work among the working classes.

Gaylord was married in New York on June 6, 1892, to Miss Sophie Douglass Young, and has four children, two boys and two girls: Sophie Douglass, born April 3, 1893; Charles Trumbull, born October 6, 1896; Cleveland Stuart, born July 28, 1900, and Katherine Gaylord, born April 9, 1903. All four children are now at Horace Mann School, New York. Sophie D. goes to Vassar in the fall of 1911 and the two boys are headed for Princeton.

Gaylord writes:

My life has been uneventful but very happy, barring the sense of work undone that ought to have been done and the lack of results. I have been fortunate in having done the kind of things that I liked to do. My main interest for many years has been in social questions and for seventeen years I have lived and worked with those who live by the work of their hands—the industrial classes. Several of the old boys of '86 have given me good support in my work, both financial and otherwise, and I have found the friendships of college days a rich experience in many directions.

Gaylord was one of the incorporators in February 1910 of the Association of Tuberculosis Clinics of the City of New York.

CHARLES WHITING.

"Chick" was born at Ballston, N. Y., in March 1862, son of Jonathan

Whiting and Hester M. Gilbert. He prepared for college at Hackettstown, N. J., and Poultney, Vt., entered Princeton in 1882 and was graduated as B.S. in 1886.

The year after graduation was spent on a farm at his home. In the fall of 1887 he started for California by way of New Mexico, stopped at Albuquerque, and decided to make his home there. At first he went into the real estate business, and in 1896 he was yard clerk and orange inspector of the Atchinson, Topeka & Sante Fe Railway Co. In 1907 he was fruit inspector at Winslow, Ariz., and from 1908 to 1911 he has been clerk and weighmaster for the same company.

"Chick" enlisted for the Spanish War and was first duty sergeant and acting first sergeant in Co. E, 1st Territorial Regiment, U. S. V. This was a western regiment recruited from the four territories of New Mexico, Arizona, Oklahoma, and Indian Territory "the finest body of men physically", says "Chick", that he ever saw. The Regiment was camped at Prescott, Ariz., Lexington, Ky., and Albany, Ga., but never saw any active service. It was mustered out at Albany, Ga. Later Governor Otero appointed "Chick" second lieutenant in Co. G., New Mexico National Guard, and eventually he became first lieutenant and then captain. He is also an exempt volunteer fireman. He is more or less interested in real estate and mining and says he has "a trunk full of beautifully engraved mining stock which I would not part with for anything, except to '86 men—also a few ranches finely located for dry farming"—whatever that might be.

He is not married. "Chick" hasn't been back to Princeton since he left.

ROBERT PARMELEE WILDER.

"Bob" was born on August 2, 1863, at Kolhapur, S. M. C., India, son of Royal Gould Wilder and Eliza J. Wilder. He prepared for college at the Princeton "Prep" and Williston Seminary. He entered Princeton in 1881 with the Class of '85, dropped into '86, and was graduated with our class as an A.B., receiving the degree of A.M. later.

His life has been devoted to foreign missionary work in which he has been indefatigable, and eminently successful. From September 1886 to July 1889 he was Secretary of the Students' Volunteer Movement of Foreign Missions in the United States and Canada. From 1887 to 1891 he was a student at the Union Theological Seminary, New York. From July 1891 to December 1892 he visited students in Great Britain, Norway, and Denmark for the purpose of interesting them in missionary work, continuing this work in subsequent years in India, Canada, the United States, Scandinavia and Great Britain. Now he is busy in the same work in Great Britain and Ireland, in the capacity of permanent travelling secretary of the Student Christian Movement of Great Britain and Ireland.

"Bob" has returned to this country several times, always receiving a hearty welcome from his friends and classmates. "Bob" writes as follows:

In April 1892 the British Student Volunteer Missionary Union was formed after my visits to Edinburgh, Glasgow, Cambridge, Oxford, London and Aberdeen. During the same academic year I paid my first visits to Christiana and Copenhagen and addressed students there. 1502 British Student Volunteers have become foreign missionaries. My work among Indian students, 1892-1897, was under the American

WHITE

WILDER

WOOD

Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions in Calcutta, Poona, Lahore, Benares, Allahabad, Madras, Bombay, etc.

My work among theological students in U. S. A. and Canada, 1897-1899, was under the Intercollegiate Y. M. C. A. It was then that the Theological Section of Students Y. M. C. A. was formed. December 1899-1902 I was National Secretary of the Student Y. M. C. A. of India and Ceylon and had just been appointed National Secretary of all departments of Y. M. C. A. in India when, owing to a touch of the sun, it was necessary for me to leave the country. It required a year's rest in Switzerland to recover. Then, being advised by my doctor not to return to India, I worked as Student Volunteer Movement Secretary in Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, and visited St. Petersburg.

Since 1905 I have been serving the British Student Christian Movement and was asked last year to become permanent Travelling Secretary of this movement. The movement has kindly consented to release me for a time each year to work on the Continent of Europe in behalf of the World's Student Christian Federation. Last year I visited Switzerland, Finland, Sweden and Denmark. The Spring before I delivered addresses in nine German Universities. This Spring I am invited to work in Italy and Hungary and to attend the Conference of the Federation in Constantinople.

Work among students in South Eastern Europe will prevent my being with '86 for "Old Home Week". I am sorry not to see the classmates and to join in the reminiscences, but I shall be with you all in spirit. If any '86 man crosses over to Old England he should without fail look me up.

At the Rochester, N. Y. Convention of the Students' Volunteer Movement of Foreign Missions I was a delegate from the British Movement. After the Convention, January 1910, I went back to Old Princeton. Everything on the campus interested me. How the place has grown! But Murray Dodge Hall and the Olmstead House on Stockton Street meant most to me. In the latter the Students' Volunteer Movement of Foreign Missions began in 1884, and since then 400 Volunteers have gone out as missionaries from United States and Canada; much more than we expected.

"Bob" was married on September 7, 1892, to Miss Helena Sophie Olsson, of Christiania, Norway, and has four daughters: Elizabeth Leonore, born January 24, 1896, at Poona, India; Grace Helena, born July 18, 1897, at Veldre, Norway; Ruth Evelyn, born May 1, 1899, at Montclair, N. J., and Mary Dorothy, born December 20, 1900, at Coonoor, India. The girls attend school at Threame House School, Hempstead, London.

WILDER'S EXCELLENT WORK.

From The Student Movement, London, May, 1900.

The General Committee of the Student Christian Movement at its Easter meeting took the important step of inviting Mr. Wilder to become a permanent officer of the Movement. Hitherto Mr. Wilder has been retained on agreement for short periods. An important invitation to Mr. Wilder from outside the United Kingdom made the Executive aware of the possibility of losing his services. After careful consideration the Executive decided to invite him to become a Travelling Secretary of the Movement for some years. Mr. Wilder is constantly in demand from all parts of the college field; some invitations have been repeated again and again for the last three years without his having been able to find time to accept them. It is believed that the position of Travelling Secretary to the whole Movement will give him the widest possible scope for the use of his gifts, and will enable him from time to time to undertake special work for each of the three departments. We are glad to be able to say that the invitation which was given most cordially by a unanimous Executive has been equally cordially accepted by Mr. Wilder. We may, therefore, look forward to having him with us for some years.

As the appointment is of considerable importance to the Movement we append the extract from the minutes of General Committee making it:

"1. That Mr. Wilder be cordially invited to become Travelling Secretary of the Student Christian Movement, and that in tendering him this invitation the General Committee desire to place on record their deep sense of gratitude for the valuable services rendered to the Movement by Mr. Wilder during all his connection with it. They value him not less for his help as a spiritual force on the Executive than for his work done in the college field.

"2. That Mr. Wilder's appointment be subject to a year's notice on either side, and that it come up for reconsideration by the Executive in ten years' time, i. e., 1920.

"3. That in view of the fact that Mr. Wilder has such close links with the Student Movements on the Continent of Europe this Executive recognize that possibly the best contribution they can give to the Federation in the immediate future will be to lend the services of Mr. Wilder occasionally for Continental visitation, and they are willing to do this on the same terms as in the past after due consultation between Mr. Wilder, themselves, and the Federation Authorities.

"These resolutions were carried unanimously and with great cordiality by the Executive."

JAMES C. WILEY.

Wiley was not very long in Princeton. He entered in September 1882 and left in December 1882. Those of the class who remember him during this brief period will regret to learn of his death which occurred on December 10, 1897, after an attack of Bright's disease.

After leaving Princeton Wiley went to Lafayette where he spent two and a half years, then going West for "cow punching". After a few years of travel, he settled down in his home at Lancaster, Pa., and on April 1, 1888 entered the firm of J. L. Metzger & Co., manufacturers and wholesale dealers in fine cigars. Wiley was never married.

SAMUEL RENWICK WILLS.

"Sammy" was born in Alleghany City, Pa., on May 16, 1863, son of William Wills and Anna M. Harmon. He was prepared for college at Newell Institute, Pittsburg, entered Princeton in 1882 and stayed through the four years in the "Scientif" department.

"Sammy" was in the wholesale dry-goods store of Joseph Horne & Co., Pittsburg, for two years, and then went into the steel inspecting business. He has been in the employ of Robert W. Hunt & Co., engineers, most of the time, with headquarters at Pittsburg.

He was married November 21, 1899, to Miss M. Bell Herring, of Wilkesburg. On their honeymoon they stopped at Princeton for a few days. They have no children.

WILLIAM PHELPS WOOD.

"Woody" was born in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., August 11, 1863, a son of Isaac Wood and Emily H. Wells. His two brothers are Princeton men: Ira W. Wood '77, now a member of Congress from the Trenton, N. J., district, and Edward S. Wood '85. He prepared for college at State Model School, Trenton, entered Princeton in 1882 and was graduated with the degree of A.B. in 1886. After graduation "Woody" engaged in the rubber business with his brother, Wood '85, at Morrisville, Pa., across the river from "dear old" Trenton, under the name of the Union Rubber Works. "Woody" was president of the Company. He sold his interest in the concern, and since then has led a life of more or less leisure, travelling in Europe, Cuba, Atlantic City and Lake Placid, with constant voyages from Trenton to Princeton for athletic contests and class reunions. He is not married.

YOUNG

BALLANTYNE

DURRELL

BOYD

J. S. GREEN

He belongs to the Princeton Clubs of Philadelphia and Trenton and the Trenton Country Club.

JAMES WILSON WOODROW.

Woodrow was born in Chillicothe, O., January 26, 1865, son of Thomas Woodrow and Helen Sill. He prepared for college at the Chillicothe High School, entered Princeton in September 1882, and was graduated with the degree of C.E. in 1886.

On leaving Princeton he went into the engineering department of the N. Y. C. & S. L. R. R. Co., and became assistant engineer of the Western Division between Belleview, O., and Chicago. He became in June 1888 eastern agent of the Smith Bridge Co., of Toledo, O., and later went into the engineering department of the Metropolitan and Kings County Elevated Railroad Co. In February 1889 he went to Venezuela as assistant engineer of location for a French railroad company and was in charge of the bridges on construction, with headquarters at Maracaibo. Since then he has been engaged in engineering or mine superintendency in this country, South America, and Mexico. From April 1907 to date, he has been examining mining engineer for Phelps, Dodge (Cleveland H. Dodge '79) & Co., with headquarters at Bisbee, Ariz.

Woodrow was married at Chillicothe, O., August 4, 1897, to Miss Nancy Waddell, the author, who writes under the name of Mrs. Wilson Woodrow.

Woodrow is a member of the University Club of New York. He was at one time Mayor of Empire, Col.

FREDERIC A. YOUNG.

"Fred" Young was born at Hudson, N. Y., on March 23, 1864, a son of Prof. Charles A. Young and Augusta Mien. He prepared for college at the Princeton Preparatory School, entered college in 1882, and was graduated with the degree of C.E. in 1886.

He took a special course at Princeton after graduation, and then became connected with the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, serving with that department from May 27, 1887, to May 30, 1907. He spent six seasons in Alaska, and has been engaged in work in almost every state of the Union. In 1900 he was in command of the Coast Survey steamer Endeavor, making hydrographic surveys in Chesapeake Bay, Delaware River, Potomac River, Key West, Fla., New Bedford, Mass., and the Gulf of Mexico.

He writes:

I left the Coast Survey as I had an opportunity to settle down in Washington and establish a home for myself and family after twenty years of wandering all over the United States. I am a member of the Cosmos Club and the Alumni Association of the District of Columbia.

"Fred" was married to Gertrude Orendorf in 1903 and has one child, a boy, Roger F. Young.

NO REPORT.

No report has been received concerning the following: J. H. Casterline, John C. Montanye, C. L. ("Pug") Rayner, Frank D. ("Lugs") Reynolds, Daniel C. Smith (who dropped into '87), and John G. Westbrook.

SONS OF '86 IN COLLEGE

"Still there's more to follow."

LEDLIE IRWIN LAUGHLIN, Scientific,
Class of 1912.

WILLIAM DENISON BICKMAN, Academic,
Class of 1913.

ROBERT JENNINGS MATHIS, Academic,
Class of 1913.

JOHN RHEA MONTGOMERY, Academic,
Class of 1913.

WALTER BRYANT HERVEY, Academic,
Class of 1914.

HENRY ALEXANDER LAUGHLIN, JR., Scientific,
Class of 1914.

FRESHMAN YEAR

IN MEMORIAM.

James Collins Adams,	Sept. 9, 1908.
William Arrott,
Samuel Mills Bevin,	March 6, 1900.
Herbert Lamont Brice,	May 23, 1902.
William A. Calhoun (did not graduate),	Sept. 3, 1887.
Horace Newton Congar, Jr.,	April 21, 1898.
John H. Denny (graduated in '87),	Jan. 11, 1900.
Henry Hazlitt Forsyth, Jr. (did not graduate),	July 15, 1897.
George I. Foster (did not graduate),	May 1887.
Benjamin H. Gaskill (did not graduate),	May 25, 1905.
William J. Goudy (did not graduate),	1894.
Robert S. Green, Jr.,	May 17, 1904.
Charles E. Griffith,	June 14, 1905.
Marshall Halstead,	Jan. 29, 1908.
James Arden Harriman,	April 20, 1909.
J. Parke Hood (did not graduate),	March 17, 1904.
Otis Leander Jacobs,	Sept. 30, 1897.
William Dickey Kearns,	April 13, 1900.
Henry Cumming Lamar,	March 1, 1891.
John Cass Mathis	Dec. 2, 1904.
John W. McAlpin (did not graduate),	Aug. 9, 1910.
Carroll McKinney,	Oct. 11, 1894.
John McMullin (did not graduate),	Jan. 8, 1903.
John Stevens Parker,	June 30, 1904.
Horace M. Porter (graduated in '87),	Sept. 30, 1890.
Edward O. Robinson,
George Black Roddy,	Sept. 9, 1910.
Morse Rowell (did not graduate),	April 1896.
George Lester Rundle,	Jan. 21, 1901.
Alexander Stewart,	Jan. 8, 1895.
William Edward Strater (did not graduate),	May 24, 1908.
Edwin K. Thomas (did not graduate),	May 1889.
Henry Pennington Toler,	Feb. 1, 1910.
Lewis H. Towler,	June 25, 1899.
John C. Wiley (did not graduate),	Dec. 10, 1897.

Total number of deaths, 35.

MARRIED.

- Clarence J. Allen to Elizabeth S. Steele, at Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 18, 1888.
 Pearce Bailey to Edith Newbold Black, Nov. 11, 1899, at Jobstown, N. J.
 William Ballantyne, Jr., to Alice L. Jeffras, at Cincinnati, Ohio, on April 6, 1893.
 Daniel B. Banks, to Jean Warner Matthews, Sept. 5, 1888; to Garey Tiernan Walton, June 7, 1905.
 Joseph D. Baucus to Emma Olney,* of Rome, N. Y., on March 7, 1890.
 Grant R. Bennett to Nina Frances Morgan, at Chicago, Ill., on June 8, 1892.
 S. Mills Bevin* to Julia Huntington Williams, at Brooklyn, N. Y., on Nov. 14, 1889.
 D. D. Bickham to Anne Raub Stout, at Easton, Pa., on Oct. 19, 1887.
 Montgomery Blair to Edith Draper, on Feb. 26, 1895, at Washington, D. C.
 W. R. Blakemore to Mary Ellen Neely, in Paris, Ky., Jan 3, 1899.
 W. H. Blauvelt to Adèle Picot Wilson, in Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 22, 1891.
 Robert B. Bowie to Mary Clare O'Connor, at Baltimore, Sept. 5, 1904.
 J. H. Boyd to Susan M. Adams, of Portland, Me., on March 25, 1896.
 John Calhoun to Louise B. Johnstone, of Connellsville, Pa., July 31, 1900.
 A. Guyot Cameron to Anne Wood Finley, of London, O., June 21, 1899.
 James C. Carter to Carrie W. Crane, at Boonton, Oct. 8, 1889.
 Samuel T. Carter, Jr., to Anna Washburn Burnham, at Morristown, N. J., Oct. 21, 1897.
 John W. Carcy to Mae Alice Stone, of Chicago, on Oct. 2, 1889.
 Joseph Cashman to Katharine Blatter, of Philadelphia, on June 17, 1903.
 John T. Charlton to Bertha Brown, of Madison, Wis., on June 18, 1902.
 Charles H. Chetwood to Jeannette C. Mecke, on June 17, 1891.
 Lowrie Childs to Hortense E. Ferguson, at Hudson, N. Y., June 11, 1891.
 David E. Crozier to Margaret Hall Garrett, at Germantown, Pa., Dec. 17, 1907.
 George H. Davis to Julia Cullom, at Berkeley, Cal., Feb. 4, 1903.
 William S. Dodd to Mary Johnson, of Oswego, July 19, 1893.
 Thomas J. Dolan to Yzabel W. Hoffman.
 Anthony W. Durrell to Alfaretta Kemper French,* on March 12, 1892; to Olga Frances Burchard at Philadelphia, Pa., on April 22, 1900.
 George T. Eddy to Rose Gabriel, at Cleveland, Ohio, June 4, 1896.
 Bertric Egbert to Clara May Irwin, at Jacksonville, Fla., April 10, 1895.
 W. S. Elder to Maud Eccles, in Chicago, Ill., Sept. 25, 1893.
 H. C. Elsing to Lucy Thompson, at Mecklenburgh, N. Y., Sept. 10, 1896.
 Charles R. Erdman to Mary Estelle Pardee, at Germantown, Pa., June 1, 1892.
 Frank B. Everitt to Sara Helena Van Dyke, of Stockton, N. J., Sept. 11, 1895.
 Wilson Farrand to Margaret Washburne Walker, of Boston, Mass., Nov. 23, 1889.
 M. C. Fleming to Angeline Wilson, of Cincinnati, Ohio, on Oct. 11, 1893.
 Joseph H. Gaines to Marjorie Lewis Gentry, of Charleston, W. Va., on Nov. 23, 1898.
 H. Victor Gause to S. May White, at Philadelphia, on April 19, 1887.
 William J. Goudy* to Carolyn Harvey Walker, Dec. 14, 1887.
 James S. Green to Mary Moxley Fisher, of Baltimore, Md., Sept. 20, 1892.
 Charles E. Griffith* to Elizabeth L. Foresman,* at Johnsonburg, N. J., Nov. 23, 1887.
 W. D. W. Hall to Elizabeth Orr, at Lewes, Del., July 19, 1893.
 Charles D. Halsey to Effie Van Rensselaer Grubb, at Burlington, N. J., Nov. 20, 1895.
 R. T. H. Halsey to Helen Homans,* of New York, on Jan. 10, 1894; to Effie Underhill Crossman, at New York, on Feb. 18, 1909.
 Marshal Halstead* to Clara Lunkenheimer, at Cincinnati, Ohio., June 22, 1907.

* Deceased.

THE GRADUATING CLASS

S. M. Hamill to Lila Clarke Kennedy, at Philadelphia, April 17, 1895.
 John W. Harding to Ruth Guthrie Thompson, Oct. 24, 1901.
 David E. Harlan to Catharine Meily Freeman, at Lima, Ohio, Nov. 9, 1898.
 J. Arden Harriman* to Adele Leshner, of New York, on Nov. 21, 1896.
 Tracy H. Harris to Laura Curtis, of New York, on Sept. 4, 1890.
 Walter B. Harris to Anne L. Yeomans, of Princeton, Nov. 22, 1892.
 Charles Helliwell to Minnie A. Morris, at Sandwich, Mass., June 29, 1887.
 Samuel C. Henning to M. Julie Duke.
 Walter L. Hervey to Antoinette Bryant, of Gilbertsville, N. Y., July 14, 1887.
 Harry Hillard to Ellen Walsh Humphreys, of Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 15, 1891.
 Hugh L. Hodge to Annie Fleming Beith, of Glasgow, Scotland, Oct. 18, 1893.
 Richard M. Hodge to Alice Austen, of Glencoe, Md., June 28, 1888.
 J. Parke Hood* to Emily Baird Thompson, at Pottsville, Pa., April 15, 1891.
 James H. Horner to Laura Moye, of Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 11, 1888.
 Walter B. Howe to Annie Jewett Collins, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 28, 1895.
 William H. Hudnut to Harriet S. Beecher, at Northampton, N. Y., June 25, 1890.
 Otis L. Jacobs* to Nellie Madge, of Baltimore, Md., Nov. 24, 1887.
 Charles A. Jaggard to Anna H. White, of Southampton, N. Y., June 9, 1887.
 Henry W. Jessup to Mary H. Stotesbury of Philadelphia Oct. 15, 1889.
 William Jessup to Faith Jadwin, of Brooklyn, Oct. 15, 1890.
 Robert C. Johnston to Delia B. Patterson, of Hollidaysburg, Pa., June 29, 1897.
 Henry L. Kemper to Clara V. D. Runyon, of New Brunswick, N. J., Jan. 24, 1894.
 Adrian H. Larkin to Katharine Bache Satterthwaite, of Nutley, N. J., Sept. 2, 1891.
 James B. Laughlin to Clara B. Young, of Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 10, 1888.
 John J. Lawrence, Jr., to Clara Louise Andrews, of Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 19, 1892.
 Robert L. Lee to Josephine Claiborne Wilson, of Roanoke, Va., June 29, 1897.
 John S. McAdam to Anna H. Crandall, at Newport, R. I., Nov. 6, 1895.
 James W. McAlpin* to Catherine Bostwick Jones, Sept. 19, 1909.
 George B. McClellan to Georgiana L. Hecksher, of New York, at Newport, R. I., Oct. 30, 1889.
 S. J. McClenaghan to Anna B. Marsh, of Princeton, June 4, 1889.
 John W. McKenzie to Lotta Hilliker, of New York, Dec. 6, 1910.
 John McMullin* to Betty Hays, in Oakland, Cal., Jan. 4, 1888.
 W. S. MacLaren to Louise Cobane,* of Skaneateles, N. Y., June 14, 1892; to Blanche Freeman, of Philadelphia, Pa., April 12, 1898.
 Augustus S. Mapes to Helen Russell Shipman,* of Stony Ford, N. Y., on Oct. 14, 1891; to Annette M. Stewart, of New York, Feb. 8, 1897.
 John C. Mathis* to Marie Wyatt, of Brooklyn, June 28, 1886.
 Frederick G. Mead to Anne L. Lawrence, of Paterson, N. J., April 28, 1887.
 David M. Milton to Ellen Hart Fink, of Louisville, Ky., March 25, 1896.
 John A. Montgomery to Helen B. Stryker, of Trenton, N. J., Nov. 19, 1891.
 A. L. Neldon to Nancy O'Connor.
 John S. Parker* to Lizzie Sexton, of Asbury Park, N. J., Oct. 20, 1880.
 Stewart Paton to Frances Margaret Halsey, of New York, June 24, 1892.
 Edward H. Pershing to Marie Antoinette Boggess, of Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 20, 1900.
 Horace M. Porter* to Adelaide Wattson.
 William Rankin to Carrie Louise Rundle, of Passaic, N. J., June 11, 1902.
 Joseph P. Ranney to Mary G. Kintzing, of Buffalo, June 16, 1908.
 Alfred N. Raven to Ella Perry, at Oswego, N. Y., July 21, 1888.
 Arthur W. Remington to Mary Louise Kimball, of Milford, N. H., July 2, 1890.
 George Reynolds to Julia Nitchie Cobb, at Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 29, 1892.
 Edward O. Robinson* to Mary B. McKnight, at Sewickley, Pa., Oct. 27, 1897.
 George B. Roddy* to Lillian O. Barnett, at New Bloomfield, June 10, 1903.
 Richard Reid Rogers to Eunice Tomlin, at Jackson, Tenn., June 25, 1892.
 Morse Rowell* to Belle J. England, of White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 24, 1888.
 George L. Rundle* to Helen McDonalds.*

* Deceased.

Walter K Sharpe to Helen McKeehan Cook, of Chambersburg, Pa., May 6, 1897.
 George E. Shea to Céline Bonheur, of Paris, May 20, 1897.
 R. C. Sheldon to Isabella Marvii, of Jamestown, N. Y., June 16, 1898.
 John A. Silver to Agnes McMurdo, of London, Eng., June 3, 1891.
 Renwick T. Sloane to Katherine Sitterley, of Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 23, 1907.
 Harrison B. Smith to Katherine Dana Bowne, of Brooklyn, N. Y., May 12, 1896.
 Charles S. Stoddard to Laura Van Ausdal, June 21, 1888 at Dayton, Ohio.
 William E. Strater to Jessie La Nauze Clark, of Louisville, Dec. 14, 1893.
 Llewellyn Thomas to ————.
 William F. Timlow to Evelyn Carolan, of San Francisco, April 23, 1895.
 Henry P. Toler* to Virginia Wheeler, of New York, 1888.
 Robert D. Totten to Elizabeth A. Reymor, of Allegheny City, Pa., Dec. 20, 1892.
 L. H. Towler* to Leela May Savage, at Olivet, Mich., Jan. 2, 1889.
 W. S. Vanneman to Marguerite Amy Fox, of Philadelphia, Pa., July, 1900.
 Charles S. Van Syckel to Isabel S. Stephens, of Trenton, N. J., Oct. 11, 1888.
 James A. Van Wagenen to Evelyn Jean Léger, of Montreal, Canada, Oct. 27, 1908.
 John M. Waddell to Nellie Lee Storer, at Elm Grove, W. Va., May 25, 1892.
 Albert C. Wall to Maria Gibson Carey, of Baltimore, Md., April 30, 1896.
 Rodman Wanamaker to Fernande Antonia Henry,* of Philadelphia, Nov. 4, 1886; to Violet
 Cruger, of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., at Westminster, England, July 27, 1909.
 Gaylord S. White to Sophie Douglass Young, of New York, June 6, 1892.
 Robert P. Wilder to Helene Sophie Olsson, of Christiana, Norway, Sept. 7, 1892.
 Samuel R. Wills to M. Bell Henning, of Wilkinsburg, Nov. 21, 1899.
 J. Wilson Woodrow to Nancy Mann Waddell at Chillicothe, Ohio, Aug. 4, 1897.
 Frederick A. Young to Gertrude Orendorf, of Baltimore, Md., 1903.

* Deceased.

OUR FIRST REUNION

THE BOYS AND GIRLS OF EIGHTY-SIX.

Francis Oleott Allen, born Sept. 19, 1889.

Edith Newbold Bailey, born Feb. 27, 1901.

Pearce Bailey, Jr., born July, 1902.

James Lawrence Baikey, born July, 1902. } TWINS.

Geraldine Bailey, born Sept., 1907.

Gretchen Banks, born Sept. 17, 1889.

Married to John Sellers Barnes, of Philadelphia, Oct. 27, 1909.

Daniel B. Banks, Jr., born Jan. 12, 1895.

Fidele Watrous Bevin, born Dec. 24, 1891; died Nov. 18, 1900.

Allen W. Bevin, born Sept. 28, 1893.

Newton P. Bevin, born Oct. 4, 1895.

Harriet Morgan Bevin, born March 11, 1898.

Emily Marie Bickham, born Dec. 19, 1889; died Dec. 26, 1890.

William Denison Bickham, born Oct. 31, 1891.

Ann Elizabeth Bickham, born July 29, 1894.

Edith Blair, born Sept. 6, 1896.

Minna Blair, born Nov. 23, 1897.

Montgomery Blair, Jr., born Nov. 9, 1898.

Virginia Blair, born Dec. 21, 1899.

William Blair, born Dec. 13, 1902.

Ellen Blair, born May 25, 1905.

Katherine Taylor Blakemore, born Jan. 21, 1903; died July 4, 1905.

Adèle Blauvelt, born Aug. 3, 1893.

Katharine Blauvelt, born June 10, 1900.

Helen Boyd, born Jan. 3, 1897.

Mary Boyd, born July 15, 1899.

James Harrington Boyd, Jr., born Nov. 29, 1902.

Sarah Elizabeth Calhoun, born May 1, 1901.

John Adley Calhoun, born March 15, 1905.

Constance Guyot Cameron born Oct. 20 1900.

Arnold Guyot Cameron II, born June 3, 1902.

David Pierre Guyot Cameron, born April 1, 1904.

Nicholas Guyot Cameron, born Nov. 6, 1905.

Stéphanie Guyot Cameron, born Nov. 6, 1905; died Feb. 6, 1908.

Gerard Guyot Cameron, born Feb. 26, 1909.

Miriam Cochran Carter, born Jan. 16, 1891.

Thomas Donald Carter, born Jan. 28, 1893.

(Children of James C. Carter)

Gladys B. Carter, born Oct. 6, 1898.
Burnham Carter, born March 21, 1901.
Samuel T. Carter, 3rd, born Oct. 6, 1904.
(Children of Samuel T. Carter, Jr.)

Margaret Stone Cary, born Jan. 5, 1894.

Elizabeth Cashman, born March 1, 1910.

Malcolm Charlton, born June 8, 1905.

Louise Charlton, born June 11, 1910.

Charles Everard Childs, born June 6, 1892. (CLASS BOY OF '91.)

George Cullom Davis, born Jan. 13, 1905.

Shelby Cullom Davis, born April 1, 1909.

Thomas Dolan 3rd, born _____.

Anthony W. Durell, Jr., born Nov. 28, 1895.

Dudley Burchard Durell, born April 30, 1901; died in 1901.

Lilian Durell, born Oct. 1, 1908.

Alfred Gabriel Eddy, born June 10, 1891.

Priscilla Alden Eddy, }
Eunice Catherine Eddy* } TWINS, born Dec. 29, 1895.

* Died March 14, 1897.

Helen Egbert, born Nov. 10, 1899.

Duncan Elder, born Sept. 6, 1898.

Katherine Elsing, born May 1, 1898.

Margaret Elsing, born Nov. 29, 1899.

Calvin Pardee Erdman, born Aug. 16, 1893.

Mary P. Erdman, born March 4, 1895.

Charles R. Erdman, Jr., born Aug. 25, 1897.

Alice Erdman, born March 24, 1904.

Kenneth Van Dyke Everitt, born Oct. 16, 1896.

Helen Gladys Everitt, born May 4, 1903.

James Donald Everitt, born April 24, 1906.

Margaret Louise Farrand, born Dec. 3, 1891.

Katherine Farrand, born April 19, 1893.

Dorothy Farrand, born June 1, 1897.

Wilson Fleming, born Sept. 12, 1895; died Feb. 23, 1898.

Mathew C. Fleming, Jr., born June 8, 1899.

William Wilson Fleming, born Oct. 19, 1909.

Joseph Holt Gaines, Jr., born Nov. 11, 1900.

Theophilus Stockton Gaines, born Feb. 3, 1902.

Richard Kenna Gaines, born July 31, 1903.

Marjorie Lewis Gaines, born March 21, 1905.

OUR BHEITAL REUNION

Ann Blair Gaines, born March 26, 1908.
Helen Van Bibber Gaines, born May 13, 1909.

James S. Green, Jr., born March 16, 1894.
Margaret W. Green, born Aug. 27, 1895.
Frances W. Green, born July 24, 1897.
Grace W. Green, born June 24, 1899.
Richard F. Green, born Dec. 25, 1901.
Mary Moxley Green, born Sept. 5, 1904.

Helen F. Griffith, born Dec. 4, 1888.

David Hall, born Oct. 4, 1898; died July 22, 1899.

Cortlandt Van Rensselaer Halsey, born Oct. 11, 1896.
Charles Day Halsey, Jr., born Jan. 9, 1900.
Lily Van Rensselaer Halsey, born July 15, 1906.

E. D. Kennedy Hamill, born June 7, 1897.
Samuel McC. Hamill, born Aug. 8, 1899.
Hugh Maxwell Hamill, born April 16, 1901.

Jean G. Harding, born Jan. 27, 1903.

Olivia Harlan, born Sept. 6, 1899.
Catherine Harlan, born Nov. 30, 1900.
Herbert Harlan, born April 23, 1902.

Dorothy C. Harris, born Oct. 16, 1893.
Walter B. Harris, born Oct. 19, 1895.
George Yeomans Harris, born April 11, 1901; died April 14, 1901.
Helen B. Harris, born 1892.
(Children of Walter B. Harris.)

Lilian Agnes Helliwell, born Jan. 22, 1889.
Marian Angela Helliwell, born Aug. 25, 1891.
Charles Harold Helliwell, born July 1, 1897.

Walter Bryant Hervey, born June 16, 1892.

Humphreys Hillard, born Jan. 17, 1894.
A daughter, born Dec. 24, 1904, who died a few days later.

Gilberth Beith Hodge, born July 25, 1900.
Beatrice Hodge, born Sept. 13, 1903.
(Children of Hugh L. Hodge.)

Genevieve Austen Hodge, born Sept. 22, 1894.
Edward Austen Hodge, born March 30, 1896.
(Children of Richard M. Hodge.)

John Parke Hood, Jr., born April 21, 1893.
Sidney Hood, born Jan. 2, 1896.
James Gowan Hood, born Dec. 29, 1899.
Heber Thompson Hood, born April 13, 1904.

Dorothy Hudnut, born June 22, 1891.
Marjorie Hudnut, born Dec. 27, 1892.
Herbert Beecher Hudnut, born Feb. 4, 1894.
Ella Katharine Hudnut, born Oct. 26, 1895.

Paul Burke Jacobs, born June 12, 1889.
Oscar Madge Jacobs, born Jan. 16, 1892.

Mary Pelletreau Jaggard, born Jan 14, 1889.
Gertrude Elizabeth Jaggard, born June 3, 1894.

Henry Herbert Jessup, born Feb. 18, 1891.
Theodore Carrington Jessup, born Feb. 28, 1892.
John Butler Jessup, born Sept. 18, 1894.
Philip Caryl Jessup, born Jan. 5, 1897.
Richard Stotesbury Jessup, born Oct. 1, 1907.
(Children of H. W. Jessup.)

Theodosia Davenport Jessup, born March 17, 1892.
Elizabeth Palmer Jessup, born July 28, 1894.
Helen Butchart Jessup, born Aug. 27, 1895.
Henry Harris Jessup, born Oct., 1897; died May 5, 1898.
Faith Jadwin Jessup, born Sept. 18, 1902.
(Children of William Jessup.)

Warren E. Kemper, born July 21, 1895.
Cornelia R. Kemper, born Sept. 20, 1897.

James Satterthwaite Larkin, born May 12, 1893.
Sara Elizabeth Larkin, born Dec. 9, 1896.

Ledlie Irwin Laughlin, born April 26, 1890.
Henry A. Laughlin, born March 18, 1892.
Alice D. Laughlin, born Oct. 19, 1895.

Louise Lawrence, born Oct. 17, 1893.
John J. Lawrence, Jr., born Oct. 15, 1895.
William W Lawrence, born May 9, 1897.
Miriam Lawrence, born Feb. 2, 1899.

Roger William McAdam, born March 24, 1900.
William Crandall McAdam }
John S. McAdam, Jr. } TWINS, born Nov. 26, 1902.

Marguerite McClenaghan, born June 19, 1890.
Willis McClenaghan, born July 6, 1894.
Esther McClenaghan, born July 12, 1899.

Mary McKecknie, born 1902.

John McMullin, Jr., born 1890.
Eliza McMullin, born 1891.
Harmon McMullin, born 1894.

Lydia Cobane MacLaren, born June 2, 1894.
William S. MacLaren, Jr., born June 16, 1896.
Donald Ross MacLaren, born Feb. 14, 1903.

OUR TRIENNIAL REUNION

John A. Mapes II, born Feb. 5, 1898.
Douglas Stewart Mapes, born April 28, 1901.

Robert J. Mathis, born Jan. 4, 1890.
John C. Mathis, Jr., born August 22, 1897.

Christine Mead, born July 28, 1890.
Mary R. Mead, born April 9, 1893.

Albert Fink Milton, born Sept. 11, 1897.
David M. Milton, Jr., born Feb. 22, 1900.
Ellen Fink Milton, born Dec. 14, 1902.

John R. Montgomery, born Nov. 6, 1892.
Helen S. Montgomery, born Sept. 6, 1894.

Nancy Nelden, born 1897.

Alma T. Parker }
Edna H. Parker } TWINS, born Nov. 24, 1887.
Claude Willard Parker, April 2, 1890.
Leigh S. Parker, born 1882; died 1883.

Frances Evelyn Paton, born Sept. 1895.
William Paton, born Sept. 1897.
Richard Townley Paton, born April 1901.

Teresa Rankin, born Feb. 5, 1904.
Caroline Ayer Rankin, born Sept. 28, 1905.
Wilhelmina Rankin, born March 10, 1908.

Helen Penington Ranney, born March 5, 1911.

Alfred Perry Raven, born May 1, 1892.

Sanford Cobb Reynolds, born Oct. 27, 1893.
Katharine Rainsford Reynolds, born May 16, 1896.

Edward O. Robinson, Jr., born Dec. 28, 1900; died July 4, 1902.
Charles McKnight Robinson, born Dec. 2, 1906; died Jan. 20, 1908.
Harlan Baird Robinson, born June 8, 1909.

Stanhope Orris Roddy, born Feb. 1, 1904.
George Black Roddy, born May 24, 1905; died Sept. 4, 1905.
Robert Edward Roddy, born June 11, 1906.
Martha Ege Roddy }
Lillian Barnett Roddy } TWINS, born May 20, 1908.

Elizabeth Reid Rogers, born Aug. 17, 1895.

Ira Morse Rowell, born March 31, 1890.
Mary Belle Rowell, born Oct. 25, 1891.
Marjorie Lily Rowell, born Nov. 14, 1893.
Violet England Rowell, born Aug. 13, 1895.

Henry McDonald Rundle, born July 10, 1896.

John McDowell Sharpe, born March 30, 1898.
Winifred Sharpe, born Oct. 24, 1903.

George Edward Shea, Jr., born July 27, 1902.
Henry Gregory Shea, born Jan. 14, 1904.

Julia Sheldon, born Oct. 25, 1900.
Ralph C. Sheldon, Jr., born June 24, 1905.

Edward McMurdo Silver, born March 15, 1903.

Harrison Bowne Smith, born March 2, 1898.
Helen Dana Smith, born March 2, 1900.
Alex Quarrier Smith, born March 23, 1898.

John W. Stoddard, Jr., THE CLASS BOY, born April 16, 1889.
Roberts Van Ausdal Stoddard, born Dec. 29, 1890.
Mary Chloe Stoddard, born June 5, 1894.

Edward La Nauze Strater, born Dec. 2, 1894.

Emily Carolan Timlow, born April 17, 1896.

Dorothy Toler, born Oct. 19, 1891.
Now the wife of John H. Auerbach, Princeton 1905; married Dec. 15, 1909.
Henry P. Toler, Jr., born Oct. 19, 1891.

Elizabeth R. Totten, born Dec. 9, 1893.
Phyllis Totten }
Louise M. Totten } TWINS, born March 18, 1902.

John W. Towler, born April 20, 1891.
Charles A. Towler, born Oct. 13, 1896.

Aimée Sherin Vanneman, born Dec. 8, 1892.
Dorothy Jewett Vanneman, born May 8, 1894.
Irene Wood Vanneman, born Nov. 26, 1896.
Ruth Vanneman, born Feb. 17, 1892; died Feb. 27, 1892.

James Stephen Van Syckel, born Sept. 5, 1889.
Mary Elizabeth Van Syckel, born March 12, 1892; died Aug. 24, 1910.
Isabel Van Syckel, born June 18, 1897.
Helen Van Syckel, born Dec. 24, 1901.

Elizabeth Calhoun Waddell, born Feb. 28, 1893.
Susan Sharpe Waddell, born Nov. 2, 1894.
Archibald McDonald Waddell }
John Storer Waddell } TWINS, born Jan. 2, 1899.
Eleanor Lee Waddell, born Oct. 13, 1905.

Josephine Carey Wall, born Dec. 13, 1899.
Albert Carey Wall, born Feb. 2, 1902.

Fernande Wanamaker, born ———.
Married in Paris, France, on Oct. 4, 1907, to Arturo Heeren, son of the Count and Countess de Heeren of Paris, France.
John Wanamaker, Jr., born ———.
Marie Louise Wanamaker, born ———.

OUR SEMENIAL REUNION

Sophie Douglas White, born April 3, 1893.
Charles Trumbull White, born Oct. 6, 1896.
Cleveland Stuart White, born July 28, 1900.
Katherine Gaylord White, born April 9, 1903.

Elizabeth Leonore Wilder, born Jan. 24, 1896.
Grace Helene Wilder, born July 18, 1897.
Ruth Evelyn Wilder, born May 1, 1899.
Mary Dorothy Wilder, born Dec. 20, 1900.

Roger F. Young, born _____.

Number of Boys.....	120
Number of Girls.....	122

Total	242
Number of Twins.....	6

EXTRA! EXTRA!

Just as we are going to press, we are de-lighted to announce the birth of Yvonne Guyot Cameron to Guyot and Mrs. Cameron.

A LETTER FROM THE CLASS BOY.

The following letter from THE CLASS BOY will be read with interest by the members of the Class:

TO THE CLASS OF '86,

Gentlemen:—Your Secretary, Mr. Evans, has asked me to write you a few words of greeting to be placed in the Class Record. The last time that I saw any of you I was hardly able to talk, much less to write. And now, I must admit, it is almost as difficult for me to write as it was then.

It has always been a regret to me that I was not able to go to Princeton. Ever since I can remember I have heard of nothing but Princeton. Up to about two years before I entered college I had no idea of going any place but there; in fact, I would not have dared mention another university as Princeton's equal. About that time, however, I learned that there was no Mechanical Engineering course at Princeton. Intending to go into the automobile business, as I do, I realized that that was the course for me to take. Cornell excelled in just such a course, and most of my best friends were going there and so it was natural that I should choose that college. The choice was entirely my own, my father having very little to do with the matter, although I know that he was disappointed. It took me some time to make up my mind to change to another University in this manner and it was with a great deal of regret that I finally decided to give up Princeton. I still think my choice a wise one, however, and am very well satisfied at Cornell though, as I said before, I still have regrets when I realize that I am not at Princeton. Always in my heart I shall have a soft spot for her, and, though I cannot be a Princetonian myself, I shall always keep in close touch with Old Nassau and will respect and love her with nearly the same respect and love that I have for my own Alma Mater.

Very truly yours,

J. W. STODDARD, JR.,
CLASS BOY.

Ithaca, N. Y.,
April 18, 1911.

The Class Boy

JOHN W. STODOLAK, JR.
The Class Boy

PREVIOUS REUNIONS OF '86

THE FIRST REUNION.

The first reunion of the Class was held in Princeton at Carl's in Commencement week of June '87. Over fifty men came back and renewed their youth. The Secretary's account of the Class Dinner says:

A jollier crowd never crossed legs beneath a dinner table. Everyone was speechful till all were speechless, and the festivities lasted till long into the morning of Commencement Day. Who that was there will ever forget the confidence of the Journalists in their ability to lick the Barristers, or how the Barristers threatened to wipe the Ministers from the face of the Earth, while the war cry passed from the Dry Goods men to the Pedagogues, and on to the Business Fiends. Eighty-Six thought then that it, or rather "Jack" Mathis, had a Class Boy, but Mathis has deceived and disappointed us, and the toast to the Boy was passed by with tears. How we cheered "Tilly" Lamar, and his ever-memorable run! How we yelled ourselves hoarse over the glorious men who brought the football championship to Princeton and the glory of victory to Eighty-Six! And then the walk around the Triangle. However the steps might be, there were no uncertain hearts in that crowd, and the praises of Old Nassau were never more lovingly sung than by the loyal group who rounded up their cheers for their Alma Mater with a Tiger for '86.

THE SECOND REUNION.

The Second Reunion was held in June '88, with headquarters in University Hall. Thirty men sat down to the dinner, and everyone thoroughly enjoyed every moment.

THE TRIENNIAL REUNION.

The Secretary's account of this Triennial says:

On June 18, 1889, the long-expected Triennial attracted sixty-seven members of the Class to the old scenes, and the old familiar places, and from Sunday to Wednesday, the campus resounded with the cheers and songs, the "hellos" and gags of '86. On Monday scores of the boys were introduced once more to the seductions and exhilarations of "Mud" punches. "Mud" was thousands of miles away, but his name was bathed in gallons of his favorite receipt, and many a classmate bore testimony to the wonderful efficacy of "Mud's" handicraft. On Tuesday the old time twirler, "Bick", displayed his amplitudinous legs once more to the admiring gaze of an enthusiastic band of classmates on the 'Varsity grounds. "Jim" Shaw was there too, but "Jim" covered the left garden while "Q" Kearns, the kingpin of the '86 "Scrub", put on the mask, (some one wanted to know why "Birdie" should find it necessary to wear a mask) and the gloves, and caught "Bick" with all the grace and ease imaginable. "Tray" Harris played in his old inimitable way, and waddled gleefully around the bases when the 'Varsity nine would give him a chance. "Brer" Gaines achieved the supreme distinction of his life and was permitted to call the balls and strikes as his fancy (it was stipulated that "Brer" should not exercise his judgment) dictated. But alas! "Bick" had grown old and feeble. His hand had lost its cunning, and though his legs were as statuesque and beautiful as of yore, the 'Varsity nine "touched him up" for several runs. On the same day about forty of the Boys were photographed in front of the "Old North." Tuesday was made further memorable by the informal reception which Dr. McCosh gave Eighty-Six on the campus. "Jimmy" made a brief speech in which he reiterated his fast-fixed belief that Princeton had never seen so wonderful a class as the Class of Eighty-Six.

And it was the evening of that day when over three score of the Boys gathered around the tables in "Carl's" to celebrate the Triennial and to crown with song, cheer and toast, the supreme achievement of "Chunk" Stoddard in producing for the honor of his Class and posterity the CLASS BOY. As to the presentation of the Class Cup to "Chunkie" Stoddard, Jr., it was deemed best that this interesting event should take place at the Decennial Reunion of the Class in 1896.

These were the toasts:

"EIGHTY-SIX", by the Class President, Corry Fleming.

"THE BOYS", by "Senator" Baucus.

"THE CLASS BOY", by "Chunk" Stoddard.

"THE BAR", by "Brer" Gaines.

"THE DOCTORS", by "Fe" Paton.

"THE PRESS", by "Shag" Congar.

"THE PEDAGOGUES", by Wilson Farrand.

And when "Pink-fingered Aurora" got her "fine work in" on the Eastern skies, the Boys of Eighty-Six were still singing and cheering for the Greatest Aggregation of Men that ever left Nassau Hall.

On Commencement Day the following members of the Class "lined up" before President Patton and received the degree of Magister Artium:

Bailey, Baucus, Blair, Carter, Cassel, Congar, Clark, Eddy, Erdman, Evans, Everitt, Farrand, Fleming, Gaines, J. Green, R. Green, Hall, Harris, Helliwell, Hervey, H. Hodge, R. Hodge, Jacobs, H. Jessup, W. Jessup, Kane, Kelley, Mapes, McClellan, McKenney, MacLaren, Montanye, Montgomery, Parker, Paton, Reynolds, Rogers, Shaw, Silver, Van Wagenen, Wall, White, Wilder.

OTHER REUNIONS.

More or less informal reunions were also held, in the subsequent years, '90, '91, and '92, and in the latter year the Class Cup was presented to the CLASS BOY who was present.

THE DECENNIAL

The next big reunion was the Decennial in 1896. For this purpose the Class had headquarters of its own, practically the first class to do so, thereby establishing a precedent which all other classes have followed. The headquarters nicknamed by "Shag" Congar as "The Push", was Kiloran's establishment on Witherspoon Street, which was selected because it was opposite "Pat" Reilly's emporium. The Class attended the Princeton-Yale game on Saturday afternoon, but somehow or other, the game didn't arouse much interest. The evening was spent at Kiloran's, with "Shag" Congar as master of ceremonies, with songs by the '86 Quartette, Calhoun, Carter, Clark, and Shea, and remarks by everybody.

Sunday was a day of rest and rumination. On Monday, the Class had its picture taken in front of Dickinson Hall. In the evening the Class Dinner was held at the Princeton Inn, and was the best that '86 had enjoyed up to that time. Speeches were made by Fleming, Cashman, Bailey, Mathis and Gaines, and by several members of visiting classes, with songs ad lib. by the Class Quartette. On Tuesday the Class attended the Alumni Dinner, at which Farrand spoke eloquently for and of '86. Several men remained until Thursday for the Princeton-Harvard ball game, and on Friday "Shag" sadly closed the doors of the '86 "Push".

In the interim between the Decennial and the Quinquennial, informal reunions were held year after year, generally in New York.

AFTER FIFTEEN YEARS.

From June 7 to June 12, 1901, the Class, over fifty in number, gathered for its Fifteenth Reunion, with headquarters at No. 19 University Place, opposite the old Observatory. The reunion was almost entirely an open-air affair, and the class spent most of its time 'neath the grateful shade of a capacious tent in the rear of the house. The steward of the Princeton Club of New York brought cooks, supplies and waiters and from Friday night to Wednesday noon, meals were served to the Class.

The headquarters were opened on Friday night, and the feature of that and other evenings was the superb singing of George Shea.

On Saturday afternoon the Class attended the Princeton-Yale Game and had the felicity of seeing Princeton win by the delectable score of 15 to 5. The evening of that most enjoyable day was spent at headquarters, with speeches multitudinous and songs and choruses by "Alfy" Baker '85, Hunter McAlpin '85, "Dominie" Studdiford '85, Ernest Carter '88 and the '86 Quartette.

OUR DECENNIAL REUNION

Sunday was a day of rest and reminiscence. In the afternoon the Class paid a visit of respect to the youngsters of '76 and enjoyed the hospitality of that hospitable class.

On Monday morning, the Class golf tournament was held, a handicap affair won by Boyd. In the afternoon, a meeting of the Class was held and it was decided to build a house, to be known as the '86 house. This house now stands on the golf links and on the site of the Graduate College. It has more than justified itself as a splendid and suitable gift to the College. In the afternoon the Class photograph was taken on the steps of Nassau Hall. In the evening the Class Dinner was held at the Princeton Inn, a fine and most enjoyable session. These are the men who were present:

Bailey, Bickham, Blair, Boyd, J. Carter, S. Carter, Cashman, Clark, Crozier, Davis, Eddy, Elsing, Erdman, Evans, Farrand, Fleming, J. Green, R. Green, Hall, R. T. Halsey, T. H. Harris, W. B. Harris, R. Hodge, Hood, Jaggard, Kane, Kelley, Lawrence, Mapes, Mathis, M. Miller, Milton, Montgomery, Pershing, Ranney, Reed, Robinson, Rogers, Shaw, Shea, Strong, Timlow, Vance, Van Syckel, Van Wageningen, White, Wood.

Corry Fleming presided, and speeches were made by Cameron on "The Faculty" and Rogers on "The Law" with informal remarks by several men, and songs ad infinitum. After the dinner, the Class adjourned to headquarters where, behind closed doors, a good old fashioned heart-to-heart experience meeting was held.

On Tuesday, at the Alumni Dinner, "Brer" Gaines responded eloquently for '86. A large number of men stayed over till Wednesday, when the headquarters were closed with appropriate ceremonies by "Jay" Lawrence and "Brer" Gaines.

AFTER TWENTY YEARS.

In 1906, the Class celebrated its twentieth Reunion with "bonfires and illumination", in its own home, the '86 house overlooking the beautiful vicinity of the golf links. The reunion began on Friday, June 8, and lasted until the following Wednesday. The "Class Hack" met all the incoming trains and carried the men from the station to the clubhouse and was kept busy plying to and fro during the reunion. The house, spick and span, bright and new, was in readiness. Over the mantle hung a huge portrait of "Tilly" Lamar, and beneath it a bronze tablet with the inscription:

"THIS HOUSE PRESENTED TO PRINCETON UNIVERSITY
BY
THE CLASS OF '86."

On another wall hung a frame containing the names of the members of '86, neatly engrossed, and illuminated in orange and black.

Breakfast was served to all comers on Saturday morning and from that time to the close meals were served on the long veranda al fresco. At noon luncheon was served to the Class and the wives, sons and daughters of the Class, while Voss's band, of Newark, consisting of twenty pieces, "emitted sweet melodies". About fifty '86 men marched to the ball field and took part in the Alumni parade, headed by the band, and had again the felicity of seeing Princeton beat Yale when "Eddie" Harlan, Freshman, and a relative of "Davy" Harlan, "tore the cover off the ball" in the ninth inning and knocked in the winning run. Of course, that meant a glorious night for '86, and the evening was spent in mirth and music, song and speech at the clubhouse, with music by the far-famed Lone Star Quartette, sent on from Pittsburg with the compliments of "Joe" Shea '85. No one who was there that night and subsequently will forget the "Woodchuck" song.

Sunday was spent at the clubhouse, and in strolling about the college grounds and viewing the beautiful new buildings, which make Princeton more attractive than ever.

On Monday the athletes and "near" athletes of the class competed for prizes in golf and tennis and on Monday night the following men sat down to the Class Dinner, at which no one except the members of the Class were present:

Ballantyne, Banks, Baucus, Bickham, Boyd, Calhoun, "Sam" Carter, Cary, Cashman, Clark, Davis, Egbert, Elder, Elsing, Erdman, Evans, Farrand, Fleming, Gaines, Gause, Green, Guthrie, Hall, Harlan, Tracy Harris, Hervey, "Dick" Hodge, Jaggard, Lawrence, MacLaren, Mapes, Montgomery, Ranney, Remington, Shaw, Shea, Smith, Timlow, Totten, Van Syckel, Van Wagenen, Waddell, Wall, White, Wood.

Among those who were at the reunion but could not stay for the dinner were Dodd, Harriman, Howe, H. Jessup, Meserole, M. Miller, McClellan, Rogers, Sharpe and Stoddard.

Corry Fleming presided and the same old '86 Quartette was on the job, with George Shea on hand, all the way from Paris. Speeches were made by Gaylord White, "Billy" Elder, Albert Wall and "Davy" Harlan, and the Class Secretary distributed prizes to the gladiators, the first prize in tennis doubles going to "Sam" Carter and "Brer" Gaines, and second prize to "Dodo" Green and Corry Fleming. The next day "Jopah" Smith won the golf prize from "Senator" Baucus. Altogether, it was a glorious and never-to-be-forgotten meeting.

Several men departed the next day but thirty men went to the Alumni Dinner to hear "Brer" Gaines speak eloquently for '86. Another fine evening was enjoyed at the house and after breakfast the next morning the doors were closed.

RECENT REUNIONS.

Since the Twentieth Reunion the Class has had informal dinners each year generally at the Princeton or University Clubs in New York.

OUR FIFTEENTH REUNION

SENIOR HONORMEN.

First Group—Magna Cum Laude.

Fleming,	Latin Salutatory.
Roddy,	English Salutatory.
Eddy,	Valedictory.
Sheldon,	Political Science Oration.

Second Group—Cum Laude.

(With special excellence in particular departments indicated.)

Baucus,	American Constitutional Law.
Boyd,	Mathematics.
Calhoun,
Cameron,	English Literature, Greek.
Cary,	American Political History.
Elsing,	Continental Literature.
Erdman,	Philosophy.
Evans,	General Excellence.
Hervey,	Political Economy.
Mathis,	History.
McKecknie,
Miller, E. D.	Ethics.
Miller, M. M.	Belles Lettres.
Silver,	Modern Languages.
Reed,	Physics.
Strong,	Metaphysics.
Waddell,
Wilder,	Mental Science.

Farrand entitled to a place on the honor list, but not regularly examined on account of ill health.

Durell, W. Jessup and Kane, of the Third Group, also received Commencement Orations.

SENIOR PRIZEMEN.

Alexander Guthrie McCosh prize—Eddy.

Class of 1859 prize in English Literature—Cameron.

In Science and Religion—Helliwell.

George Potts Bible prize—Silver, Wilder.

Lyman H. Atwater prize in Political Science—Kane.

Lynde Prize Debate—Farrand (Clio) first prize; R. Hodge (Whig) second prize;

H. W. Jessup (Whig) third prize.

BASEBALL RECORD IN SENIOR YEAR.

Yale won the championship, defeating Harvard in playing off a tie. The season resulted as follows:

Princeton 10, Brown 6; Princeton 3, Harvard 0; Princeton 4, Amherst 2; Princeton 4, Brown 0; Princeton 6, Harvard 7 (fourteen innings at Cambridge); Princeton 8, Yale 9; Princeton 2, Yale 12; Princeton 6, Amherst 2; Princeton 9, Williams 4; Princeton 4, Williams, 0.

FOOTBALL RECORD IN SENIOR YEAR.

It may be well to recall the record in Senior year of the football team which wound up the season by its brilliant and memorable victory over Yale at New Haven. Here it is:

	Goals.	Touchdowns.	Safeties.	Points.
Princeton	11	7	0	94
Stevens	0	0	0	0
Hoboken, Oct. 14, 1885.
Princeton.....	10	4	0	76
Stevens.....	0	0	0	0
Hoboken, Oct. 17, 1885.
Princeton.....	9	5	0	76
Univ. of Penn.....	1	1	1	10
Philadelphia, Oct. 24, 1885.
Princeton.....	9	5	0	76
Univ. of Penn.....	1	1	1	10
Philadelphia, Oct. 31, 1885.
Princeton.....	8	4	0	64
Graduates.....	0	0	0	0
New York, Nov. 3, 1885.
Princeton.....	13	7	0	108
Johns Hopkins.....	0	0	1	0
.
Princeton.....	11	2	0	76
Wesleyan.....	0	0	1	0
Princeton, Nov. 14, 1885.
Princeton.....	1	0	0	6
Yale.....	1*	0	0	5
New Haven, Nov. 21, 1885.
* Goal from the field by Watkinson
Princeton.....	5	7	0	57
Univ. of Penn.....	0	0	0	0
Philadelphia, Nov. 26, 1885.

RESUME.

Princeton, 76 goals; 43 touchdowns; 0 safeties; 637 points.

Opponents, 4 goals; 1 touchdown; 5 safeties; 25 points.

Harvard did not play Princeton in '85, by command of the faculty.

During this season DeCamp and Harris made 25 touchdowns; Lamar 22; H. Hodge, 13; R. Hodge, 5; Griffith, 2; Toler, 1; Adams, 1; Bickham, 1.

LACROSSE RECORD IN SENIOR YEAR.

Princeton, 5 goals; Stevens, 0 goals.

Princeton, 2 goals; Harvard, 3 goals.

Princeton, 3 goals; N. Y. University, 1 goal.

Princeton, 5 goals; Yale, 0 goals.

PRINCETON—6

OUR CHAMPIONSHIP TEAM

NEW HAVEN, CONN., NOV. 21, 1885

YALE—5

CLASS OFFICERS.

Freshman Year.

President, Porter; Vice President, Wiley; Secretary, Farrand; Treasurer, McClellan.

Sophomore Year.

President, Wills; Vice President, Paton; Secretary, Hood; Treasurer, Congar; Historian, Paton.

Junior Year.

President, Fleming; Vice President, Mathis; Secretary, Van Syckle; Treasurer, Kane; Historian, Paton.

Senior Year.

President, Baucus; Vice President, Erdman; Secretary, Van Syckle; Treasurer, Congar; Historian, Paton.

MISCELLANEOUS STATISTICS.

EDITORS OF BRIC-A-BRAC.

Halstead, Chairman; Cashman, Hodge, R., McKecknie, Paton, Pershing, Reynolds.

EDITORS OF NASSAU "LIT".

Mathis and Paton, managing editors; Cameron, Elder, McKecknie, Miller, M., Reynolds, G., treasurer.

'86's PRINCETONIAN EDITORS.

R. Hodge, managing editor; Gaines, associate manager; Baucus, Erdman, Evans, White; Cashman, treasurer.

'86 IN THE COLLEGE GLEE CLUB.

Calhoun, J., leader; Carter, S., first tenor; Larkin, Shea, first bass; Clark, second bass; Wanamaker, business manager; Crozier, accompanist.

'86 CLASS GLEE CLUB.

Calhoun, J., Leader; Waddell, Evans, Kelley, Shea, Wills, Griffith, Jessup, W.

'86 IN THE BANJO CLUB.

Guitars: Congar, Shea, Stoddard; Banjos: Toler, leader; Halsey, C.

'86 IN THE INSTRUMENTAL CLUB.

Pershing, leader and first violin; Smith, business manager and 'cello; Robinson, cornet.

UNIVERSITY FOOTBALL TEAM.

(Winners of the championship in '85, defeating Yale, 6 to 5. Harvard d' not play Princeton that year)

Forwards: De Camp '86, Capt.; Adams '86, Harris '86, Irvine '88; Cowan '88; Cook '89; H. Hodge '86, quarterback; R. Hodge '86; half-backs: Lamar '86, Toler '86; full-back: Savage '87; substitutes: Griffith '86, Ford '89.

UNIVERSITY BALL NINE (SENIOR YEAR).

Brownlee '89, c; Bickham '86, p; Larkin '86, 1 b.; Harris '86, 2 b.; Taylor '89, 3 b.; Duffield '81, l.f.; Reynolds '86, c.f.; Shaw '86, r.f., (Capt.)

UNIVERSITY LACROSSE TEAM (SENIOR YEAR).

Goal: H. Hodge '86, capt.; point: S. Hodge '88; cover, R. Church '88; first defense: Cowan '88; second defense: Cook '89; third defense: Riggs '87; centre: Nicholson '88; third attack: Harlan '86; second attack: Bliss '88; first attack: R. Hodge '86; second home: Egbert '86; first home: Ranney '86; substitute: Wills '86.

FOOTBALL TEAMS.

Freshman Year.

Forwards: Blakemore, Blair, Griffith, Halstead, Harris, Porter.

Half Backs: R. Hodge, Lamar, Shaw.

Three-quarter back: H. Hodge (Capt.)

Back: Young.

OUR TWENTIETH REUNION
TAKEN IN FRONT OF THE '86 HOUSE

Sophomore Year.

Forwards: Blakemore, Blair, Griffith, Halstead, Harriman, Harris.
Quarter-back: Shaw (Capt.)
Half-backs: R. Hodge, Lamar.
Back: Young.

CLASS NINES.

Freshman Year.

Shaw, c.; Forsyth, p.; Harding, 1 b.; Harris, 2 b. (Capt.); Carter, 3 b.; Larkin, s.s.; Reynolds, F., l.f.; Reynolds, G., c.f.; Robinson, r.f.

Sophomore Year.

Harding, c.; Bickham, p.; Calhoun, J., 1 b.; Harris, 2 b.; Carter, 3 b.; (Capt.); Clark, s.s.; Robinson, l.f.; Reynolds, G., c.f.; Shaw, r.f.

Junior Year.

Shaw, c. (Capt.); Bickham, p.; Harris, 1 b.; Wanamaker, 2 b.; Carter, 3 b.; Totten, s.s.; Reynolds, G., l.f.; Toler, c.f.; Robinson, r.f.

Senior Year.

Shaw, c., (Capt.); Bickham, p.; Harris, 1 b.; Robinson, 2 b.; Wanamaker, 3 b.; Totten, s.s.; Reynolds, G., l.f.; Toler, c.f.; Carter, r.f.

CLASS FOOTBALL TEAMS.

Freshman Year.

Forwards: Blakemore, Harris, Wills, Halstead, Blair, Griffith; half backs: R. Hodge, Shaw, Lamar; three-quarter back: H. Hodge (Capt.); back: Young.

Sophomore Year.

Forwards: Blakemore, Harris, Wills, Halstead, Blair, Griffith; quarter back: Shaw (Capt.); half backs: R. Hodge, Lamar; Back: Young.

SOPHOMORE RECEPTION COMMITTEE.

Blakemore (Chairman), Bevin, Cameron, Forsyth, Green, R., Harriman, Harris, Lamar, McClellan, McKenney, Milton, Reynolds, G., Timlow.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY ORATORS.

Freshman Year, Farrand; Sophomore Year, Erdman; Junior Year, Cashman; Senior Year, Bennett.

FELLOWS FROM '86.

E. D. Miller, Mental Science; Roddy, Classical Literature; Reed, Experimental Science; Boyd, Mathematics; Elsing, Modern Languages; Mathis, History.

CLASS DAY COMMITTEE OF '86.

T. H. Harris, chairman; Adams, Bickham, Blair, Calhoun, Cameron, Lamar, McClellan, Reynolds, Shaw, Sheldon, Timlow, White.

CLASS DAY EXERCISES.

Master of Ceremonies, De Camp; Orator, Erdman; Poet, Mapes; Ivy Orator, Cashman; Historian, Paton; Presentation Orator, Gaines; Prophecy, Elder; Censor, Bailey; Class Ode, words by Mapes, music by Crozier.

CLASS OFFICERS IN SENIOR YEAR.

Fleming, President; Timlow, treasurer; Evans, secretary.

THE FACULTY IN OUR SENIOR YEAR.

James McCosh, President; James O. Murray, dean of the faculty, and professor of English Literature; John T. Duffield, professor of Mathematics; J. S. Schanck, professor of Chemistry; H. C. Cameron, professor of Greek; Charles W. Shields, professor of Science and Religion; W. A. Packard, professor of Latin; Joseph Kargé, professor of Continental Languages; Cyrus F. Brackett, professor of Physics; H. B. Cornwall, professor of Chemistry; George Macloskie, professor of Biology; Charles McMillan, professor of Civil Engineering; Charles A. Young, professor of Astronomy; S. S. Orris, professor of Greek; C. G. Rockwood, Jr., professor of Mathematics; Theodore W. Hunt, professor of Rhetoric and English; W. M. Sloane, professor of History and Political Science; George L. Raymond, professor of Oratory; Samuel R. Winans, professor of Greek; William Libbey, Jr., professor of Physical Geography; William B. Scott, professor of Geology; Henry F. Osborn, professor of Comparative Anatomy; Frederick N. Willson, professor of Descriptive Geometry; William C. Prime, professor of The History of Art; Allan Marquand, professor of The History of Art; Andrew F. West, professor of Latin and Pedagogics; Alexander T. Ormond, professor of Mental Science and Logic; Alexander Johnston, professor of Jurisprudence and Political Economy; Francis L. Patton, professor of Ethics; H. C. O. Huss, professor of Modern Languages; A. L. Frothingham, professor of Archaeology; Henry B. Fine, asst. professor of Mathematics; William F. Magie, asst. professor of Physics; H. S. S. Smith, asst. professor of Civil Engineering; Malcolm McNeill, asst. professor of Practical Astronomy; Leroy W. McCay, instructor in Analytical Chemistry; Albert P. Carman, tutor in Mathematics; J. Mark Baldwin, instructor in Modern Languages; Franklin C. Hill, curator of the E. M. Museum.

Other college officers: E. C. Osborn, treasurer; Frederick Vinton, librarian; Henry N. Van Dyke, Registrar; Henry G. Duffield, treasurer's assistant; Isaac J. Turner, Superintendent of Gymnastics; Matthew Goldie, proctor.

THE PRECEPTORIAL SYSTEM.

No experiment in education has attracted so much attention in recent years as the establishment of what is known as the "Preceptorial System" at Princeton. In the older days, communication between the professor and the student was confined to the classroom, and no epithet of opprobrium was more severe than for a student to be known as a "boot licker". All that has disappeared now, through the fine and uplifting influences of the preceptorial system, which brings the student and instructor into friendly, congenial and helpful contact.

An excellent conception of the workings of this plan—which, let it be said, is immensely popular with the undergraduates—may be gained from extracts from a thoughtful article written by Nathaniel E. Griffin, Ph.D., preceptor in English at Princeton, taken from The Sewanee Review for April 1910:

Much interest has been manifested of late in the introduction at Princeton of a new method of undergraduate instruction known as the Preceptorial System. After four years of successful incubation the new venture received last June baptismal endorsement from the first class to enter college after its introduction and has already come to be looked upon as a permanent institution at Princeton. It may accordingly not be inappropriate at the present juncture for one who has had the good fortune to take part in this interesting experiment to attempt a brief sketch of the origin, practical operation, and underlying principles of the new system.

It has become a matter of familiar comment that the growing size of college classes no longer permits the close association between student and teacher that used to exist in earlier days when college classes were smaller. Neither in the large classroom recitation nor in the crowded lecture hall has it remained possible to perform the salutary task of holding the individual student to account for daily performances. Infrequent opportunity to recite, on the one hand, and lack of opportunity to do so, on the other, has too frequently suffered the healthful habit of daily study to sink into innocuous desuetude. Even the final examination—the last disciplinary refuge of our present system—has been largely deprived of its traditional terrors by the extensive vogue of the eleventh-hour syllabus. How to reëlist the jaded interest of the student in the wholesome discipline of daily tasks is the problem which Princeton has undertaken to solve, and the Preceptorial System is her solution.

McCOSH HALL AND THE MATHER SUN DIAL.
NEW RECEPTION HALL, LOCATED NEXT TO MARGUAND CHAPEL, AND BUILT ALONG McCOSH WALK.

Plans for a reform upon the lines just indicated had been contemplated by Woodrow Wilson some years before he became president of Princeton University, and in the summer of 1902 Dean West of this university visited England in order to embody in the new curriculum at Princeton the best features of the tutorial system at Oxford. The new plan of instruction was formally ratified by the Board of Trustees in June of 1905, and finally put into operation by the appointment of forty-seven preceptors—drawn from the faculties of thirty-six institutions—who entered upon their new duties the following September. The essential features of the new programme may be briefly outlined as follows:

At the outset of the academic year students in all save the scientific departments of the university¹ are distributed among the several preceptors assigned to each of these departments. Each preceptor then divides his men into small sections of not more than three to five members apiece. These men he meets for personal conference either in a college room or, preferably, in the informal surroundings of his own study. To secure continuity of association the preceptor invariably retains the men originally assigned to his charge so long as they continue in his department.² The preceptorial conference takes the place of one of the weekly hours formerly devoted to the recitation or lecture. Though regularly employed to supplement courses conducted by means of recitation (as in the more disciplinary subjects, such as the Languages), preceptorial instruction has proved more effective when used to supplement courses conducted by means of lecture (as in the more discursive subjects, such as History, Philosophy, and Literature). As between these two kinds of courses, the duties and opportunities of the preceptor differ to a certain degree. In the former case the somewhat inflexible character of the subject-matter frequently obliges the preceptor to pursue something of the same general method as the classroom instructor; whereas in the latter, the less formal and restricted nature of the subject-matter permits him to pursue a method of his own. To differentiate accurately between the function of the lecturer and the preceptor is not always possible. Much depends upon the nature of the course. In general, however, the two may be said to cover the same subject-matter, but each in his own way and independently of the other. In the majority of cases the difference in method may perhaps best be defined by saying that the lecturer provides the framework of the course while the preceptor contributes body and substance to the structure. Thus the two methods supplement without overlapping one another. To strengthen his moral hold upon the student the preceptor is forbidden to read examination papers or to report absences. Any disposition to slight preceptorial work is provided against by assigning more weight to the opinion of the preceptor than to the examination in the determination of standing. Moreover, in case of neglect, the preceptor may recommend that a student be debarred from final examination and thus be obliged to take the course over again. At the end of the term the grades of a student and, in certain cases, the nature of the examination questions are determined by a joint conference of lecturer or classroom instructor and preceptors.

But the foregoing provisions constitute only the external machinery by which the Preceptorial System is administered. To gain a realizing sense of the true intent of the system it is necessary to direct attention to certain spiritual principles of which these somewhat mechanical regulations are merely the outward embodiment. A failure to realize these principles has given rise to certain misapprehensions in the minds of many observers of the system which it will be the incidental purpose of the following remarks to correct.

It has, in the first place, often been supposed that the small preceptorial division has been organized solely for the purpose of more constant and rigorous discipline. But if this were the case, our system would differ in no respects from that which prevails in many other colleges in which large classes are similarly subdivided. With us, the small division exists primarily to provide opportunities for the formation of such personal relationship between teacher and student as shall render discipline unnecessary. Our system, in other words, is based on the old idea that all true teaching is personal and owes its efficacy to the direct impact of mind upon mind. The principle is a simple one and at least as old as Socrates. It finds expression in the traditional relationship between master and disciple, and in varying form has lain at the basis of every period of intellectual advance. It was, for example, the principle employed by Abelard at Paris, Arnold at Rugby, Jowett at Oxford, and Hopkins at Williams. Thus the Princeton system represents a reapplication to present academic conditions in America of a principle that can be traced back to the dawn of our civilization.

¹ In the scientific department the existing system of laboratory assistants renders the preceptor unnecessary.

² Usually for a period of from two to four years. A preceptor gives instruction only within his own chosen department. Consequently a student has a separate preceptor in each of the departments in which his work lies.

In the second place, the Preceptorial System is not, as is often thought, a coaching system. The preceptor is not, like the Oxford tutor, a drill master, primarily intent upon getting his men through the examination. As already stated, the preceptor is expressly forbidden to read examination papers or to report absences. Proceeding upon the principle of Dr. Johnson, that "what a man reads as a task will do him little good", he seeks rather to develop in his men an independent love of learning as an end in itself and without regard to the final examination.

Finally, the Preceptorial System has often been looked upon as a sort of intellectual go-cart, intended to facilitate the acquisition of knowledge with the least possible expenditure of energy on the part of the student. This supposition rests upon an equally erroneous conception. If, on the other hand, the preceptor is not a drill-master armed with the rod of pedagogic authority, neither is he, on the other, an intellectual wet-nurse appointed to feed predigested pabulum to queasy stomachs. His office is rather to act as mediator between the student and his work. He attempts, in the triple capacity of "guide, philosopher, and friend", to liberate the student's latent abilities, to put him in possession of the dormant capacities of his own mind. He soon learns how to adapt himself to the varying capacities and needs of the different individuals in his group. The dull or indolent man is not encouraged to stray far from the beaten track, but to the bright or ambitious man is given opportunity to make side excursions hither and yon in accordance with his capacity. In this way each man is encouraged to do his share of the common work and to do it thoroughly. And encouragement is all that is needed. An expressed wish or chance suggestion leads every man to do his best, if not from the higher motive of self-satisfaction, at least from the desire to please his preceptor. The advantage both to preceptor and student of this mutual accommodation can hardly be overestimated. It has already drawn students from the street, preceptors from the club, and books from the library.

No general rule may be laid down as to the best method of conducting the preceptorial conference. Much depends upon the ingenuity of the preceptor. As a rule, any device that will stimulate independent thinking is of value. Skilfully contrived questions will frequently lead a student to the habit of useful induction. Oftentimes diversity in the method of conducting a conference serves a useful purpose. Sometimes special topics connected with the work in hand are assigned to each man; at others, one man is called upon to defend a certain position, another to attack him; and at others, general discussion occurs in which each man bears a part. Carefully prepared essays dealing with the reading of the course are required periodically. These essays are then corrected by the preceptor and gone over with each student in turn at a special hour appointed for the purpose.

PALMER PHYSICAL LABORATORY
GIFT OF STEPHEN S. PALMER, A TRUSTEE, AND SITUATED TO THE SOUTH OF THE PRESIDENT'S HOUSE.

ODDS AND ENDS ABOUT PRINCETON.

COLLEGE ATTENDANCE.

(These figures are for 1909-10)

At present, about 75 per cent. of the undergraduates live in college dormitories, and when Holder Hall is completed fully 90 percent. of the undergraduates will be accommodated on the campus. This year, 1911, there are 1,400 students in college.

The number of officers of administration and instruction is as follows: Trustees, 29; Faculty and Instructors, 169; Officers, Curators, etc., 27; total—225.

WHERE THE STUDENTS LIVE.

At present, about 75 percent. of the undergraduates live in college dormitories, and when Madison Hall is completed fully 90 percent. of the undergraduates will be accommodated in dormitories. Each dormitory has its own toilet and bathing facilities, and is lighted by electricity and heated by steam, which is somewhat different from the old days, when University Hall and the old "Gym" furnished all the facilities for bathing, and the familiar student lamp the illumination.

WHERE THE STUDENTS EAT.

All the Freshmen and Sophomores are required to take their meals "in commons" at the University Dining Halls, in University Hall. Juniors and Seniors who belong to upper class clubs eat at those clubs, while non-club men eat either at the dining halls, or make private arrangements. Ten dining rooms are assigned to Sophomores and the same to Freshmen.

MEDICAL CARE.

Medical care and attention are given to the students at the "Isabella McCosh Infirmary" erected in 1892 in honor of Mrs. James McCosh. Each student pays an annual fee of $7. which procures for him, without charge, necessary care, including board, nursing, laundry, and physicians' fees. The University Physician is in charge and may be consulted at any time, free of charge.

THE NEW PHYSICAL LABORATORY.

The Palmer Physical Laboratory is devoted to the use of the Departments of Physics and Electrical Engineering. It contains 2 large and 3 smaller lecture rooms, 7 recitation rooms, 4 large laboratories and a number of smaller ones, rooms for professors, a library, museum, and special rooms for research students. Besides, there are provided 3 machine shops, storage-battery and electrical charging rooms, a chemical laboratory, an X-ray room, constant temperature and grating rooms, together with store-rooms, balance rooms, photographic and photometric dark-rooms. The three floors of the building give a combined area of approximately two acres for the work of instruction and research. Its equipment is most complete and an endowment fund has been given for the purchase of supplies, the construction of special apparatus, and the satisfaction of the general scientific needs of the two Departments there housed. This building was the gift of S. S. Palmer, one of the trustees.

THE NEW CHEMICAL LABORATORIES.

The Chemical Laboratories are located together in the Chemical Building, and all courses in chemistry and mineralogy are conducted there. The top floor is devoted mainly to the laboratory for students in the various courses in general, analytical, and organic chemistry, with private laboratories, weighing rooms, and store rooms. Each student has a separate desk provided with water, gas, suction for filtering, and sink. On the second floor are lecture rooms, specimen and apparatus cabinets, and several private laboratories.

THE NEW NATURAL SCIENCE HALL.

The Natural Science Departments of the University are housed in Guyot Hall. Eighteen laboratories are provided, nine for each of the Departments, Biology and Geology. In addition, the Department of Biology has 33 rooms for instruction and 17 for curatorial purposes, while the Department of Geology has in addition 34 rooms for instruction and 15 for curatorial work, including rooms designed for the illustration work of the Department, comprising artist's studio, photographic studio, blue printing, and dark rooms, etc.

HONOR SYSTEM.

The Honor System was established at Princeton entirely through student initiative. As early as 1892-93 the introduction of a system similar to that in use in Southern colleges was much discussed and the old method of oversight during examinations greatly condemned. The Faculty agreed to give the proposed system a trial at the midyear examinations. Though the measure was then purely a tentative one there has never been any doubt at Princeton of its success, nor has even the simple wording of the original pledge been altered. From that time on, there has been no watching of students in examinations, each student at the end of his paper merely subscribing the following: "I pledge my honor as a gentleman that during this examination I have neither given nor received assistance."

The success of the system is due altogether to the undergraduate attitude toward it. Any student who detects unfairness at examinations, or any examiner who on reading the papers discovers evidence of cheating, reports to the student Honor Committee, which, after due hearing, either acquits the accused or convicts and recommends to the Faculty that they be dismissed from college. The decisions of the Honor Committee are never interfered with or questioned by the Faculty. The Committee is composed of the presidents of the four classes with a Senior and a Junior elected at large, making six in all, five votes being required for conviction. Trials are conducted by the Committee and are not public, even the names of convicted students not being published. Cases of breach of the Honor System are of the rarest occurrence and have usually been among the newcomers to Princeton.

THE SENIOR COUNCIL.

Another phase of student self-government at Princeton is shown in the Senior Council. This body is made up of about twenty representative members of the Senior class, such as the managers and captains or presidents of the athletic and musical organizations, the editors in chief of the undergraduate publications, the president of the Philadelphian Society, one or two of the best scholars and four members elected at large. The purpose of the Council is two-fold—first, to act as a medium of unofficial communication and explanation between the authorities and the undergraduates, and secondly, to better the conditions of undergraduate life. The force of public opinion on the campus is very strong and finds its natural expression through the Council, whose opinion, on the other hand, always receives full consideration from the authorities. The Council has often proved valuable in accomplishing desirable results, in moulding undergraduate opinion, and in checking transient or permanent abuses.

CARNEGIE LAKE.

Until Mr. Andrew Carnegie made possible the creation of the lake that bears his name, Princeton had no sheet of water available for aquatic sports except the canal. The formation of Lake Carnegie has restored rowing to the list of Princeton outdoor activities. At the lakeside a boathouse has been erected for the use of class crews, and regattas are held for the Carnegie Cup presented by Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie for the winning eight-oared crew, and for the Daggette Memorial Trophy for four-oared crews. This year races have been rowed with Yale and Cornell.

In May, 1884, '86 won the Second Annual Class Championship and preliminary Inter-Collegiate Games with six first prizes. '86 won the Third Annual Championship in 1885 with six first and two second prizes.

In the fall of 1884 and 1885, '86 won the Class baseball championship.

In '84 Princeton won the Inter-Collegiate Lacrosse Championship from Harvard, Yale and The University of New York. On this team were the following '86 men: H. Hodge, R. Hodge, Mathis, Ranney, McKecknie, Blakemore and Egbert.

In the tennis tournament in the Spring of '84, R. T. Halsey won first prize in the singles, and Halsey and Hood first prize in the double.

'86 won the Caledonian games in June 1885, with eight first and five second prizes.

INTERCLASS REGATTA ON LAKE CARNEGIE

ROLL OF THE CLASS.—PAST AND PRESENT.

GRADUATE MEMBERS.

Bachelors of Arts.

- James Collins Adams, LL.B. (Columbia '88).
Pearce Bailey, A.M. '89, M.D. (Columbia '89).
Joseph Deyoe Baucus, A.M. '89, LL.B. (Columbia '89).
Grant Robinson Bennett, LL.B. (University of Wisconsin '87).
Daniel Denison Bickham.
Montgomery Blair, A.M. '89, LL.B. (George Washington '88).
Robert Bruce Bowie, LL.B. (University of Maryland '89).
James Harrington Boyd, A.M. '88; D.Sc. '92.
Herbert Lamotte Brice, LL.B. (Columbia '88).
John Calhoun, D.D. (Ursinus).
Arnold Guyot Cameron, A.M. '88; Ph.D. '91.
James Cochran Carter.
Samuel Thompson Carter, Jr., A.M. '89, LL.B. (Columbia '88).
John Watson Cary, Jr.
John Reiff Cassel, A.M. '89, LL.B. (University of Pennsylvania '88).
John Tyler Charlton.
James Woodward Clark, A.M. '89.
Horace Newton Congar, Jr., A.M. '89.
David Edward Crozier.
Charles M. DeCamp.
Anthony Woodward Durrell.
George A. Tryon Eddy, A.M. '89.
William Simpson Elder.
Henry Charles Elsing, A.M. '90, M.D. (New York University '90).
Charles Rosenbury Erdman, A.M. '89.
Frederick Evans, A.M. '89.
Frank Bateman Everitt, A.M. '89.
Wilson Farrand, A.M., '89, A.M. (Columbia 1908, hon.).
Matthew Corry Fleming, A.M. '89, LL.B. (Cincinnati University '89).
Joseph Holt Gaines, A.M. '89.
James Sproat Green, Jr., A.M. '89, M.D. (Columbia '89).
Robert Stockton Green, Jr., A.M. '89.
William Alexander Guthrie.
William Derickson Waples Hall, A.M. '89, M.D. (University of Pennsylvania '89).
Richard T. Haines Halsey.
Marshal Halstead.
James Arden Harriman.
Tracy Hyde Harris, A.M. '89, LL.B. (Columbia '89).
Charles Elliott Hays.
Charles Helliwell, A.M. '89.
Walter Lowrie Hervey, A.M. '89, Ph.D. (Princeton '92, hon.).

Harry Hillard, degree conferred '88.
 Richard Morse Hodge, A.M. '89, D.D. (University of Nashville '90).
 Hugh Lennox Hodge, A.M. '89, D.D. (University of Nashville '01).
 William Herbert Hudnut, D.D. (Wooster '06).
 Otis Leander Jacobs, A.M. '89.
 Charles Albert Jaggard, A.M. '88, Ph.D. (Princeton '88).
 Henry Wynans Jessup, A.M. '89, LL.B. (New York University '88), LL.M.
 (New York University '92).
 William Jessup, A.M. '89' D.D. (Temple University).
 Robert Crawford Johnston.
 Francis Fisher Kane, A.M. '89, LL.B. (University of Pennsylvania '89).
 William Dickey Kearns, A.M. '91, M.D. (Columbia '90).
 Alford Kelley, A.M. '89.
 Henry Cumming Lamar.
 John Samuel McAdam, LL.B. (Columbia '88.)
 George Brinton McClellan, A.M. '89, LL.D. (Princeton 1905, also Fordham 1905, also Union 1906).
 Samuel John McClenaghan, A.M. '88.
 John William McKecknie.
 Carroll McKenney, A.M. '89.
 William Stevenson MacLaren, A.M. '89, M.D. (Columbia '89).
 Augustus Strong Mapes, A.M. '89, LL.B. (Columbia '88).
 John Cass Mathis, A.M. '96.
 Harris Cornell Meserole.
 Edward DeMoss Miller, A.M. '88, Ph.D. (Berlin '98).
 Marion Mills Miller, A.M. '88, Litt.D. '89.
 David Meriwether Milton, A.M. '96.
 Joseph Carroll Montanye, A.M. '89.
 John Alexander Montgomery, A.M. '89.
 John Stevens Parker, A.M. '89.
 Stewart Paton, A.M. '89, M.D. (Columbia '89).
 William Rankin.
 Joseph Pope Ranney, A.M. '96.
 Taylor Reed, A.M. '88.
 Arthur William Remington, degree conferred 1889.
 George Reynolds, A.M. '89; D.D.
 Edward Orth Robinson.
 George Black Roddy, A.M. '88.
 Richard Reid Rogers, A.M. '89, LL.B. (University of Virginia '89).
 George Lester Rundle, A.M. '90, M.D. (Columbia '89).
 James Prestley Shaw, A.M. '89, M.D. (Columbia '90).
 Ralph Crowley Sheldon.
 John Archer Silver, A.M. '89, Ph.D. (Johns Hopkins '95).
 Harrison Brooks Smith.
 Alexander Stewart.
 Charles Grimes Stoddard.
 Oliver Smith Strong, A.M. (Princeton '88, also Columbia '92), Ph.D.
 (Columbia '96).

HERVEY

WALTER BRYANT HERVEY
CLASS OF 1914.

ROGERS

FARRAND

WHO IS IT?

SHAW

Llewellyn Thomas.
 William Ferree Timlow.
 Robert Duncan Totten.
 Lewis Howell Towler, A.M. '88.
 Charles Slone Van Syckel.
 James Anderson Van Wagenen, A.M. '89, LL.B. (Columbia '88).
 John Milligan Waddell, A.M. '94.
 Albert Chandler Wall, A.M. '89.
 Lewis Rodman Wanamaker, A.M. 1902.
 Gaylord Starin White, A.M. '89.
 Robert Parmlee Wilder, A.M. '89.
 William Phelps Wood.

Bachelors of Science.

William Ballantyne, Jr.
 Samuel Mills Bevin.
 Joseph Gerald Branch, M.E.
 Joseph Cashman.
 Bertric Egbert.
 John Jacob Lawrence, Jr.
 Edward Hamilton Pershing, M.D. (Columbia '92).
 George Edward Shea.
 Charles Whiting.

Civil Engineers.

Herbert Hugh Claxton.
 Charles E. Griffith.
 Charles T. Day Halsey.
 David Elwood Harlan.
 Walter Butler Harris.
 Henry Pennington Toler.
 Henry Edgerton Vance.
 James Wilson Woodrow, degree conferred 1898.
 Frederick Albert Young, degree conferred 1893.

Non-Graduate Members.

Clarence J. Allen,	Left April 1883.
William Arrott,	" December 1883.
Daniel B. Banks,	" May 1885.
William R. Blakemore,	" June 1885.
W. H. Blauvelt,	" December 1882.
William A. Calhoun,	" November 1883.
J. H. Casterline	" January 1883.
Charles H. Chetwood,	" April 1883, Graduated from Bellevue Medical College, New York, 1887.
Lowrie Childs,	" December 1883, graduated with class of '91.
George H. Davis,	" November 1883.
John H. Denny,	" October 1883, graduated with class of '87.
William S. Dodd,	" June 1885, graduated with class of '87.

Thomas J. Dolan,	" September 1883.
Henry H. Forsyth, Jr.,	" December 1884.
George I. Foster,	" January 1884.
Benjamin H. Gaskill,	" October 1883.
Harlan Victor Gause,	" June 1883.
William J. Goudy,	" June 1885.
W. T. Graham,	" November 1883.
Samuel M. Hamill,	" June 1883.
John W. Harding,	" June 1885.
Samuel C. Henning,	" December 1883, graduated from Harvard '87.
J. Parke Hood,	" June 1884.
James H. Horner,	" October 1883.
Walter B. Howe,	" May 1884.
Henry L. Kemper,	" June 1884.
Adrian H. Larkin,	" February 1883, graduated with class of '87.
James B. Laughlin, Jr.,	" March 1883.
Robert L. Lee,	" March 1883.
James W. McAlpin,
John McMullin,	" December 1884.
Frederick G. Mead,	" June 1883.
Matthew H. Morgan,	" December 1885, graduated with class of '87.
A. L. Nelden,	" February 1884.
Horace M. Porter,	" September 1883, graduated with class of '87.
A. N. Raven,	" March 1884.
Clinton L. Rayner,	" October 1883.
Frank D. Reynolds,	" November 1883.
Morse Rowell,	" June 1883.
Walter K. Sharpe,	" June 1883.
Renwick T. Sloane,	" December 1883.
Daniel C. Smith,	" March 1883.
William E. Strater,	" June 1883.
Edwin K. Thomas,	" December 1882.
William S. Vanneman,	" January 1885.
J. G. G. Westbrook,	" June 1883.
John C. Wiley,	" December 1882.

SUMMARY.

Graduate Members:
Bachelors of Arts.....	98
Bachelors of Science.....	9
Civil Engineers.....	9
Non-Graduates	47
Total Membership.....	163
Total number of deaths.....	35
Present Class Membership.....	128

OCCUPATIONS OF THE CLASS.

LAW

Baucus	Elder	Larkin	Sharpe
Bennett	Fleming	McAdam	Smith
Blair	Gaines	McClellan	Totten
Boyd	Harding	Mapes	Van Wagenen
Carter, S.	Harris, T.	Milton	Wall
Cassel	Jessup, H.	Montgomery
Clark	Kane	Rogers

BUSINESS

Allen	Childs	Lawrence	Vance
Ballantyne	Guthrie	Ranney	Van Syckel
Bickham	Harlan	Sheldon	Wanamaker
Blakemore	Horner	Sloane	Whiting
Cary	Howe	Stoddard	Wills
Cashman	Johnston	Thomas	Wood

MINISTRY

Calhoun	Helliwell	Jessup, W.	Waddell
Charlton	Hillard	Kelley	White
Eddy	Hodge, H.	McClenaghan	Wilder
Erdman	Hodge, R.	Miller, E. D.
Everitt	Hudnut	Raven

TEACHING

Cameron	Farrand	Hervey	Strong
Dodd	Harris, W.	Silver

MEDICINE

Bailey	Green	MacLaren	Shaw
Chetwood	Hall	Paton	Vanneman
Elsing	Hamill	Pershing

ENGINEERING

Banks	Branch	Egbert	Reed
Blauvelt	Claxton	Mead	Woodrow
Bowie

EDITOR

Jaggar	Miller, M.
--------	------------

FINANCE

Halsey, C.	Halsey, R.	Henning	Timlow
------------	------------	---------	--------

BANKING

Carter, J.	Kemper
------------	--------

FEDERAL SERVICE

Durell	Young
--------	-------

EXECUTIVE

Evans

ART

Rankin

MUSIC

Crozier	Shea
---------	------

ARCHITECTURE

Davis	McKecknie
-------	-----------

NO OCCUPATION

Dolan	Laughlin	Lee	Meserole
Gause

ADDRESSES.

Where two addresses are given, the first is the business, the second the home address. Please notify the Secretary of any change.

CLARENCE J. ALLEN,	555 Juneau Place, Milwaukee, Wis.
DR. PEARCE BAILEY,	52 West 53rd Street, New York.
WILLIAM BALLANTYNE, JR.,	428 Seventh Street, Washington, D. C.
	3001 Dent Place, Washington, D. C.
DANIEL BOWER BANKS,	Maryland Savings Bank Building, Baltimore, Md.
	1301 Maryland Avenue, Baltimore, Md.
JOSEPH D. BAUCUS,	49 Wall Street, New York.
	121 East 21st Street, New York.
GRANT R. BENNETT,	Los Angeles, Cal.
DANIEL DENISON BICKHAM,	Care Herring, Hall, Marvin Safe Co., Hamil- ton, Ohio.
	117 West Monument Avenue, Dayton, Ohio.
MONTGOMERY BLAIR,	Hibbs Building, Washington, D. C.
	Silver Spring, Md.
W. R. BLAKEMORE,	Paris, Ky.
W. H. BLAUVELT,	1917 West Genesee Street, Syracuse, N. Y.
ROBERT B. BOWIE,	City Hall, Baltimore, Md.
	104 West Eager Street, Baltimore, Md.
JAMES HARRINGTON BOYD,	529 Nicholas Building, Toledo, Ohio
	2509 Franklin Avenue, Toledo, Ohio.
JOSEPH G. BRANCH,	46 Van Buren Street, Chicago, Ill.
	3977 Drexel Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.
REV. DR. JOHN CALHOUN,	33 East Mount Pleasant Avenue, German- town, Philadelphia, Pa.
PROF. A. GUYOT CAMERON,	Princeton, New Jersey.
JAMES COCHRAN CARTER,	Greenwich Bank, 402 Hudson Street, New York.
	Boonton, New Jersey.
SAMUEL T. CARTER, JR.,	111 Broadway, New York City.
	586 West End Avenue, New York City.
JOHN WATSON CARY,	44 East 23rd Street, New York City.
	69 East Fifty-fourth Street, New York City.
JOSEPH CASHMAN,	Care The Wall Street Journal, 44 Broad Street, New York City.
	36 Beach Avenue, Mamaroneck, N. Y.
JOHN R. CASSEL,	351 Drexel Building, Philadelphia, Pa.
	205 West Tabor Road, Olney, Philadelphia.
J. H. CASTERLINE,

ERDMAN

EVANS

FLEMING

GAUSE

REV. JOHN T. CHARLTON,
 DR. CHARLES H. CHETWOOD,
 LOWRIE CHILDS,
 J. WOODWARD CLARK,
 HERBERT H. CLAXTON,
 DAVID EDGAR CROZIER,
 GEORGE H. DAVIS,
 CHARLES M. DE CAMP,
 WILLIAM S. DODD,
 THOMAS J. DOLAN,
 ANTHONY W. DURELL,
 REV. GEORGE T. EDDY,
 BERTRIC EGBERT,
 WILLIAM S. ELDER,
 DR. HENRY C. ELSING,
 REV. CHARLES R. ERDMAN,
 FREDERICK EVANS,
 REV. FRANK BATEMAN EVERITT,
 WILSON FARRAND,
 MATTHEW C. FLEMING,
 JOSEPH HOLT GAINES,
 H. VICTOR GAUSE,
 DR. W. T. GRAHAM,
 DR. JAMES S. GREEN,
 W. A. GUTHRIE,
 DR. W. D. W. HALL,
 CHARLES D. HALSEY,
 R. T. H. HALSEY,
 DR. SAM'L McCLINTOCK HAMILL,
 JOHN W. HARDING,
 DAVID E. HARLAN,

Sidney, Ohio.
 25 Park Avenue, New York City.
 South Omaha, Nebraska.
 Indiana, Pennsylvania.
 Municipal Building, Williamsbridge, New York.
 285 East 161st Street, New York City.
 1520 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.
 7010 Germantown Avenue, Germantown, Pa.
 411 Perry Avenue, Peoria, Illinois.
 1127 Inca St., Denver, Col.
 Hampton, Va.
 2021 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.
 U. S. Custom House, Philadelphia, Pa.
 Woodbury, New Jersey.
 N. Y. Public Library, 5th Ave. and 42d Street,
 New York City.
 Plandome, Manhasset, L. I., N. Y.
 Ridley Park, Pennsylvania.
 Deadwood, South Dakota.
 Ridgefield Park, New Jersey.
 Princeton, New Jersey.
 Princeton Club, 121 East 21st Street, New York City.
 New Park, Pennsylvania.
 Newark Academy, Newark, New Jersey.
 157 Ralston Avenue, South Orange, New Jersey.
 71 Broadway, New York City.
 441 Park Avenue, New York City.
 Charleston, West Virginia.
 Care Raymond, Pyncheon & Co., 1 Draper's
 Gardens, Throgmorton Street, London,
 E. C., England.
 Sunbury, Pennsylvania.
 463 North Broad Street, Elizabeth, New Jersey.
 Indiana, Pennsylvania.
 801 South Forty-ninth Street, Philadelphia,
 Pa.
 Mills Building, New York City.
 Rumson, New Jersey.
 5 Nassau Street, New York City.
 64 West 55th Street, New York City.
 1822 Spruce Street, Philadelphia, Pa.
 Paterson, New Jersey.
 437 Ellison Street, Paterson, N. J.
 South Main Street, Middletown, Ohio

TRACY HYDE HARRIS, 68 William Street, New York City.
 Hewlett, L. I., N. Y.
 PROF. WALTER BUTLER HARRIS, Princeton, New Jersey.
 CHARLES E. HAYS,
 REV. CHARLES HELLIWELL, Richmond, Ohio.
 S. C. HENNING, 71 Broadway, New York City.
 WALTER L. HERVEY, 500 Park Avenue, New York City.
 351 West 114th Street, New York City.
 REV. HARRY HILLARD, San Luis Obispo, California.
 REV. HUGH LENOX HODGE, Sewickley, Pennsylvania.
 REV. DR. RICHARD MORSE HODGE, 552 West 113th Street, New York City.
 JAMES H. HORNER, 1305 Park Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
 201 North Craig Street, Pittsburg, Pa.
 WALTER B. HOWE, Princeton, New Jersey.
 REV. DR. WILLIAM H. HUDNUT, Youngstown, Ohio.
 CHARLES A. JAGGAR, Southampton, New York.
 HENRY WYNANS JESSUP, 55 Liberty Street, New York City.
 52 East 77th Street, New York City.
 REV. WILLIAM JESSUP, Zahleh, Syria, Asia.
 ROBERT C. JOHNSTON, Sheffield, Alabama.
 FRANCIS FISHER KANE, 1832 Land Title Building, Philadelphia, Pa.
 1024 Clinton Street, Philadelphia, Pa.
 REV. ALFORD KELLEY, 2124 North 3rd Street, Harrisburg, Pa.
 HENRY L. KEMPER, San Luis Obispo, California.
 ADRIAN H. LARKIN, 54 Wall Street, New York City.
 JAMES B. LAUGHLIN, Care Jones & Laughlin Steel Co., Pittsburg, Pa.
 JOHN J. LAWRENCE, JR., 713 Liberty Street, Pittsburg, Pa.
 950 Lincoln Avenue, N. S., Pittsburg, Pa.
 ROBERT L. LEE, Racquet Club, 27 West 43rd Street, New York City.
 JOHN S. McADAM, 38 Park Row, New York City.
 70 Rutherford Place, Kearney, N. J.
 GEORGE B. McCLELLAN, 15 William Street, New York City.
 37 Madison Avenue, New York City.
 REV. S. J. McCLENAGHAN, Jamesburg, N. J.
 JOHN W. McKECKNIE, Gloyd Building, Kansas City, Mo.
 DR. WM. STEVENSON MacLAREN, Princeton, New Jersey.
 AUGUSTUS S. MAPES, 45 Broadway, New York City.
 215 West 101st Street, New York City.
 FREDERICK G. MEAD, Ossining, New York.
 H. C. MESEROLE, 216 Garfield Place, Brooklyn, New York.
 EDWARD D. MILLER, Gerardstown, West Virginia.
 MARION MILLS MILLER, 32 Union Square, New York City.
 10 West 64th Street, New York City.
 DAVID MERIWETHER MILTON, Pocantico Hills, New York.
 J. C. MONTANYE,
 JOHN A. MONTGOMERY, Trenton, New Jersey.

MONTGOMERY AND SON

WOODBROW

THE EIGHTY-SIX
HEADQUARTERS FOR OLD HOME WEEK

DR. A. L. NELDEN,
 500 Fifth Ave., New York City.
 Nyack, N. Y.

DR. STEWART PATON,
 DR. EDWARD H. PERSHING,
 WILLIAM RANKIN,
 JOSEPH P. RANNEY,
 Princeton, New Jersey.
 Woodmere, Long Island, New York.
 Roselle Park, N. J.
 No. 16 East 33rd Street, New York City.
 Dobb's Ferry, New York.

REV. ALFRED N. RAVEN,
 CLINTON L. RAYNER,
 PROF. TAYLOR REED,
 Sunnyside, Washington.
 315 Sackett Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.
 Care General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. Y.
 16 University Place, Schenectady, N. Y.
 Mount Vernon, N. H.

REV. ARTHUR W. REMINGTON,
 FRANK D. REYNOLDS,
 REV. DR. GEORGE REYNOLDS,
 RICHARD REID ROGERS,
 WALTER K. SHARPE,
 DR. JAMES PRESTLEY SHAW,
 GEORGE EDWARD SHEA,
 R. C. SHELDON,
 PROF. JOHN ARCHER SILVER,
 KENWICK T. SLOANE,
 The Netherland, Kansas City, Mo.
 165 Broadway, New York City.
 Chambersburg, Pennsylvania.
 1634 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
 5, rue Gounod, Paris, France.
 Jamestown, New York.
 Hobart College, Geneva, New York.
 Auditorium Building, 11th and Nicollet Street,
 Minneapolis, Minn.

DANIEL C. SMITH,
 HARRISON B. SMITH,
 Charlestown, West Virginia.
 3 West 61st Street, New York City.

CHARLES G. STODDARD,
 PROF. OLIVER S. STRONG,
 Dayton, Ohio.
 Livingston Hall, Columbia University, New York.

LLEWELLYN THOMAS,
 WILLIAM FERREE TIMLOW,
 People's Gas Building, Chicago, Ill.
 15 Wall Street, New York City.
 Englewood, New Jersey.

ROBERT DUNCAN TOTTEN,
 H. E. VANCE,
 DR. W. S. VANNEMAN,
 CHARLES S. VAN SYCKEL,
 JAMES A. VAN WAGENEN,
 REV. JOHN M. WADDELL,
 ALBERT C. WALL,
 1361 Frick Building Annex, Pittsburg, Pa.
 5021 Castleman Street, Pittsburg, Pa.
 Wheeling, West Virginia.
 Tabriz, Persia.
 Trenton, New Jersey.
 302 West 78th Street, New York City.
 Charleston, W. Va.
 1 Exchange Place, Jersey City, New Jersey.
 South Orange, New Jersey.

RODMAN WANAMAKER,
 J. GRIFFITHS WESTBROOK,
 REV. GAYLORD STARIN WHITE,
 13th and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, Pa.
 237 East 104th Street, New York City.
 246 East 105th Street, New York City.
 Albuquerque, New Mexico.

CHARLES WHITING,
 ROBERT P. WILDER,
 SAMUEL R. WILLS,
 WILLIAM PHELPS WOOD,
 93 Chancery Lane, London, England.
 519 South Avenue, Wilksburg, Pa.
 138 East State Street, Trenton, New Jersey.

JAMES WILSON WOODROW,

FREDERICK A. YOUNG,

Bisbee, Ariz.

1345 Franklin Street, Denver, Colorado.

U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D.C.

Olympic Apartments, 14th and Euclid Streets,
Washington, D. C.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

0 028 321 463 1